NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO--KNOX

Instructs Ambassador Wilson to Deny Foolish Stories of Our Interference.

ORDERS TO CONSULS ALSO

BORDER QUESTION STILL HAZY

State Department Fails to Clear Up the Point Whether Insurgents at Juarez May Get Arms.

NO INTERVENTION, SAYS KNOX.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary of State Knox to-day sent the following instructions to Ambassador Wilson at Mexico City:

"You are authorized officially to deny, through the local press and otherwise, as under instructions to do so, all foolish stories of intervention, than which nothing could be further from the intentions of the Government of the United States, which has the sincerest friendship for Mexico and the Mexican people, to whom it hopes will soon return the blessings of peace, which is not concerned with Mexico's internal political affairs, and which demands nothing but the respect and protection of American property and life in a neighboring republic. You will use the language of this instruction."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Administration took official cognizance to-day of the stories that have been published in the last few days to the effect that this Government was preparing for armed intervention in Mexico, and Secretary Knox sent to Ambassador Wilson and to all Consular officials in Mexico a telegram directing them to give out for publication in the newspapers in the places where they are stationed an emphatic denial of all such talk. Mr. Knox's telegram authorized denial in the most positive terms of "all foolish stories" of intervention in Mexico by the United States, which "is not concerned with Mexico's internal political affairs."

From the time the mobilization of Gen. Carter's "manoeuvre division" was first announced there has been talk that it was merely the forerunner of intervention. Administration officials have been studiously careful to avoid any public expression that might be construed as meaning an intention to intervene in Mexico, and there has never been an admission of any preparation for such a course. On the contrary the President has repeatedly declared that he had no such intention and that he would never order any troops across the border except upon the direction of Congress.

In the last few days, however, there have been repeated publications that purported to describe sayings or doings of Administration officials—from the President down—all looking toward intervention. Coupled with these publications was the speeech of Senator Stone in the Senate the other day advocating the adoption of a resolution authorizing the President to intervene. These reports and Senator Stone's speech have been telegraphed to Mexico and published in some of the sensational newspapers there.

The international situation growing out of the revolution has always been sufficiently complicated, in the view of the Administration, without the addition of any such gratuitous troublemakers as these reports. The very first time the word "intervention" was used both the Mexican Ambassador here and Señor Limantour, then in New York City, issued formal statements to the effect that the Diaz Government would resist intervention to the limit of its ability. The declaration by the President that he would not order troops into Mexico of his own volition was intended to reassure the Mexican Government. But these unfounded reports continued, and it was thought best to-day to make this official denial public in Mexico in the most emphatic manner possible. The Administration hopes that this action will quiet apprehension in Mexico of aggression by the United States.

The discussion of the situation regarding shipments of arms and munitions across the border arising out of the insurgent control of Juarez led the State Department to-day to issue a statement intended to explain its attitude on the question. The statement being merely a repetition without interpretation of what had already been said, it leaves the question just about as much unexplained as before. The department says:

> In regard to the confusion evident in some quarters as to some of the legal bearings of such situations as that existing at Juarez, now that the town is in the possession of the insurgents, the following statement was made at the Department of State to-day:
>
> Commercial exportations and intercourse of whatever description between Juarez and El Paso are not in legal contemplation essentially affected by the mere fact that Juarez is now in the actual possession of the insurgents instead of the Mexican Federal authorities. The same principles of course apply in all places where the condition of insurgency exists. These facts have nothing whatever to do with any question of the recognition of belligerency, the duty of the Government of the United States remaining in all cases that of enforcing its so-called neutrality statutes, which forbid military and naval expeditions and enterprises into or against friendly countries, originating or fostered on American soil, but which, being merely local laws, impose

PRINCETON JUNIOR A SUICIDE.

Ill-Health Leads Hamilton Brown to Shoot Himself at the University.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12.—Hamilton Brown of 401 West 148th Street, Manhattan, New York City, and a member of the junior class of Princeton University, was found dead this afternoon in his room in the upper Pyne Building with a bullet hole in his right temple. Coroner Daniel V. Bower said that it was plainly a case of suicide.

Brown attended classes during the week, appeared cheerful, and seemed to be in good health. He was found by fellow students who room in the building. Dr. J. M. Carnochan, the university physician, was summoned from the college infirmary, but Brown was dead when he arrived.

Brown, who was 20 years of age, entered Princeton in the Fall of 1908. He was studying for the Litt. B. degree and would have been graduated in June, 1912. He was a close student and a member of the swimming team and was well liked by his mates. Brown held the intercollegiate mile record in swimming and ranked twelfth among college swimmers. He participated this year in the 220-yard race and made a good showing.

The news of her son's death was broken to Mrs. Brown last night by two friends of the youth from Princeton. The mother was prostrated. Mrs. Brown said that her son had been in poor health for a year and after his visit home during the Easter holidays had considered not returning to college. Mrs. Brown received a letter from him yesterday morning in which he said that his health continued poor, that he was not fit to face the strain of the examinations, which would come soon, and that he was undecided whether to remain in college or to return home.

Young Brown was one of six children. His father, Millard Brown, a lawyer at 2 Rector Street, died last December.

MILLINGTON SUCCEEDS TERRY

Former Congressman Appointed Assistant Treasurer at New York.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—President Taft to-night appointed C. S. Millington of Herkimer, N. Y., Assistant Treasurer at New York, succeeding George S. Terry, who died in Aiken, S. C., on April 14.

UTICA, N. Y., May 12.—Charles Stephen Millington was born at Norway, Herkimer County, on March 13, 1855. After studying at the Hungerford Collegiate Institute, at Adams, he found employment in a bank there as clerk. In 1872 he organized the Bank of Poland and was its first cashier. He moved to Herkimer in 1895 and became Vice President of the Herkimer National Bank. Shortly after he was made President, which office he has held ever since. He is also President of the First National Bank of Dolgeville, N. Y.

Mr. Millington was always a Republican, though not especially active in politics until 1908, when he was nominated to succeed Vice President James S. Sherman as Congressman from the Twenty-seventh District. He was elected in November of that year, and in his first term was made a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency and the Committee on Claims. He was defeated for reelection last Fall by Charles A. Talcott of Utica, a Democrat. His appointment as Assistant Treasurer was recommended by Senator Root.

INVADES THE ALASKA FIELD.

U. S. Smelting Company to Build a Big Plant on the Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 12.—The United States Smelting, Refining, and Mining Company, a Boston concern, has invaded the Alaska field, obtained options on a number of properties, and is laying its plans to build big smelters on the Alaskan coast and on the shores of Puget Sound.

To facilitate operations in the North and Northwest an office will be opened here to-morrow, with Engineer A. C. Barke in charge. A big corps of mining engineers has been working through Alaska for some time under the supervision of A. P. Anderson, chief field engineer for the company who directed the operations from Los Angeles.

"The coal lands of Alaska, of course, are going to cut quite an important figure in the development in the country," said Mr. Anderson. "It is inevitable that the time when this fuel can be mined must come soon. Everybody knows that. We have planned to extend our operations to Alaska, throughout the Northwestern Territory, and even to the Orient if we can get the necessary ore.

"Our reason for going to Alaska to operate is based on the fact that there are many big properties of various kinds there. We are in the smelting business primarily, but in order to get business we must buy and develop properties. Alaska, in its infinite variety of ores, offers a splendid opportunity to obtain the necessary fluxing material at low cost. The fuel problem will settle itself in the course of time."

DENIES WHITEWASH MOTIVE.

Ohio Senate Committee Won't Hamper Jury Bribery Inquiry, Says Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 12.—The Grand Jury which is investigating the Legislature bribery scandal adjourned to-night until Monday. The trials of the five legislators already indicted will begin next week.

The Senate Committee of Inquiry is to conduct its investigation with open doors. Two Democratic Senators, Green and Krouse, still declare that they will not serve on the committee. This leaves three Democrats and three Republicans on the committee.

Senator Todd, Republican, Chairman of the committee, in the course of a lengthy statement made to-night, resents the insinuations published that the action of the Senate in appointing a committee is to whitewash members of the General Assembly. The purpose of such insinuations, he says, is to disrupt the committee and to discredit it in advance of its actual investigation.

"It is not the intention of the committee to interfere with or hamper the work of the Grand Jury," he adds, "nor to permit any member of the General Assembly to obtain immunity if the prosecuting attorney of Franklin County believes he can indict and convict him of wrongdoing."

SUNK IN SEA CRASH; 319 PERSONS SAVED

Ward Liner Merida, Rammed by the Admiral Farragut, Goes Down Off Cape Charles.

WIRELESS CALLS BRING HELP

Steamer Hamilton Takes Passengers to Norfolk and Battleship Iowa Convoys Crippled Ship—Woman Hurt.

NORFOLK, Va., May 12.—The Ward Line steamer Merida, bound from Havana, Cuba, for New York, with 188 passengers, and a crew of 131, early to-day sank in thirty-five fathoms of water fifty miles northeast of Cape Charles after she had been rammed by the fruit steamer Admiral Farragut, bound from Philadelphia, for Port Antonio, Jamaica.

Every person aboard the Merida was rescued and only one was seriously injured, the wife of A. Peon, a landed proprietor of Progreso, Mexico, who, with his entire family, was bound for Paris to await the end of Mexican troubles. Mrs. Peon, occupying a room immediately next to where the Farragut struck the Merida, was injured, probably internally.

The Merida was struck by the Admiral Farragut during a dense fog at 12:30 A. M. In five hours the Merida was at the bottom of the ocean, but her passengers and crew were safely aboard her small destroyer, the Admiral Farragut.

By wireless telegraph the Old Dominion Steamship Company's steamer Hamilton, bound from New York to Norfolk, was summoned by the Admiral Farragut and took aboard the rescued passengers and crew of the Merida and landed them in Norfolk at 7 o'clock to-night. The Admiral Farragut, which carried only one passenger and a crew of fifty men, proceeded for the Delaware Breakwater under convoy of the United States battleship Iowa, which answered the wireless appeals for assistance. The Iowa was standing by the Farragut when the steamer Hamilton left with the rescued passengers and crew for Norfolk.

The Admiral Farragut, after ramming the Merida, staggered away with a bad hole in her port bow, and it was feared she, too, might sink. When the Farragut crashed into the Merida she disabled the latter's engines, wrecked her electrical dynamo, and wireless apparatus, and left the ship helpless in total darkness. The wireless operator, Leach, of the Farragut, attempted to call assistance, but found his appeal could not be heard. Meanwhile passengers and crew were being transferred from the sinking Merida to the Admiral Farragut.

Call Help by Wireless.

One passenger from the Merida was Perry E. Benton, an engineer. It was largely through his assistance that the Farragut's wireless was repaired and Operator Leach's first call for aid, at 5:30 o'clock, was made possible. From the Old Domoinion liner Hamilton and the battleship Iowa, both fifty-five miles away, came quick responses.

"We will reach you by 8 o'clock," read the Hamilton's message.

Then the Iowa and the Hamilton raced to save lives. The Hamilton won. Just a few minutes after 8 o'clock the Hamilton sighted the Admiral Farragut and in half an hour had life boats out. Within two hours the passengers were shifted from the Farragut to the Hamilton.

The Merida's lights were extinguished ten minutes after the collision. Passengers were thrown from their beds in staterooms and bunks below. The officers quieted the women passengers, three or four of whom, having infants in their arms, rushed on deck in their night dresses. Twoscore Mexican refugees were among the Merida passengers, bound for the United States and Europe. One passenger is said to have been a Roman Catholic Archbishop en route to Rome.

One woman said she lost $1,000 in gold deposited with the Merida's purser and half a carload of tropical birds which she was importing. The Secretary to the Italian Legation in Mexico lost eight trunks, and there were many other losses.

Some of the passengers left scantily attired. A. Peon, the Mexican planter, whose wife was injured, escaped only in his bathrobe. He said he was with his wife, five children, and two maids on his way to visit five other children by a former marriage. His wife was so badly hurt that she had to be lowered from the Merida in a chair and again from the Admiral Farragut to the steamer Hamilton in like manner. As she was being borne to a local hotel for medical examination, Mr. Peon said:

"She is a very brave woman and will get over it, I know."

Falls Out of a Lifeboat.

As one lifeboat was being lowered from the Merida with twenty-five persons in it a davit rope broke, and she descended at an angle of twenty-five degrees. A necessary plug to keep her from sinking had been forgotten and this had to be waited for. Women clung to the sides to prevent falling out as the boat swung at an angle. One boy fell out, but was rescued.

One woman with an infant fainted and dropped her child, which was picked up by a stewardess.

A. D. Guerre of Brooklyn and a Mr. Jones had to jump from the Merida to a life raft. The former was slightly injured. Both were on the life raft for several hours before rescued.

There were brought from the Merida 131 first-class passengers, 32 second class, 25 steerage, and 131 crew. The crew, steerage, and eight first-class passengers left to-night for New York. The others were sent to hotels, and will receive tickets to-morrow to their destinations.

The only death resulting from the accident was that of a cat, the mascot of the ship, which was overlooked.

The Merida left Havana on last Tuesday, and was due in New York early this afternoon. The steamer started from Vera Cruz, where she took on most of her passengers, and made a stop at Progreso before touching Havana. She carried a cargo of general merchandise. The vessel and her cargo were valued at about $1,000,000, which is covered by insurance.

The collision occurred 168 miles north of Diamond Shoals.

Capt. A. Robertson in charge, stayed on the ship until fifteen minutes before she went to the bottom.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The battleship Iowa passed out to sea from the Delaware Capes at 3:30 yesterday afternoon, about an hour ahead of the Farragut. The Iowa was bound for Annapolis. In command of Commander B. F. Hutchinson.

Carrying one passenger and a crew of fifty men, the steamship Admiral Farragut sailed from this city yesterday for Port Antonio, Jamaica. The Admiral Far-

BROKER DISAPPEARS; ACCOUNTS TANGLED

Cotton Firm of Chas. D. Freeman & Co. Drops Young Calloway, a New Partner.

POPULAR IN HACKENSACK

Where He Built a Fine Home and Entertained Lavishly—His Household Effects Levied On.

Ernest E. Calloway, until recently a member of the cotton brokerage firm of Charles D. Freeman & Co., with offices at 21 South William Street, has disappeared, leaving his accounts in muddled shape. A firm of expert accountants is going over the books, and until its work has been completed it will not be known how badly his affairs are involved.

Calloway was taken on by the firm as a youth, and showed such aptitude for the work that his advancement was rapid. He was popular with his fellow-employes and brokers, and enjoyed the fullest confidence of C. D. Freeman & Co. As an appreciation of this he was made a partner. He was last seen at his offices late Wednesday afternoon.

The young cotton broker was one of the most popular men of Hackensack, where he recently built a handsome bungalow on the heights. He was single, living with his mother, and was known as a lavish entertainer. He was the leading man with the Hackensack Dramatic Society.

On the strength of attachments for claims amounting to $2,000 which had been obtained by the First National Bank of Ridgefield Park and the Hackensack Coal and Lumber Company, Sheriff Robert Conklin sent two Deputies yesterday to make a levy on Calloway's household effects. They were unable to obtain any information as to the young broker's whereabouts.

Calloway was cashier and manager of C. D. Freeman & Co., and as soon as it was discovered that his accounts were involved, he was dropped from the firm. In accordance with a rule of the New York Cotton Exchange, notice of that fact was at once posted in the board room.

It was said on behalf of C. D. Freeman & Co. last night that while it was not yet known to what extent the firm's money had figured in Calloway's social exploits the amount was not large enough to embarrass it.

"It is only another sad case of confidence misplaced," said a representative of the brokers.

AUTO INVADES SALOON.

Racing Driver Smashes Window to Avoid Hitting Children.

John Juhasz, an automobile racing driver, and his wife, Carola, were driving up First Avenue in a racing car last night, and just after they passed Fifty-third Street two children, about three years old, were about to cross from the east to the west side. They were hand in hand, and the tooting of the racer's danger horn seemed to bewilder them.

Mrs. Juhasz, who was at the wheel, turned to the west. The children stood for a second, bewildered. Mrs. Juhasz then turned the car toward the east, and as she did so the children turned back and went east again, getting in the path of the car. Juhasz reached over and gave the steering wheel a strong jerk, heading the car west again. Still panic-stricken, the children turned about and ran for the west side. To avoid running them down the racing man and his wife headed the car for the sidewalk.

Although they had turned off their power and put on the brakes, the car mounted the sidewalk, crossed it and an asphalt platform one foot high and four feet wide, and kept on, climbing into the window of a saloon on the Fifty-fourth Street corner. The plate-glass window gave way with a crash, and still onward slid the machine until the front wheels and engine were well within the window.

After the first rush for safety of the occupants of the saloon they came back to help the occupants of the wrecked automobile. Juhasz helped his wife out, and she stepped out into the saloon. All of the men got together and, after a half-hour's work, released the machine and pushed it to the sidewalk, where it was found that the steering gear was wrecked, a spring broken, and the engine damaged. It was towed to a nearby garage. The children meanwhile had run away. Juhasz and his wife were slightly cut by broken glass.

ARREST LYNCHERS OF NEGRO.

13 Kentucky Men Involved in Opera House Shooting Are in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

CALHOUN, Ky., May 12.—The arrest this afternoon of a number of alleged members of the mob that lynched the negro Will Porter on the stage of the Livermore Opera House on the night of April 12 has startled McLean County.

The Grand Jury, composed of twelve Kentucky farmers, has been at work on the case for a week. It is believed that all the men involved will be arrested to-morrow. Nine, arrested in Calhoun, are already in the McLean County Jail. Four others, under arrest at Livermore, will be brought here to-morrow.

Two members of the mob, located in a cabin near Island, are defying arrest. They are armed, and it is feared a desperate conflict will take place before they submit to the will of the law.

Friends of the men incarcerated may attempt rescues.

ASKS COURT TO HURRY THE TRUST DECISIONS

Stock Exchange Firm Appeals to Supreme Tribunal to End Wall Street Suspense.

WASHINGTON IS STARTLED

Clerk Had Not Received the Protest Up to Latest Mail Last Night—Delay Not Regarded as Unusual.

The anxiety of Wall Street that the suspense of waiting for the decision in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco "anti-trust" cases may not be continued over the Summer vacation of the Supreme Court of the United States was voiced in a letter which the Stock Exchange house of J. S. Bache & Co. addressed last night to the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the court, urging on them the desirability of expedition. The letter contains this comment:

"The business of the whole country is at a standstill. There is no matter before the Government of so vital importance as this. The welfare of every citizen is concerned."

It went on to point out that if a question of similar import were before Congress, that body would sit continuously until it was disposed of. For this reason the letter "most earnestly requests and prays" that "if it should happen that conclusions cannot be properly reached by the time set for the adjournment of the court, the sessions of the court be graciously extended in the interests of the whole people until the matter is concluded."

After many guesses, which were as often wrong, the financial district settled down a few weeks ago to expect the momentous decision on May 15, which is next Monday. There have been some who have predicted that the matter would go over the Summer vacation and not be decided until the Fall session of the Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Officials of the Supreme Court declined absolutely to-night to credit the report from New York that J. S. Bache & Co. had sent a letter to the court protesting against the delay in handing down the decisions in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases.

They said the report must be a hoax. One official who had been with the court for many years, said that no such protest had been received at the office of the clerk. Mr. McKenney, clerk of the court, said he had not received such a letter up to the time of the last delivery to-night.

As a matter of fact, men familiar with the procedure of the Supreme Court do not regard the time taken by the Justices in the preparation of the opinion and judgment in these trust cases as unusual delay. It is quite in accord with the belief, expressed by high Administration officials soon after the cases were argued and submitted, that the decisions would not come down, if at all, before the end of the term, and might even go over until the Fall. The opinion in each case involves a tremendous amount of labor on the part of the Justice who prepares it, as well as on all the other members of the court. The arguments were very voluminous and the citations of authorities extensive.

The Justice writing the opinion will no doubt desire to consult these cited authorities for himself, and probably will have other authorities to examine on his own suggestion or on that of other Justices. All this requires time, while the writing of the opinion is a work of the utmost care. Then when it has been prepared it is submitted to each of the Justices for examination and comment. Changes may be suggested which require extensive revision, consuming more time.

The Supreme Court is, of course, aware of the importance of these opinions in the commercial world, and of the fact that they may have a great effect on the stock market. There has been no little expectation in Washington that the decisions would come down on May 15, next Monday. But it has been suggested recently that they may be put off to May 29, the last day of the present term. There will undoubtedly be a number of decisions to deliver on that day, so that if the trust cases decisions do come down then, they will be quite likely to be delayed until after the close of the stock market.

The next day is a legal holiday and the Stock Exchanges will be closed, so that there will be one full day in which to consider the effect of the decisions before any Stock Exchange operations could be undertaken. But it is all speculation. The cold fact is that if anybody except the nine Justices of the court knows what these trust decisions are, or when they will come down, he is keeping his information closely to himself.

RUNAWAY AMONG SHOPPERS.

Left His Driver Senseless and Ran On Till Stopped.

There were throngs of shoppers in Atlantic Avenue, near State Street, Brooklyn, at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the horse attached to a delivery wagon became frightened at a trolley car and started to run. The animal dashed into the car, the collision wrenching a wheel from the vehicle, and with the driver sawing at the reins, the rig sped down States Street as fast as the horse could draw it with an axle end scraping on the pavement.

Women fled to the shelter of doorways and men sprang at the horse's head, only to be tossed off by the frightened animal. The wagon, on three wheels, lurched from curbstone to curbstone, and presently the driver, Fred Smith of 30 Boerum Place, was pitched out, landing on his head on the pavement. He lay senseless and the horse ran on.

A block away Daniel Wood of 187 Amity Street ran into the street and caught the horse by the bridle. The animal tried to toss him off, but Wood clung to the reins and brought the animal to a stop.

Others had picked up Smith meanwhile, and he was taken into a nearby store, where he was revived. He had escaped with bruises, and after a time was well enough to drive the horse back to the store.

14 AIRMEN UP IN ENGLAND.

Play at War Manoeuvres — Balfour Flies—Drexel Has Mishap.

LONDON, May 12.—The most remarkable exhibition of aviation seen in England took place to-day under the auspices of the Parliamentary Aerial Defense Committee at Hendon. Fourteen airmen, including Claude Grahame-White, Louis Bleriot, the French aviator; Robert Lorraine, the actor, and Capt. F. S. Cody, performed various feats designed to show the utility of aeroplanes for war. Four types of biplanes and two of monoplanes were used.

The exhibition was witnessed by Mr. Asquith, A. J. Balfour, who flew for several minutes with Grahame-White; Lord Haldane, Winston Churchill, Lloyd-George, 200 members of Parliament, and by the Army Council and the Admiralty.

J. Armstrong Drexel, who participated, had a mishap in which he was considerably bruised and cut and his machine smashed. He was starting a flight when he dropped from a height of a few feet. He rose from the wreckage and was able to walk from the field.

The tests included scouting, dispatch carrying, and bomb throwing by Grahame-White, who dropped a hundred-pound missile and golf balls. Messages were taken to Aldershot and replies brought back. A fleet of aeroplanes armed with machine guns attacked an army dirigible balloon.

GIRL AVIATOR IN PERIL.

Miss Quinby's Monoplane Wrecked Attempting Flight at Hempstead.

Miss Harriett Quinby of New York, while attempting to fly in a Blériot type monoplane at Hempstead Plains yesterday morning, met with a mishap that wrecked the 30-horse power machine.

Miss Quinby attempted to get off the ground while the monoplane was running across the field at full speed. In turning, the wheels of the running gear were wrenched off, and in a twinkling the forks and one of the wings were broken.

The plucky girl, however, retained her seat, shut off the power, and jumped from the machine. The accident to Miss Quinby was similar to that which befell Thomas Sopwith, the English aviator, on Thursday, when his Blériot monoplane was wrecked.

Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin took his new biplane out for the first time yesterday morning. The entire framework is built of steel tubing, despite which the aeroplane is 150 pounds lighter than his old machine, which he sold after making his trip to the Orient last Winter. It is, however, smaller than the old machine.

GETS $100,000 ALIMONY.

Divorce Granted to Wife of Prof. Wheeler of Yale on Ground of Cruelty.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 12.—A divorce, with alimony of $100,000, was to-day awarded to Mrs. Henry Lord Wheeler, wife of a professor at Yale. She alleged intolerable cruelty, and the report of Henry C. White, the special referee in the case, to Judge E. B. Gager of the Superior Court, said that the allegations were fully proven.

Judge Gager granted the divorce and the full amount of alimony asked. The sum allowed is believed to be the largest ever recorded in a Connecticut court. Prof. Wheeler is said to be the first Yale professor from whom a divorce has been obtained.

The testimony was not made public. It was contained in the report of Referee White, which was sealed and placed on record.

Mrs. Wheeler was formerly Miss Eva Swarthout, a chorus girl. She and Prof. Wheeler were married in 1906, and have one child. Prof. Wheeler was born in Chicago in 1867. He is a member of a prominent family of that city. He inherited a large fortune, and has a fine home in Trumbull Street, this city. The couple's unhappiness has been known to neighbors for some time, and Mrs. Wheeler recently went to the hospital suffering from bruises and the loss of teeth.

Prof. Wheeler is a graduate of the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale, in the class of 1890, and took special research work in Munich and the University of Chicago. He has been professor of organic chemistry in Yale since 1898.

TWO BANKS ARE CLOSED.

A Defalcation at Woonsocket, R. I.—State Shuts a Bakersfield, Cal., Bank.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 12.—A shortage of $25,000 in the accounts of Hermengilde Besette, teller for the People's Savings Bank of this city, was announced by Bank Commissioner Goodwin to-day, as final arrangements were being made to consolidate the bank with the Woonsocket Institute for Savings, of which Gov. Abram J. Pothier is Vice President. The Directors of the People's Bank said to-day that Besette had confessed.

The People's Bank has about 4,000 depositors, with $2,000,000 deposits, and a net surplus of $50,000. The Woonsocket Institute for Savings has deposits of $7,000,000, with a surplus of $750,000. Payment to depositors has been suspended.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—The Kern Valley Bank of Bakersfield was closed to-day by order of the State Superintendent of Banks. Assets and liabilities in the May statement were given at $1,084,630; capital stock, $100,000.

GUARD CONTRACTOR'S HOME.

He Killed Italian Workman and There Is Fear of Bombs.

At the request of friends of James Quinn, a contractor, of 36 Kenmore Place, Brooklyn, who shot and killed an Italian workman employed by him on May 3, a policeman of the Snyder Avenue Station has been stationed in front of the contractor's home to guard it against possible bomb throwing by friends of the dead man. Quinn was pursued by a mob, which stoned and struck him, before he drew his revolver and killed the workman.

On the opposite side of the street from Quinn's house lives Louis Birdseye, secretary of Police Commissioner Cropsey; Naval Officer F. J. H. Kracke, and other prominent Brooklynites. The Midwood Club is within a stone's throw of Quinn's house.

Quinn has been released under $10,000 bail since his arrest on a charge of homicide. The Coroner's Jury at the inquest exonerated him.

TONY FAUST IN SANITARIUM.

St. Louis Restaurant Man Stricken Here on Way to Europe.

Tony Faust, the restaurant proprietor of St. Louis, was taken to a private sanitarium near this city yesterday, suffering from nervous prostration.

Mr. Faust came to New York a few days ago, preparatory to sailing for Europe, and was stricken last Tuesday. The voyage was postponed, and his brother, Edward A. Faust, also of St. Louis, was summoned here to be with him. By Wednesday Mr. Faust had so far recovered from Tuesday's attack as to attend a ball game, but the excitement and exertion at the ball grounds brought on a relapse, and yesterday he was sent to a sanitarium.

Mrs. Faust is said also to be confined to her room at her hotel here, refusing herself to visitors, only her mother, Mrs. Bonvier of this city, being with her. Both the Messrs. Faust are sons-in-law of Adolphus Busch, the St. Louis brewer.

DICKINSON OUT; STIMSON CHOSEN

Secretary of War Suddenly Resigns and Dix's Opponent Will Enter the Taft Cabinet.

BUSINESS REASONS GIVEN

Fortune of Mr. Dickinson Involved in Coal Mining Troubles, Which He Hopes to Remedy.

POLITICS SEEN IN CHANGE

Democrat Succeeded by a Progressive Republican—Treasury Place Is Given to the Old Guard.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—President Taft gave Washington a genuine surprise this evening by announcing the resignation of Jacob McGavock Dickinson, Secretary of War, and the appointment as his successor of Henry Lewis Stimson, Republican candidate for Governor of New York last year.

It was made clear at once by the President that Mr. Dickinson had surrendered his post in the Cabinet entirely on his own volition, and solely because his private business affairs imperatively demanded his personal attention. The Presidet declared explicitly that no consideration except the state of his personal affairs had influenced Mr. Dickinson, and the resignation had been accepted with great regret that sprung from sympathy with Mr. Dickinson in the situation of his private business and from the President's own sense of loss to the Administration.

It seems that the major part of Secretary Dickinson's fortune is invested in coal properties in Tennessee, which have for some time been in the hands of a receiver. It has developed that in order to save as much as possible out of them Mr. Dickinson must give them his personal attention. He is not going to resume the practice of law, but will go to Tennessee as soon as Mr. Stimson qualifies, which probably will be early next week.

Mr. Dickinson wrote his resignation on April 28. His letter reads:

> Dear Mr. President: As my affairs have recently so changed as to require my personal attention in Tennessee, I herewith tender my resignation as Secretary of War, to take effect as soon as may be compatible with the public interest. I cannot express to you how much I appreciate the honor and confidence which you have bestowed upon me and the uniform kindness with which you have always treated me. The memory of having enjoyed the privilege of being associated with you and my colleagues of the Cabinet in the discussion of so many great questions affecting the welfare of our country will always be cherished by me as inestimable.
>
> With all good wishes for you, and with the hope that one so able, patriotic, and devoted may long be spared for the service of his country, I am,
>
> Very sincerely,
>
> J. M. DICKINSON.

Surprised, Says the President.

The President said this evening that the resignation was a surprise to him. He had not understood the state of Mr. Dickinson's affairs in Tennessee, but when it was explained to him he felt that there was no course open but to accept the resignation. His letter of acceptance was not written, however, until last Monday, when it had been practically settled that Mr. Stimson should be the new Secretary of War. It reads:

> My Dear Secretary Dickinson:
>
> I have your letter of resignation, and am very sorry that the personal considerations, as you have explained them at length to me, leave me no alternative and require me to accept it. Since you wrote it, you have signified to me that if I thought your leaving the War Department would embarrass me in view of conditions in Mexico, you would request to be allowed to sacrifice your personal interests and continue in office. While I fully appreciate the high sense of duty that prompts your offer, I am glad to say that recent developments indicate that no crisis is likely to arise making your withdrawal now any more of an embarrassment than at a later date, or justifying my asking from you such a sacrifice.
>
> In consenting to a severance of our official relations, I wish to tell you how satisfactory your administration of your great department has been. It involved the care and control of the army, the government of the Philippines and Porto Rico, the construction of the Panama Canal, and incidentally the government of the Canal Zone. In every way your work has been admirable, and entitles you to the gratitude of your countrymen.
>
> Personally, I wish to thank you for what you have done, and for your invariable sense of loyalty to the Administration, and to express my deep regret that our delightful intimacy growing out of our official family relation is to end.
>
> I sincerely hope that you may be able to achieve success in the important personal business that now claims your earnest effort. Believe me that you carry with you into private life my high respect and affectionate regard. Sincerely yours,
>
>
> J. M. Dickinson, Secretary of War.
>
> P. S.—I make this acceptance to take effect as of the time of the qualification of your successor which, at your request, I hope to secure May 15, 1911.

Stimson Taft's Personal Choice.

The President said this evening that the choice of Mr. Stimson was a personal one, the idea having originated with himself and not on the suggestion of any one else. He had talked it over with Senator Root and some other New Yorkers and had found no opposition. When Mr. Stimson was running for the Governorship in New York the President made some public statements expressive of a very high opinion of the candidate. He said this evening that he still retained the opinion then expressed. Mr. Stimson has had considerable experience with the work of different Government departments, chiefly while he was Federal District Attorney in New York. The President believes that this experience will be very helpful to the new Secretary, and that it will enable him to get into the "Governmental balance" very promptly.

The announcement of the resignation of a Cabinet officer is always the signal in Washington for the launching of all sorts of political talk. This case was no exception. After Mr. Dickinson's resignation had been written there was a question whether his going at that time would not be connected in some way with the Mexican situation. He thereupon told the President that under such circumstances he would stay in the Cabinet, no matter at what sacrifice, until he could go without embarrassment to the Administration. The Mexican situation did not seem, however, to present any difficulty and the President was anxious to let Mr. Dickinson get at his personal business as soon as possible.

On the matter of the Mexican situation, Mr. Dickinson on May 5 wrote:

> Dear Mr. President: When I offered my resignation it seemed that peace would be restored in Mexico. The situation is now so alarming that it might be unwise to make a change in the office I hold. While I have no right to withdraw my resignation, and if I could, would not take a step that would embarrass you, I want to say that in considering it please ignore all personal reasons advanced by me to support it, and be guided alone by considerations of public interest. This is not to further embarrass you, but in view of the gravity of the situation, to put myself entirely at the public service, regardless of personal considerations. Respectfully,
>
> J. M. DICKINSON.

It is probable, however, that despite this authoritative explanation there will be talk of political motives. Mr. Dickinson is one of the Cabinet members whose original choice aroused so much bitter criticism of the President among the old-line Republicans. When the President was endeavoring during the tariff session of two years ago to get something done in the line of the "revision downward," which he had promised, there was much talk among the stand-patters about his being "a Democrat" and his having appointed Democrats to the Cabinet. Mr. Dickinson is one of these Cabinet Democrats, and the stand-patters lost no time to-night in ascribing his retirement to political motives.

Another Progressive in Cabinet.

There is much more reasonable ground for the talk of politics in the choice of Mr. Stimson for the Cabinet. Few readers of newspapers will need to be reminded of the manner in which Col. Roosevelt fought for the nomination of Mr. Stimson at the Saratoga Convention last September, or of the strenuous campaign which the Colonel made for Mr. Stimson. His alignment with the progressive element in New York at that time was clear cut and positive. He had against him about every influential member of the Old Guard. The President has done his best to keep out of Republican factional rows in New York and to avoid the appearance of attempting to lead Republican politics in that State. With Mr. Stimson in his Cabinet he will be in position to receive authoritative progressive advice on New York matters that may tend to even up matters somewhat for the progressives who have been complaining of the Old Guard influence with the President of Attorney General Wickersham.

There is no doubt that the appointment is highly satisfactory to Col. Roosevelt. It is already being credited to the President's desire to prepare the way for the campaign next year. The National Progressive Republican League is in the field already in opposition to the renomination of the President, and the La Follette boom has been launched. One of the chief grievances of the progressives has been that the President had surrounded himself with a reactionary Cabinet. The appointment of Mr. Stimson, a pronounced progressive, follows that of Walter L. Fisher of Chicago, another pronounced progressive, to succeed Richard A. Ballinger—whom the progressives most bitterly attacked—in the Interior Department. The progressives take these appointments as an attempt on the part of the President to divide them for next year.

Coincident with the announcement of the choice of Mr. Stimson came that of the appointment of C. S. Millington of Herkimer, N. Y., to be Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York. Mr. Millington was a former member of the House from the Twenty-seventh New York District, and is a close friend of Vice President Sherman and other leaders of the Old Guard in the State, having succeeded Mr. Sherman in the House when the latter became Vice President. The post of Assistant Treasurer, which has been given to the Sherman-Barnes-Woodruff faction, while not so important as that given to the Roosevelt-Parsons faction, is believed here to make for peace.

Haste to Get Stimson's Consent.

The President moved swiftly when he found that he had to select a new Secretary of War. On Wednesday night Secretary Hilles was dispatched to New York post haste. He met Mr. Stimson the next day, but the latter wished to consult with his father, who was then on the Atlantic bound for Europe. Mr. Hilles came back to Washington, and Mr. Stimson resorted to the wireless. His father's answer advising him to accept came to-day, and late this afternoon he called up the White House on the long-distance and said he would be glad to become Mr. Taft's second Secretary of War. The deal was closed right then and the President, who was waiting to go to a garden party in the White House grounds, gave a sigh of genuine relief.

Dickinson Real Master of Army.

Mr. Dickinson's administration of the War Department has been marked by no great reforms or any radical changes in the establishment, but he has been a most diligent head of the department. He has enjoyed the esteem and, in the case of those nearest him, the admiration of army officers generally throughout the service. He has recognized the superb professional esprit du corps that now prevails, and co-operated in all efforts to improve the army.

During his term Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell and Major Gen. Leonard Wood have been at the head of the army as Chief of Staff. With both he maintained the best of relations officially and personally, but both had the same experience as to one trait, which is unique in a Secretary of War. Mr. Dickinson has uniformly refused to allow his office to be managed for him. He has been actually the Secretary of War, and there has been more than little complaint that he has insisted too much on knowing everything that must be done over his signature, and has applied himself too closely to the details of routine business in his department.

In the first year of his service he inspected all the large army posts in the United States and started on a tour of the Philippines, which he concluded in the early part of 1910, with the result that he acquired a grasp of conditions and needs in every branch of the public business coming under his department. He has at all times discouraged the fear of trouble with Japan, and in his demand that the efficiency of the army should be increased has based his opinion on general grounds consistent with the progressive military ideas of the times. He has more than any War Secretary in recent times encouraged and perfected marksmanship in the army.

Few men in his place have shown such an interest in all phases of the military service and acquired such an intimate knowledge of the army. The success of the recent mobilization of the division sent to the Mexican border was in no small degree due to the strict responsibility of all staff heads of the army to the Secretary and his competent grasp on the whole military machine.

OFFER SURPRISED STIMSON.

His Notable Work in Rebate Prosecutions—Dickinson's Busy Career.

The appointment of Mr. Stimson to succeed Secretary of War Dickinson was as much a surprise here as was the resignation of the latter. It was even unexpected by Mr. Stimson himself. He was called on the telephone by a TIMES reporter last night at his country place at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., and said:

"I have just heard of my appointment, and of course I have accepted. I am much gratified at the confidence placed in me by the President. I will go to Washington as soon as I can straighten out my immediate law business."

Henry L. Stimson first came prominently into the public eye when, as United States District Attorney, he conducted successfully a notable series of prosecutions against half a dozen of the big railroad systems for giving rebates to the Sugar Trust. Those prosecutions closely followed his appointment by President Roosevelt early in 1906. After he had twice convicted the New York Central before a jury, the Rock Island, the St. Paul, and the Central Vermont all pleaded guilty, and the Great Northern, which held out, met the same fate as the New York Central in a jury trial.

There followed in close succession the prosecutions of various paper combinations, and the beginning of the cases against the American Sugar Refining Company, which resulted in verdicts of guilty against the trust itself, as well as against Charles R. Hieke, its Treasurer; the Superintendent of the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery in Williamsburg, and various men under him. The Sugar Trust customs frauds cases and other prosecutions for violation of the customs laws brought $3,435,363 in fines and back duties into the United States Treasury.

The other big financial case of the Stimson régime in the United States Attorney's office was the prosecution of Charles W. Morse, and his conviction for wrecking the National Bank of North America. Mr. Stimson was still engaged in winding up the sugar cases when he resigned, and was succeeded by Henry A. Wise in the Spring of 1909. He continued as special counsel to the Government until the last Sugar Trust defendant was convicted. Then came a period of the practice of law, in which he had been engaged from the time of his graduation from the Harvard Law School, in 1891.

When the Republican progressives got control of the Saratoga Convention last Summer Theodore Roosevelt made Mr. Stimson his candidate for Governor and brought about his nomination, which was followed by his defeat.

Since the first of the year Mr. Stimson has delivered several addresses that attracted attention, in which he placed himself in the progressive wing of his party. In State affairs he has declared himself a believer in the policies that Gov. Hughes advocated. His most recent public activity has been as head of the new Fire Prevention Bureau established by the Citizens' Committee of Safety. This work was put under way following the Triangle Shirt Company's disaster, and was a voluntary service so far as Mr. Stimson and the other organizers of the bureau are concerned.

Mr. Stimson is 43 years old and a member of the law firm of Winthrop & Stimson, of which Senator Root was a member before he entered President McKinley's Cabinet as Secretary of War. His city home is 275 Lexington Avenue and his country place at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.

Jacob M. Dickinson, whom Mr. Stimson succeeds as Secretary of War, is one of four Democrats whom the President has appointed to high office. The other three are Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, Justice Lurton of the Supreme Court, and Chief Justice White of that court.

Mr. Dickinson is a big man, mentally and physically, and fought for the South in the civil war. He was born in Columbus, Miss., in 1851. He was educated in the public schools of his native city and in the University of Nashville, Tenn. He obtained his law training in the Law School of Columbia University, in this city, afterward continuing his legal studies at the Universities of Leipsic and Paris. Later he made an extended foreign trip, and returned to this country to practice law in Nashville. He soon became a prominent figure in the State, and was appointed several times to fill unexpired terms on the Supreme Court Bench of Tennessee.

He was Assistant Attorney General of the United States under Grover Cleveland, resigning when Mr. McKinley was elected. Returning to Nashville, he became chief attorney for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. A few years later saw him chief counsel for the Illinois Central, removing to Chicago.

In 1903 he was appointed special counsel for the Government before the Alaskan Boundary Commission. He represented this country before all the sessions of the commission in London. In 1907 and 1908 Mr. Dickinson served as President of the American Bar Association.

Mr. Dickinson has always been considered a man of wealth. It has been estimated that for some few years previous to his joining the Cabinet his law practice netted him not less than $50,000 a year.

MESSAGE FROM THE ARCTIC.

Returned to Baldwin, Who Sent It Afloat Eight Years Ago.

After eight years in the arctic ice pack a message dispatched by balloon from the headquarters of the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition in Franz Josef Land, on June 24, 1902, is now in the hands of the original sender, Evelyn Briggs Baldwin. It was found in an excellent state of preservation by the Swedish Spitzbergen expedition.

Mr. Baldwin sent out a series of messages stoutly sealed in small casks, and suspended by a special releasing device from balloons. When the balloon sank low enough for one of the casks to touch water or ice that cask was released, and the balloon, freed of just that much weight, sailed on again until another cask touched and was released. So the process went on until all the casks were deposited.

The message now in Mr. Baldwin's hands is the second that has come back to him. In speaking of it yesterday he said:

"I have already received through the official channels of the Government several similar messages found on the northeast coast of Iceland, Spitzbergen, and Norway, thus continuing to confirm the now well-established southern drift of the pack ice. It is this drift which I expect to utilize in my 1913 expedition across the Arctic Ocean, from the Behring Straits. The trip will probably take four [illegible]

WIRELESS TELLS OF WRECK.

Terse Messages Keep Steamship Officers Posted on Merida's Sinking.

The story of the collision of the Ward liner Merida and the United Fruit Company's steamship Admiral Farragut, and the sinking of the former off Cape Charles early yesterday morning, was told briefly in wireless messages received at the offices of the steamship lines in this city.

The first message that there had been a marine disaster came when from both vessels went out "S. O. S.," the international wireless signal of distress. This message was picked up by the battleship Iowa, on her way from Philadelphia to Annapolis, the Old Dominion liner Hamilton, bound from this city to Norfolk other craft within the wireless range and the stations along shore. The Iowa was so near the disabled steamship that she was first alongside and her boats assisted in taking the passengers and crew from the sinking Merida to the disabled Farragut. Later these were taken on board the Hamilton and landed last evening at Norfolk, Va.

The message from Capt. Boaz of the Hamilton told of his efforts to find the source of the wireless call in the fog and how he steamed by, and had to circle about, guided by wireless, until suddenly both vessels, lying close together, loomed up through the fog.

The accident happened at 12:30 A. M. and the Merida sank at 5:30 A. M. The point of the accident is given as fifty-five miles east and half a mile north of Cape Charles, Va.

The last message to the Old Dominion Line announcing the safe arrival at Norfolk of the Hamilton with the rescued on board came in the evening. It announced that the Hamilton had reached Old Point Comfort at 5 P. M., and Norfolk at 7 P. M. The officials of the company at once got into communication with the Captain and obtained word that he had brought in all the passengers and the crew of the Merida. Of the passengers landed, thirty-four first and twenty-five second, were embarked for New York on the Princess Anne, and they will arrive here this afternoon. Those who decided to finish their trip by rail were sent to hotels, and they will be cared for and brought North by the Ward Line.

First Word of the Wreck Here.

A wireless message announcing the accident was waiting for the officials of the Ward Line when the office opened yesterday morning. It came in the form of a message from Capt. Mader of the Admiral Farragut, and was sent to this city and the Philadelphia office of the United Fruit Company. It read:

> Admiral Farragut in collision with Merida fifty-five miles east and half a mile north of Cape Charles Light. Farragut floating on fore collision bulkhead. Steamships Iowa and Hamilton are coming to assistance.

At 8:30 A. M. a message came to the Ward Line office from the purser of the Merida. It read:

> Merida in collision. Crew and passengers off except four officers.

Then came another message announcing the sinking of the Merida. This was signed by Capt. Robertson, and came to the United Wireless Company here through their Atlantic City station:

> At 5:30 Merida sank in thirty-five fathoms of water. Every one now safe on board the Farragut.

Then came this announcing the arrival of the Hamilton:

> Passengers being transferred to the Hamilton and will proceed to Norfolk.
>
> CAPT. ROBERTSON.

The first wireless from Capt. Boaz of the Hamilton to his office here was sent at 5:30 A. M. It told of the call for help and that the Hamilton was going to the rescue. At the time the Hamilton got the S. O. S. call the officials of the line say she was not more than thirty miles from the wreck, but in the fog she had to grope about, trying to find both vessels by wireless. She finally picked them up.

Late in the afternoon this message came by the way of Fire Island from Capt. Mader of the Farragut:

> Am proceeding at five knots an hour for shallow water, convoyed by the U. S. S. Iowa. If wind and sea keep from southwest, will proceed northward toward New York, keeping stern to seas. Cannot use anchors. Too thick to get into Chesapeake. Ship perfectly tight. Collision bulkheads reinforced are holding.

Mr. Smith gave out this wireless message received by his company from Capt. Mader at 5:45 P. M.:

> One hundred and fifty miles south of Sandy Hook at 5 P. M. Making six knots an hour, and expect to be at New York at about 5 P. M. to-morrow if present weather conditions hold. Ship is not leaking.

Alfred G. Smith, Vice President and General Manager of the Ward Line, sent this wireless message to Capt. Robertson later in the day:

> Try to arrange to send third-class passengers, and crew, except yourself, purser, assistant purser, doctor, steward, and stewardess by Old Dominion liner leaving Norfolk to-night. Arrange best care for first class and intermediate passengers at hotels, except such as may wish to proceed by rail at once. Transportation can be furnished by our Mr. Cabaud, leaving here at 1 P. M., due in Norfolk by to-morrow morning. Apply for funds or any assistance to Capt. McCarrack, agent of the Clyde Line at Norfolk. Spare no pains to make all passengers comfortable.

In the course of the day many inquiries were made at the Ward Line office from friends and relatives of those on board. All persons were assured that no lives had been lost, and all the passengers on the Merida would soon be in New York.

MERIDA LINE'S BEST SHIP

In the Express Passenger Trade with Havana—The Farragut Smaller.

The Merida, a much larger vessel than the Admiral Farragut, was built at Cramps' shipyard in Philadelphia in 1906 for the New York and Cuba Steamship Company(the Ward Line) and rated as a first-class mail and pqassenger vessel. She was 400 feet long, 50.2 feet beam, and 17.5 feet depth of hold, and 6,207 gross tonnage. The Merida had three decks fore and aft, was of steel construction with a wood sheathing, and had seven water-tight bulkheads.

She was similar to the Admiral Farragut in having two masts, schooner-rigged, but her two three-cylinder triple-expansion engines developed 5,000 horse power, about double that of the vessel that sunk her. She was considered the best of the fleet of express steamships operated by the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company between this port and Havana, and made the voyage to and fro in three days at a speed of 18 to 19 knots.

The Merida was equipped with the latest appliances for heating, lighting, and ventilation, and had spacious saloons, cabins, and promenade decks for the accommodation of her passengers, including a smoking room on the upper deck and a drawing room, library, and social hall.

The Admiral Farragut was built at Philadelphia in 1898 by William Cramp & Sons to trade between that port and Boston and Port Antonio, Jamaica. She is a twin-screw, schooner,-rigged, two-masted steamship of steel construction, with two decks fore and aft and four watertight bulkheads. Her 'tween decks are specially constructed and ventilated for carrying bananas.

Her dimensions are: Length, 291.2 feet; beam, 36.1 feet, and depth of hold, 22.4 feet. The Farragut has 2,104 gross tonnage, and the bottom of the vessel is double and she is equipped with water ballast tanks. She is equipped with two three-cylinder triple-expansion engines developing 2,560 horse power, with a speed of thirteen knots, and carries a crew of fifty-two, all told. The Farragut was the first of the "Admiral" fleet of steamers, and ran for a few trips from New York to Jamaica with the Admirals Sampson, Schley, and Dewey. She has accommodation for a limited number of first-class passengers amidship. In March, 1904, she sprang a leak and had to put back to Boston.

THE MAYOR REBUKES MARINE ENGINEERS

"Go Back and Strike," He Tells Complaining Ones, but They Can't Work for City Again.

IGNORES THEIR SPOKESMAN

Nothing to Say to Him After Learning He Was Not a City Employe—Plain Talk to the Others.

"Go right ahead and strike. There will not be one of you who strikes in the employ of the city while I am here as Mayor."

This was Mayor Gaynor's reply yesterday morning to the committee representing the engineers of the Dock Department, who are talking of going on strike unless Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins reinstates at once Jonathan A. Wilson, a chief engineer, discharged about ten days ago. After retreating from the City Hall the committee gave out a statement giving their reasons for asking that Wilson be put back at work.

William F. Yates headed the committee to the Mayor's office.

"Are you employed by the Dock Department?" asked the Mayor after Yates had given his name. Yates admitted that he was not.

"What have I to do with you?" said the Mayor, and turning to the other men he asked whether there was any of them in the city employ.

Philip J. O'Reilly, Edgar C. Lahman, John Fairbanks, and Edward McMahon responded that they worked for the city.

"What is all this?" continued the Mayor. "You called here yesterday and left this matter with me. Now what is it to-day."

"We came here to know Mr. Mayor what you intend to do with it," put in Yates.

"Who are you, anyhow. You are not employed in the Dock Department. Who has been removed by Mr. Tomkins," questioned the Mayor?

"Mr. Wilson," was the answer.

"Is Mr. Wilson here? Why is he not here, if he has any grievance?

"Yates replied that Wilson had placed his grievance in the hands of his fellow engineers.

"You are not one of his fellow-engineers," said the Mayor.

"Very well," was Yates's reply. "There are four others that are."

"You are under the impression," said the Mayor, "that I have nothing to do except one thing in a day. Is that it? I even got a long telegram at my house last night. Now I have it stated to me by people who heard you say it that this coming to me is under a threat of a strike. Now if that is so go right back and strike. There will not be one of you to strike who will ever be employed by the city again while I am here as Mayor. If you have left the paper here with me and a grievance it is going to be looked into. But this strike—you want to go and strike right now if you want to. Don't bother me, and I won't look into it at all; but if you want me to look into it just go away."

One of the men reminded the Mayor that he had said he would look into it during the day.

"I didn't ask you to come here while I was looking into it," said the Mayor again. "An employe of the city, subject to removal after charges, has been tried by the Dock Commissioner personally and dismissed. This is a legal and orderly procedure, and it is the height of impudence for anybody to interfere with that procedure except in a legal manner. If you tell me there is a mistake or inadvertence by the Commissioner, I am perfectly willing, in the interest of justice, to look it over and call the Commissioner in and talk with him. If you are not satisfied with that, all I can say is, 'Good day.' Now that is all I have to say to you."

Wilson is President of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, and a statement given out by the engineers in his behalf said:

> The Marine Engineers believe that if a man with a record for bravery and manhood can be dismissed and thrown out of employment upon an untruth and distorted state of facts, the civil service regulations have become a farce, and they have, therefore, brought the whole record to the attention of Mayor Gaynor, by means of resolutions signed by every engineer in the department, showing the great injustice and wrong that has been done Wilson, and demanding his reinstatement.

Wilson was dismissed for making a report concerning Herbert Tyler, a stoker, which Commissioner Tomkins said contained misrepresentations which nearly cost the man his job. In a long letter to Commissioner Tomkins Wilson justifies his report about the stoker.

GAS DROPS FIVE FIREMEN.

Flood Rising About Them in Tenement Basement When Rescued.

Capt. O'Connor of Engine 21 and George Chadwick, Albert Buckman, and John Doyle of his company went into the sub-basement of the six-story tenement at 350 East Thirty-third Street early yesterday morning to fight a blaze among a lot of junk and firewood. Presently another fireman, who had accompanied them, came rushing back to the street.

"They're all dead," he gasped.

Capt. William Clark of Truck 7 shouted to his men to follow and dashed down stairs through the smoke. A gust of gas struck the rescuing party as soon as it reached the foot of the stairs and James Redding, one of its members, fell to the floor. Dimly through the smoke Chadwick, Buckman, Doyle, and Capt. O'Connor could be seen on the floor, while water that gushed from a broken pipe was rising rapidly about them.

Capt. Clark and his men picked up the four unconscious members of Truck 21 and their own unconscious comrade and carried all five to the street, where they were laid out unconscious on the sidewalk until Dr. Mead and an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital came. Redding and Chadwick had to be taken to the hospital before they could be revived. The others soon recovered and went home.

Even before the five men on the sidewalk were revived the fire was practically extinguished. It was confined to the sub-basement and, beyond burning up a lot of wood and junk, did no damage at all. The police believe the fire was incendiary and are looking for a stranger seen in the hallway before the blaze was discovered.

WARNED BY TELEPHONE.

Furchheimer Told Police—3 Young Men Who Waylaid Him Arrested.

David Furchheimer, a coffee dealer, who lives at 109 East Eighty-seventh Street, was sitting in his place of business next door, at No. 111, early last evening when he was called to the telephone. The person at the other end of the wire said to him:

"I'm a friend of yours, Mr. Furchheimer, and I want to warn you that when you leave your store to go home at 10 o'clock to-night a gang will be in wait for you to 'trim' you."

The coffee dealer went to the East Eighty-eighth Street Police Station, where he repeated the conversation, and Patrolmen Winter, Martin, and Glinsman were assigned to watch for the gang.

Furchheimer left his store at 10 o'clock, and as he did so three young men closed in upon him. The police seized them and took them to the station. There they said they were Harry Karp, 19 years old, clerk, 158 East Ninety-seventh Street; Samuel Phillips, 22, 105 East Ninety-seventh Street, and Harry Cuff, private detective, 20 years old, of 308 East Ninetieth Street. A charge of disorderly conduct was preferred against them. A .38-calibre revolver, fully loaded, was found on Karp and a blackjack was picked up in front of Mr. Furchheimer's door.

TRY TO BLACKMAIL CHINESE.

Men Posing as Federal Inspectors Caught—Threatened Deportation.

The usual throng was around the Criminal Courts Building at Centre and White Streets yesterday afternoon, among them Detectives Burke and Picco, who had just attended a trial in General Sessions, when two men came running up Centre Street followed by a score of yelling Chinamen. Burke and Picco caught one of the men, but the other made off in the crowd.

According to Wong Fook of 48 Mott Street, who was in the lead of the pursuers, the two men had tried to swindle him out of $50, and when the prisoner, and later two others, one of them a Chinaman, were turned over to United States Chinese and Immigration Inspector Wylie he declared that the captures probably had put an end to a swindling scheme by which Chinamen in this city had been swindled out of hundreds of dollars.

According to Inspector Wylie, two white men and two Chinamen, one of them still at large, originated a scheme of posing as Federal officers and then by threats of deportation blackmailing Chinamen who were unable to produce a certificate such as all those regularly admitted to this country are provided with. More than 100 complaints had been received at the Federal Building, said Mr. Wylie, all of them, of course, from Chinamen equipped with the necessary certificates, since those who had none dared not complain of the swindle. For this same reason, said the Inspector, it had been impossible to get any trace of the swindlers.

Fook was highly complimented at Police Headquarters for his share in the capture of three prisoners. The Chinaman, though living in Mott Street, runs a laundry in Third Avenue, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets. To his shop came yesterday, said the Chinaman, one of the prisoners, who afterwards said he was John Williams and who the police say has a record as a pickpocket under the alias of Walter Stewart.

With Stewart was another man, both of whom posed as inspectors, and one of whom showed a glittering shield. They told Fook they would not deport him if he would give them $50. Fook protested that he had a certificate and the men accompanied him to his Mott Street home where he produced it.

"Ah! that's not yours," Fook said one of the men told him, and insisted again on the $50. Fook refused to pay and the men started away. Fook and every other Chinamen in the house convinced now that the men were impostors started in pursuit.

According to the police, Williams confessed his part in the scheme, and said he was aided by Alfred Harris and two Chinamen, the latter notifying them whenever they located a Chinaman, who had been smuggled into the country and, consequently, had no certificate. Burke and Picco scoured Chinatown and there arrested Harris and Ing Kwong, a laundryman of 161 Bleecker Street. Harris said he lived in Mills Hotel No. 1, 160 Bleecker Street.

CITY'S PRINTER KILLS HIMSELF

Hounded to Death Because He Wouldn't Pay Graft, Says Robert Lecouver's Friend.

HIS BILLS WERE HELD UP

Had to Mortgage Home and Factory—Body Found in Well on His Fine Estate at Westwood, N. J.

Robert Lecouver, President of the Lecouver Press Company of 51 Vesey Street, and President of the First National Bank of Westwood, N. J., was found dead at the bottom of a thirty-two-foot well on his estate at Hackensack and Jefferson Avenues, Westwood, early yesterday morning. Mr. Lecouver was known to have worried for several months over the holding up in the Controller's office of bills due him in connection with his work on The City Record and other city printing for which he had received the contract on an unusually low bid in December. The failure to collect from the city, coupled with a heavy payroll he was obliged to meet each week in carrying out the work of city printing, forced him to mortgage heavily his fine estate at Westwood and the building of his printing plant on Vesey Street. All these facts preyed heavily on his mind.

When Mr. Lecouver appeared at his printing plant on Thursday, his superintendent, George F. O'Connell, and several of his employes noticed that he spoke with even more than usual listlessness. The same depressed state of mind was still upon him when he returned home in the evening.

After dinner, on Thursday evening, his 12-year-old daughter Ruth, who is his only child, nestled close to him and whispered a secret in his ear. She reminded him that the next day would be her mother's birthday, and asked him to take a little money out of her bank so that she might buy her mother a birthday present.

"A sad birthday," replied Mr. Lecouver.

Mrs. Lecouver and the child tried in vain to rouse him from the brooding. It was not until late at night that Mrs. Lecouver saw him fall asleep. A little later, A. B. Bogert, a close friend of Mr. Lecouver's and a fellow-Director of the Westwood Bank, telephoned to inquire concerning Mr. Lecouver's health, which, he had learned from the cashier of the bank, seemed rather bad for several days. Mrs. Lecouver said her husband was resting.

It was not until 4 o'clock yesterday morning that Mrs. Lecouver, who was acquainted with all her husband's worries and went each day to his office in New York to help him, managed to fall asleep. She woke two hours later, with a start. Her husband, who had been sleeping beside her, was gone.

She made a hurried search of the house, but could not find him. Then she telephoned to Mr. Bogert to hurry over and help search for him.

Body Found in the Well.

As Mr. Bogert drove up in his automobile a few minutes later he saw one of the maids at the Lecouver house rush from the blue-domed wellhouse just across the driveway from the house, under two big full-blown apple trees and clustering evergreen bushes. She said that in trying to raise one of the two buckets from the well she had found it wedged tight near the bottom.

Already the alarm over Mr. Lecouver's disappearance had spread in the village, and several neighbors, including the Mayor, H. H. Goodwin, were trooping across the broad lawns around the house or coming up the driveway in automobiles. One of the former, Michael Geisbeck, a well-digger, accompanied Mr. Bogert and Mrs. Lecouver to the wellhouse, where Mr. Bogert tied one of the lamps of his automobile to a rope and lowered it into the narrow shaft. As the light neared the bottom, the three bending over the edge of the well above saw the body of Mr. Lecouver, resting on his knees and forehead, in two feet of water at the bottom.

Mrs. Lecouver was overcome and had to be assisted into the house, where she was met by little Ruth, awakened by the unwonted commotion on the grounds.

The body was brought up a ladder to the lawn by Geisbeck, the well digger. Mr. Lecouver was clad only in his night clothes and slippers. His neck was broken by the fall, and his right shoulder and right knee were bruised against the stone wall of the well. Coroner William H. Tracey, who was notified by telephone and drove over from his home at Fairmount, N. J., said the case seemed plainly a suicide, although friends of Mr. Lecouver insisted that he had wandered to the wellhouse for his usual morning drink, and fallen accidentally into the shaft while trying to adjust the tangled bucket rope.

Mr. Lecouver, according to his wife, left no note or any evidence of a suicidal intent.

Most of his friends, however, knew how he had worried over the holding up of his pay for the city printing. He received the contract for this on Dec. 16 last at a figure several thousand dollars less than that bid by the Martin B. Brown Company, who had received the contract, with one exception, each year for thirty-eight years previous to that time.

Victim of Politics, Says Bogert.

"He told Mayor Gaynor that in filling the job of city printer he would not give up a single dollar for graft," said his friend A. B. Bogert, yesterday, "and in this way was able to hand in a lower bid. But almost from the beginning, according to his frequent complaints to me and others, the city Government began to hold back payment on his bills for one excuse or another, and he found himself getting hard pressed for ready cash. He had a weekly payroll of $2,500 to meet at his plant.

"He once told me that if he would only consent to hold his hand behind his back with something in it all the annoyance to which he was put by tardy payment of his bills would cease. But he refused to do that, even though he was presently obliged to mortgage his $25,000 home here in order to meet expenses. Later, he told me, he had to mortgage the building at 51 Vesey Street, still borrowing in order to meet his payrolls. He told me recently that there was $40,000 due him and unpaid on May 1.

"Mr. Lecouver's death was due to corrupt politics. I know that he was never forgiven for winning the award of the bid on city printing, little though his own profit was therefrom. He was literally hounded to death. He simply could not borrow any more, and he could not bear the thought of falling short of his boast hitherto, that he never skipped a payroll in his life."

Mr. Bogert said that Mr. Lecouver recently mentioned to him that he was considering an offer of taking a younger man in as a partner in the printing business, and that he had half a mind to do so. What became of the partnership plan, however, he did not learn.

Henry Ferguson, Deputy Supervisor of the City Record, said yesterday that he had heard Mr. Lecouver had made arrangements to turn over 51 per cent. of his interest in the Lecouver Press to other interests, but Mr. O'Connell, Superintendent of the plant, denied this. Mr. O'Connell admitted, however, that Mr. Lecouver had said he was considering letting go some of his real estate and getting additional capital into the business. It was said that Mrs. Lecouver held the controlling interest in the printing plant.

Mr. Bogert said that the Westwood National Bank was in no way affected by Mr. Lecouver's business troubles or by his death.

"He often said that he would not draw a single check on the bank to help himself in the troubles his city printing contract brought upon him; and after his death we found on investigation that the bank's accounts were as straight as a string. He does not owe the bank a single dollar."

Mr. Bogert said Mr. Lecouver was never a hard driver of a bargain, sometimes impulsively generous where he might have exercised more businesslike caution. Thus, he said, Mr. Lecouver, when the withholding of his pay began to press him, gave a demand mortgage for $10,000 on his Westwood estate, which, under the auctioneer's hammer, was worth more than $25,000. This mortgage especially preyed on his mind.

The Lecouver estate is the finest in Westwood, consisting of a large Colonial mansion, another large home recently built by Mr. Lecouver and rented to a neighbor, and fifty-four city lots, all carefully gardened, and clusters and groves of valuable imported fruit and shade trees. Rustic benches and rustic swings are strewn over the broad lawns, and trees densely laden with white apple bloom stand everywhere on the grounds, two of them just beside the blue-domed wellhouse where he met his death. The trees alone cost several thousand dollars. There are hundreds of artistically trimmed evergreen bushes and tufted cedars dotting the lawn.

Mr. Lecouver lived eleven years in Westwood, coming there from Bay Ridge. He had been in the printing business for forty years, and before that had led a hard life in Western mining camps and cattle ranches. He would never tell how old he was, saying that he kept only three things secret—his birthplace, his age, and the amount of his fortune.

Mr. Bogert thought he was about [illegible] years old, though he looked considerably younger. He was over six feet tall and of powerful build. Only a year ago, said Mr. Bogert, he undertook, on a challenge, a swimming match with Capt. M. M. Crockett, a young naval officer, and beat him in a swim of seven miles at Coney Island. He used to boast that he was one of the few men who could sleep on the water. It was owing in part to his rugged constitution that he refused to have medical treatment when his young wife and his friends recently noticed that he was wasting away. He also refused an offer of $85,000, said to have been made to him for his Vesey Street building by the Pennsylvania Railroad, saying that he could not rest and keep well with nothing to keep him busy.

How the Bills Were Held Up.

Just how much was due Mr. Lecouver under the contract for city printing could not be ascertained yesterday. It had been known for some time, however, that payments were being held up owing to alleged faults in the printing of The City Record. On May 2, Controller Prendergast sent the following letter to Mayor Gaynor, explaining the holding back of some of the payments on the bills of the Lecouver Press Company:

> May 2, 1911.
>
> The Hon. William J. Gaynor, Mayor, and Chairman Board of City Record, City of New York.
>
> Sir: Bills of the Lecouver Press for publication of The City Record for January, February, and March, 1911; for the publication of the civil list, and for the Controller's charter report, have been submitted to the Finance Department for payment. A deduction of $250 was made from the January bill by the Supervisor on the ground that the contractor did not perform his work in a "skillful and workmanlike manner" as specified in the contract. The bill for the civil list was received in this office a few days ago, the work having been completed by the contractor on Jan. 31. A deduction of 10 per cent. was made by the Supervisor in this bill, as stated by him, "because of a number of printer's errors."
>
> At the time of the presentation of the bill for January the question of the duty of the Controller in the matter of the payment of the claim where the contractor had not fully complied with his contract requirements under the existing City Record contract, was submitted to the Corporation Counsel, with a request that he give his opinion at once. An interim recommendation was made by the Corporation Counsel to pay on account what the Controller deemed advisable, pending the consideration of the important questions of law in a later opinion.
>
> Pending the receipt of the second opinion of the Corporation Counsel the Controller paid 75 per cent. of the face of the claims under this contract, less the usual 10 per cent. deduction for retained percentage.
>
> In order that the contractor may suffer no unnecessary hardship, I would suggest that the final adjustment of these claims be taken up by the Board of City Record itself, and that the board consider the question of the powers and duties of the Supervisor in determining the amount to be paid under the various contracts for printing, which have been entered into by the city.
>
> I wish further to suggest that the Corporation Counsel be requested to furnish as soon as possible the promised second opinion for the guidance of the board in the matter.
>
> Respectfully,
>
> WILLIAM A. PRENDERGAST,
> Controller.

In reply to this letter the Controller received the following answer:

> May 3, 1911.
>
> Sir: The matter of the bills of the printer of The City Record will be taken up as you suggest, and I am writing to the Corporation Counsel. Very truly yours,
>
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Mr. Watson, the Corporation Counsel, advised the 75 per cent. settlement, but in reality 35 per cent. was held back, 10 per cent. being withheld as a rule until the expiration of the contract term. The bills affected in this manner were: January, $3,865; February, $3,800; annual report of the Finance Department, $1,500, and the civil list, $3,000. The March bill, $7,357, was paid with only the 10 per cent. reduction.

The Lecouver Press Company was established in 1888, but Mr. Lecouver had been in the printing business long before that time. For the last six years the company has published The Police Chronicle, Industrial Engineering, The Insurance Aid, The Truth Seeker, The Irish Advocate, and The New York Produce Bulletin.

Work Will Go On.

Owing to the fact that a great amount of contract advertising is now being done, an enormous amount for the Catskill waterway alone being involved, anxiety was expressed yesterday at City Hall lest Mr. Lecouver's death cause the omission of even a single issue of the City Record. Mr. O'Connell, the Superintendent of the Lecouver Press Company, however, declared that not a single issue would be skipped. The affairs of the firm, he said, are and have always been in excellent condition, and the filling of the contract with the city will continue. Mr. O'Connell also insisted that Mr. Lecouver had fallen by accident into the well. He was suffering for some weeks from malaria, said Mr. O'Connell, but had expressed no suicidal intent or given evidence thereof.

The First National Bank of Westwood was draped in black yesterday afternoon. Mr. Lecouver is the third officer of the bank to die in the last two years, two Vice Presidents, H. C. Neer and Robert Dickson, having died in less than a year of each other. The funeral of Mr. Lecouver will be held on Monday, when the body will be cremated at the Union Hill cemetery.

FIELD GUNS READY TO SWEEP CAPITAL

Insurrectos Insinuate That 6,000 Prisoners Will Be Loosed on Mexico City.

REFUGEES AT CONSULATES

Serious Problem Presented by Them—Judge Godman Tells of the Murder of His Son.

BY STEPHEN BONSAL,

Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

Copyright, 1911, by The New York Times Co.

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—The alarm in this city last night, of which I advised you, did not die away until early this morning. Although apparently there was nothing in it, the clerks of the Bank of London and the Mexico-British Corporation, chartered in Mexico, stood guard all night in their office armed with rifles. To-day there is nothing very important to chronicle, simply a budget of little things, all with an unfavorable influence upon the situation.

The Diaz Government here has apparently decided that its previous hide-and-seek military preparations in the capital were childish, and to-day there were planted before the citadel and directed upon the city four field pieces. Possibly this is the result of a council of Ministers, with Gen. Diaz presiding, which was held last night. At all events, we know no other so far as we are concerned here to-night.

Chihuahua and Torreon are incommunicado. There is every reason to believe that both places have been besieged since yesterday. It is certain that all telegraphic communication is cut off.

Americans Leave Guadalajara.

The American colony in Guadalajara, for some reason not known here, is in a panic. Americans are all trying to leave the city by any available means.

The troubles of American refugees—which are indeed great, many of them being wholly destitute—who are arriving at the various Consulates, is beginning to constitute a serious problem. There are forty such reported at Vera Cruz and fifty at Manzanillo.

I had a good look at the Belem prison to-day from the outside. I made no attempt to enter it because there is quite a substantial rumor to the effect that the last intruder caught the typhus. I should say from what I saw and heard that there are at least 6,000 prisoners in the place. There is a guard of 500 soldiers. I saw no reasons why they were not sufficient to perform their duties, but the insurgents continue to insinuate, probably without any justification, that a jail delivery is planned in the near future with a sinister purpose, and that we should be prepared for it.

Tells of Murder of American.

Judge M. M. Godman of Seattle, Wash., who for the last few years has divided his time between Mexico and the California home of Mrs. Godman, arrived at the capital to-day and gave me a very simple and touching statement of how, as already telegraphed to THE NEW YORK TIMES, his ranch near Acapulco was raided last week and his eldest son killed by insurgents. It will be remembered that at the time all three of his sons were reported killed, but two of them, after many narrow escapes and much suffering in the mountains, reached Acapulco.

Judge Godman told me that he left the hacienda, where he is planting cocoanuts in a large scale, to go to Acapulco, where his presence was necessary to get some agricultural implements out of the Custom House. This was on Saturday morning a week ago. There were rumors of the approach of rebel bands, and how they had been robbing and maltreating persons at Tecpan, but their activities seemed to be no greater than usual.

An hour after his departure, however, news reached Roy Godman, 29 years old, that a rebel band was very near. In alarm he sent his youngest brother, only 16 years of age, down to a fishing place on the nearby lagoon with a faithful Mexican servant, who knew many hiding places. The two eldest brothers remained at the hacienda with the Mexican foreman.

Eighty insurgents arrived just about dusk outside the place. Only two of the leaders came in, and the young Americans received them courteously. Upon demand they gave up a pistol and some ammunition and a little money. They were assured that there was no danger, that they could stay in the house, and that their lives and property would be protected.

Rebels Attack the House.

Half an hour later, however, the same men came rushing out of the darkness, some on horseback and some on foot, shouting, "Kill the Gringos!" The foreman rolled off the porch and hid under a banana tree. The brothers got into the house, where soon everything was bolted and barred.

The insurgents circled around, firing shots occasionally and beating fiercely on the iron bars of the windows. They had broken down one side door and were making their entry into the main house when the young Americans decided to run for it. In the rush one fell, the eldest, but the second man escaped. In an hour he came back with the faithful Mexican and found his brother lying dying on the veranda.

Boy Finds House Demolished.

Fearful that the bandit insurgents would return, they hid the wounded man in the woods. Several hours later he died. The survivor buried his brother with the assistance of the Mexican, and then set out for the lagoon where the younger brother was hiding.

Meanwhile, about midnight, the boy, fearing that something had happened, went back by himself to the house. He found it almost demolished. Then he was shown the grave of his elder brother, with whom he had parted that morning. Toward daylight the boy started out for Acapulco, and, keeping off the roads, made the distance of twenty-three miles early that afternoon.

The second brother was not so fortunate. Friendly Mexicans thought the insurgents were particularly anxious to kill him, so they dressed him as a Mexican, with a zarape, sombrero, and straw sandals. Only on the evening of the second day did they venture in a roundabout way to lead him toward the city.

Judge Godman told me that neither the Governor nor the military commander in Acapulco could help him, though he gives them credit for wishing to do so. They both said that not a man could be spared from the defense of the city.

Judge Godman left Acapulco last Sunday night in a steamer for Manzanillo, whence he came by rail here. He says that the American colony in Acapulco has been in great straits owing to the vigorous way in which the insurgents are pushing the siege. He says that for many weeks past all Americans have gone on board lighters or have rowed out to sea in order to escape the horrors of a night attack and massacre, which is apprehended every evening.

The committee of safety of the American colony appointed by Ambassador Wilson held its first formal meeting to-night. Although already arrangements for the organization of the colony and working arrangements with the other foreign colonies have been perfected, only two measures were decided upon to-night; first to impress upon all Americans the necessity of arming themselves as well as it can be done at this late date; and secondly, to lay in provisions as abundantly as possible, so that in case of possible rioting the members of our colony will not have to go out into the streets.

It is thought advisable not to have a working understanding with the National Chamber of Commerce, though all the colonies will work harmoniously with it. Closer working relations are neither possible nor advisable, as the Chamber of Commerce wishes to defend the stores and business quarters from looting, while the foreign and American colonies have decided to limit their efforts to the defense of their homes and families.

Organise to Resist Invasion.

Reports are coming in from every quarter, as far apart as Manzanillo and Tampico, also from Aguascalientes and Toluca, of the wonderful growth, and consequent excitement among the younger generation, of the recently called into being patriotic societies, which are known locally by various names, such as Amigos del Pais or Frontier Protective Society or Society for the National Integrity or Lives of the Country.

There is evidently a central organization of a sort, and it can be conservatively estimated that to-day from 20,000 to 25,000 men are drilling half an hour or so every day, sometimes more, and are animated with the idea that they are preparing to resist an invasion, which, of course, can only come from one direction.

The whole thing seems harmless enough. It may all die away as did our Know Nothing agitation in the United States, generations ago, or it may, here in America, reproduce some of the scenes of the Boxer rising.

Capt. Smith of a Ward liner announced to friends in Vera Cruz yesterday that coming into port and only two hours' distant outside he came across five men of war moving about leisurely. He says that only one was American, but any man of war would look very good in Vera Cruz just now. The Captain has been requested to talk his good news into a phonograph so that, with his own words, some of which I have not used, they can be circulated through the very deeply interested colonies.

OAXACA LOYAL TO DIAZ.

Great Mass Meeting Lauds Him After the Fall of Juarez.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From Another Correspondent.

MEXICO, May 12.—Residents of Oaxaca City, who for days had been cut off from the outside world by the activity of the insurrectos and so had had only a meagre knowledge of events in the republic, on hearing of the fall of Juarez, assembled almost en masse and drafted a vote of confidence in Gen. Diaz and his Government, which seemed to be in dire peril. The address was signed by several thousand Oaxacans who remained loyal to the State's illustrious son. A portion of the address says:

"Some Mexicans, forgetting all they owe to the era of peace inaugurated and upheld by the illustrious son of Oaxaca, forgetting even their own personal wealth and prosperity which are the fruits of what he has done for the country, have risen in rebellion and have precipitated a fratricidal strife that is most hateful and unpatriotic, owing to the dangers in which it has involved the nation, jeopardizing even its sovereignty.

Willing to Welcome Him Back.

"We sons of Oaxaca are bound by our antecedents, by our culture, and even by our dignity and self-respect to give our support to the man whom we and our fathers have trusted and who has done nothing to forfeit the respect due to his great achievements—achievements admired more perhaps by the foreigner than by our own people.

"It is our duty to rally to his side; and if—though we cannot believe it or look for it—the rest of the country should turn ungratefully from him, it is for us to receive him with all honor as the favorite of the State, with whom Oaxaca parted half a century ago for the good of the country at large, and whose disappearance future generations will lament unavailingly when it is too late."

Would Fight All Mexico.

Unquestionably Oaxaca is ready to receive Gen. Diaz, to fortify her mountain strongholds, and to fight the rest of Mexico if need be for his sake. This challenge to the rest of the republic finds many echoes in other sections of Mexico City, which has a strong Diaz following.

In practically every State the established Government has well defined and representative adherents. Evidences of their loyalty are coming in more rapidly than ever, perhaps because they think the Government needs all their help at present, perhaps because the people are now beginning to realize at what a tremendous cost a new government can be established.

All admit that the Diaz administration needed a severe lesson to make it realize its shortcomings, but the pendulum, which at first swung far Maderoward, is swinging back toward the man who, despite his 80 years, despite the Council of his Ministry, and despite the clamor of a powerful faction in the nation, has placed his back to the wall, whipped out the sword of Tecoac and stands ready to sacrifice his life for what he believes is for the country's good.

8,000 Rebels Around Atlixco.

Atlixco, Puebla, continues under siege, and there is little hope that its ultimate fall can be averted. This means that Puebla City will be besieged within twenty-four hours. Atlixco merchants and others in Puebla, in view of the depleted garrison and the limited means of defense, are using their influence to provide for the surrender of the city without fighting. They say that the horrors of the siege will only slightly delay the fall of the city.

A rebel army 8,000 strong is concentrated around Atlixco. It is naturally protected and the defense is rendered stronger by the judicious placing of machine guns and modern field guns.

The territory of Tepic seems all at once to have burst into a blaze of rebellion. No less than twenty bands of insurrectos are reported to be converging on the territorial capital.

General Attack on Torreon Begun.

The garrison at Torreon, the thriving modern city in the centre of the rich Laguna cotton district, the headquarters of the Continental Rubber Company in Mexico and the collecting point for the great Guggenheim smelters, is locked to-day in a desperate struggle with Gen. Luis Moya, who is at the head of 2,000 men.

Gen. Logero, who commands the Federal garrison, answered a demand for its surrender by ordering a volley fired from the breastworks he has thrown up at the end of the main street. Gen. Moya, who has one rapid firer and has his men plentifully prepared with small bombs, then ordered a general attack on the city.

Latest advices state that Gen. Moya's men are taking a lesson from the fight at Juarez and other actions in the revolt, and is placing his chief reliance on the use of dynamite. As the attack was not unexpected, a large number of residents escaped.

One hundred Federals, who were sent out from Saltillo met the rebel Artegea and were defeated, losing one of their rapid firers.

Teziutlan, Puebla, the centre of the R. S. Towne interests, is threatened.

The uprising in Campeche has taken a more alarming turn. Troops have been sent out from Merida to meet a force of rebels who have appeared at Paso del Machol.

Rebels May Stop Reyes.

Fear is entertained for the safety of the Mexican Railway to Vera Cruz. This is an English property which has been heretofore unmolested on account of the foreign ownership. The fears now are due to the nearness of the date for the arrival of Gen. Bernardo Reyes. Friends of Reyes plan a big reception for him at Vera Cruz. He will arrive there May 20, and is due here May 22.

The attitude of Gov. Dehesa of Vera Cruz is widely criticised, as he is accused of hampering the work of the Government in meeting the rebellion on account of the failure to give him a Cabinet place. Gov. Dehesa asserts, and is supported by several newspapers, that the handling of troops throughout the State is being retarded by the refusal of trainmen to operate troop trains.

The Government sources continue to hold out hopeful signs of peace. Minister de la Barra, in a statement to-day, said:

"The German version of a treaty between Japan and Mexico is as untrue as are all the other versions. Once again I wish to deny absolutely, in the most formal and official manner, the existence of any secret treaty between Japan and Mexico."

REBELS CUT OFF CANANEA.

Cabral Demands Surrender of Mining Camp—Autos to Rescue Americans.

CANANEA, Sonora, Mexico, May 12.—Cananea's garrison of 750 men was lulled into a sense of security early to-day by word brought by scouts that the main body of Juan Cabral's insurrecto force of 2,000 had struck camp and started southward. It was awakened to feverish activity later by reports of rebel operations intended to isolate Cananea. The Southern Pacific Railroad between Cananea and Naco and between Del Rio and Molino, on the way to Hermosillo, was put out of commission by the destruction of bridges, thus cutting Cananea off. The only means of communicating with the outside world now is the Federal telegraph wire to Nogales.

All available men are engaged in strengthening the defenses in the fear that the insurrectos are about to deliver their long-expected attack.

NACO, Mexico, May 12.—A dispatch received here late to-day from Cananea stated that Juan Cabral had sent a courier into camp demanding its surrender. Every available automobile in Naco, Ariz., has been sent to Cananea to bring out the American women and children.

NOGALES, Mexico, May 12.—Col. Reynaldo Diaz, with the force of 500 Mexican Federals, who evacuated Agua Prieta early yesterday, arrived last night in Magdalena without having encountered resistance.

When Col. Diaz arrived in Magdalena he learned that a body of sixty insurrectos had held up the Southern Pacific Railroad northbound train for Nogales at Santa Ana, sixty-five miles south of Nogales, and had burned a bridge between Magdalena and Santa Ana to prevent his passage southward. The Federal train proceeded very slowly toward Hermosillo.

There is a general concentration of rebel bands between Magdalena and Hermosillo, and it is scarcely likely that they will permit Diaz to reach Hermosillo without a fight. The insurrecto forces greatly outnumber the Federals.

Messengers on a train that left Nogales this morning in an attempt to reach Guaymas, returned to-night, having been unable to penetrate beyond Llano. They reported that Federals, trying to reach Hermosillo in the retreat from Agua Prieta, fired on Llano and Santa Ana as their train passed through. They used machine guns, posted on top of the cars, and poured a murderous fire into the houses, killing women and children.

BISBEE, Ariz., May 12.—"Diamond Dick," a Swiss Captain, fighting under Juan Cabral, to-day declared that "Red" Lopez, one of the rebel leaders, was under arrest, and would be tried by court-martial under Gen. Madero at Juarez. He is charged with having "sold out" at the second battle of Agua Prieta, in accordance with an agreement with certain Americans, who did not wish their property interfered with.

REBEL GOVERNMENT TO EXTEND ITS SWAY

Provisional Officers Plan to Control Chihuahua and Sonora.

SEIZE JUAREZ CUSTOMS

Tax Will Hereafter Be Devoted to the Support of the Insurrection—Marking Time on Peace Conferences.

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 12.—The Provisional Government made such progress in its work of organization to-day that in a short time, it is believed, Chihuahua and Sonora will be administered by Provisional State and municipal officers.

The establishment of garrisons in various places in Northern Mexico, the installation of local officers, and the opening of railway and telegraph lines is going on rapidly under the direction of Provisional President Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and his Cabinet. Although nothing was done to-day by officers of the Provisional Government respecting peace negotiations, the fact that there is a deadlock over procedure became more pronounced. The Federal Government and the Provisional Government are standing their distance, each waiting for the other to make the first move.

The insurrectos contend that Judge Carbajal suspended the negotiations after they had submitted a proposal asking President Diaz to announce his intention of resigning. Now that President Diaz has done that, though the insurrectos say it was done in a vague way, the insurrectos are awaiting some word from Judge Carbajal, who has maintained the status quo, not having received any instructions to do otherwise. Unofficial go-betweens are again busy in an effort to bring the two sides together.

They expected to get an audience with Provisional President Madero to-day, but were not successful. To-morrow it is expected he will listen to what is believed to be their new argument. Having dissolved their original peace commission of three, the rebels now may conduct their peace negotiations through their newly organized Department of Foreign Relations, of which Dr. Vasquez Gomez is Secretary.

A gleam of hope for peace lies in the fact that some rebel leaders have declared they would be willing to accept Gen. Diaz's manifesto as sufficient evidence of his intention to resign, and to go ahead with peace negotiations, provided the Government consents to the immediate appointment of Governors for fourteen of the twenty-seven States and to a general transfer of power into the hands of the revolutionary party. What will come of this plan is not known, but it is said to be favored by prominent insurrecto leaders. With the question of the President's resignation eliminated, progress toward peace would be certain.

On the other hand, some of the insurrecto leaders believe that their military successes soon will include Mexico City, whither the Provisional Government will be moved, and that submission at this time hardly would afford as complete a transfer of political power as surely would follow a complete military triumph. It is pointed out that the rebel chiefs in the South would consent to nothing but the immediate abdication of President Diaz.

Secretary of War Carranza was in conference to-day with the military chiefs arranging for the apportioning of garrisons in various parts of Chihuahua and Sonora and for the movement of the large force of insurrectos in Juarez toward the South. As the railroad between here and Casas Grandes has been opened it will be possible for the insurrectos to convey their men rapidly to any point along the line, and they feel in complete control of the situation.

The War Department is in constant communication by telegraph now with insurrecto chiefs south of here, and little fear is entertained that Gen. Rabago or other Federal commanders will be able to make much headway.

There are six cases of typhus in the hospital hitherto used by the Federal Government for its sick and wounded soldiers. One man died yesterday of the disease. The other patients have been removed to another part of the town and quarantined. There also are two cases of typhoid fever in the hospital.

Americans returning here from Chihuahua by automobile to-day reported that Gen. Rabago with 300 Federal soldiers was still at Terrazas, 200 miles south of here, awaiting orders. An insurrecto force of about 250 men left here to meet them should they advance.

ADMITS DIAZ WILL REMAIN.

Limantour Says He Will Even Make His Intentions Clear.

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—Gen. Diaz will not leave the Presidency while the country is in its present state of unrest, according to a statement made to-night by Finance Minister José Yves Limantour. He also said that Diaz stood ready to state in more explicit terms than those contained in his recent manifesto, if necessary, his attitude with reference to his retirement. The President's declaration of last Sunday was made in good faith and with the desire to serve the interests of his country, Mr. Limantour said. There was no subterfuge in his declaration. He meant what he said—namely, that he would lay down the reins of government when he could do so without danger that anarchy or chaos might follow his action.

Minister Limantour made these explanations as summarizing the intentions of the administration. He declared that, following the issuance of the President's manifesto and its rejection by the revolutionists, a message was sent to Judge Carbajal, the Government's peace representative, asking that Madero and his followers state in exactly what terms they desired the announcement that the President was willing to resign. Gen. Diaz would explain, said Mr. Limantour, precisely what he meant by his expression, "when his conscience tells him that he can do so without giving over the country to anarchy."

This message should have been in Madero's hands for three days, but up to to-night no reply had been returned. Judge Carbajal will wait in El Paso a day or two longer, under instructions to accept and transmit any further proposal the rebels may desire to make.

What the return of former Gov. Reyes would mean to the country the Minister could not state. When Reyes left Mexico he was perhaps the most popular man in the republic. How he will be received by his countrymen after his long sojourn abroad has been the subject of wide speculation. That all those who urged him to run for the Vice Presidency or even the Presidency in the last political campaign have not proved disloyal was shown to-night when there was held a meeting of representatives of the various Reyes Clubs in the capital. The public had almost forgotten the existence of these organizations, but it appears that the coming of Reyes has served to give them new life, and it may be that he will not be long in regaining his former following.

SALINA CRUZ MAY BE LOST.

Pacific Terminal of Tehuantepec Railway Probably in Rebel Hands.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 12.—From reports brought by the American-Hawaiian liner Nebraska, which has arrived here from Salina Cruz, State of Oaxaca, Mexico, the western terminal of the Tehuantepec Railway, it appears probable that the rebels are in possession of that place.

According to Capt. Knight of the Nebraska, five days ago, when the steamer left Salina Cruz, the rebel forces were at San Geronimo, about twenty-five miles north of Salina Cruz. They had taken possession of the railroad office at that point, and were preparing for an advance upon the port. The people of the latter city did not plan any resistance, and it is believed it capitulated without loss of life.

Possession of Salina Cruz would be of great benefit to the rebels in the south of Mexico, as they could easily get supplies of arms through it. Three steamship lines make it a port of call, and from it military supplies could be sent into the States of Oaxaca, Vera Cruz, and Chiapas, where the insurrectos are now poorly armed. They would also assume importance internationally because of the large trade involved. Through the efforts of Gen. Diaz the port was made a model one. Great breakwaters extend far out to sea, and electric cranes are installed to unload vessels.

CHIHUAHUA AGAIN MENACED.

Central Region to the South Almost Given Over to Anarchy.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, May 10, (by Automobile to El Paso, May 12.)—Two thousand insurrectos, part of the forces that have been operating in the district south of this city, are reported to-day to be marching on Chihuahua. Already the advance guards are encamped around the city.

An armed mob just before daylight to-day entered Nombre de Dios, a suburb, looted all the stores, took all the horses and escaped, despite the presence of 1,500 Federal troops in nearby barracks. Eulalia, an important mining camp twelve miles east of the city, has been abandoned by all the municipal officers, and is now regulated by Americans employed in the mines.

This city, long in dread of attack, is in greater fear than ever because of the extreme violence by the insurrectos in their northward march. The whole middle district of the republic embracing Durango, Torreon, and intermediate towns, has been in a state approaching anarchy. The insurrectos have destroyed all the remaining telegraph and railroad lines to this city. No reserve supply of provisions was taken in here before the railroad was closed, and much criticism is made by citizens because of the neglect of the Federal Government.

Parral, a mining camp on a branch line from Jiminez, south of this place, sent out a plea for help because 1,500 insurrectos surrounded the town, and had captured Minas Luevas, a suburb. An armored train was sent out from here. It went past Jiminez toward Parral, but suddenly stopped and came back. The official report states that insurrectos were seen ahead in such great numbers that it was deemed unsafe to proceed. The effort to extend aid to the besieged town therefore was abandoned.

Guadalupe, southwest of here, was entered by 700 men, who killed the jefe politico, a lieutenant, and several Federal employes. All the stores were looted and the municipal records burned.

Rosario, further south, reports a condition of anarchy, many of the officials having fled. Indes, south of Rosario, was sacked and taken after twenty people were killed.

In the territory adjacent to and south of Torreon, Coahuila, towns have been invaded, stores looted, railways and telegraphs destroyed, and jefe politicos killed off, while in many instances the Federal troops stood by utterly helpless. Those in authority do not conceal their belief that the conditions about Torreon and the larger section of the interior, embracing the cities of Zacatecas, Durango, Aguas Calientes, and Parral, are fast becoming a greater menace to the Federal Government than Madero's forces.

REBELS NEAR NUEVO LAREDO.

Porfirio Diaz Also in Danger—Defense Likely to be Slight.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 12.—It was learned to-night that the Federal commander in Nuevo Laredo expects to be attacked by the insurrectos on Sunday or Monday. A force of 500 rebels are at Guerrero, State of Tamaulipas, seven miles from the Texas town of Zapata and about thirty southeast of Nuevo Laredo. The Federal force at Nuevo Laredo numbers only 210. No attempt at fortification or laying of entanglements has been made, and it is thought here that after firing a few shots to satisfy their honor the Federals will surrender.

In Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, 200 miles north of Nuevo Laredo and opposite Eagle Pass, are about 200 Federals. There are no fortifications, and insurrectos are reported eighteen miles away.

Among the refugees who arrived to-day was J. F. Woodyard, a structural engineer, who has offices in Monterey, El Paso, Tampico, and Yucatan. He brought his family from Monterey. He said there is likely to be a shortage of provisions there and, while willing to take chances personally, he did not fancy the experience for his family.

"There are 500 insurrectos fifteen miles south of Monterey," said Mr. Woodyard, "and they can take the city any time they want it."

Representatives of Candido, Aguilar and Antonio Figueroa, Mexican rebel leaders in Vera Cruz and Guerrero, after spending the day here yesterday, left last night for El Paso to meet Francisco I. Madero and discuss plans of procedure in the revolution. Upon accomplishing this they will return and report. Aguilar has 5,000 men and Figueroa 8,000, they said.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The desertion with their guns of forty soldiers, or half of the local barracks at Tampico, was reported to the State Department to-day.

G. BOLDT NOT KILLED.

Hotel Proprietor's Son Assures Guests He Was Not in Battle.

Accompanying the accounts describing the rebel attack on Tijuana came the report that George Boldt, the son of the owner of the Waldorf, had been killed while leading a rebel attack upon the border city.

The report occasioned excitement at the Waldorf, and the halls were thronged with persons anxious to learn the details of the death of Mr. Boldt. The latter, meantime, was calmly having supper in the dining room with his relatives. One of the dispatches reporting his death was sent to him, and he made haste to appear and assure his friends that he was alive.

"They complain that the Mexicans are shooting people on our side of the border," said Mr. Boldt. "Well, they must be terribly bad shots if they aim at a man in Tijuana and hit another in New York."

The report was explained later, when Mr. Boldt, Sr., said that he sent a telegram to Tijuana on Wednesday inquiring if all was going well with Joseph Sepuppida, a relative of his wife's, who is closely connected with President Diaz and who lives on the outskirts of the border city.

NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO--KNOX

upon this Government, or in favor of any foreign Government, no international obligation, the rights of foreign Governments in matters of neutrality being derived wholly from the rules and principles of international law

All the arms surrendered by the Mexican Federal soldiers to the American office at Douglas, Arizona, after the capture of Agua Prieta by the rebels several weeks ago will be turned over to the Mexican Consul at Douglas. The commanding officer at Douglas was so directed to-day.

The killing and wounding of Americans echoed in Congress to-day, when resolutions were introduced by Representative Fowler of Illinois, asking the Secretary of War for information concerning the deaths of American citizens within twenty-five miles of the Mexican border as a result of the revolution, and providing for election of a special committee of seven members of the House to inquire into the wounding and killing of these citizens and the damage to American property on the border. Both resolutions were referred to the Rules Committee.

At the request of David E. Thompson, former American Ambassador to Mexico, the State Department to-day denied that Mr. Thompson had signed a petition to the American Consul at Acapulco appealing for the protection of Americans there.

STOVER DIDN'T PLAY FAIR, SAYS PARSONS

Commissioner Misrepresented Evidence Regarding Prof. Whitney, He Declares.

QUOTES IGNORED TESTIMONY

To Show That His View Was Upheld by Head of Bureau of Soils Despite Lack of Official Record.

Samuel Parsons, Jr., as he looked over yesterday the evidence taken before Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick in the investigation of his action as landscape architect of the Park Department, came across the testimony of G. L. Maynardier, the Washington soil expert, and found to his surprise that it entirely bore out his own statements that Prof. Milton Whitney, chief of the Bureau of Soils of the Department of Agriculture, had approved his plan of resoiling Central Park. No reference to this passage in the record appeared in Commissioner Fosdick's report to the Mayor, and in the hurried scrutiny which Andrew D. Parker, Mr. Parson's lawyer, was able to give to the testimony in the 115 minutes he had it in his possession before the Park Board dismissed Mr. Parsons, it was not discovered.

In Mr. Parsons's opinion the record shows that Commissioner Stover misrepresented at the board meeting the position of Prof. Whitney. The matter arose through Mr. Stover asking Mr. Parsons what authority he could quote for his specification of the soil needed for Central Park and his plan of resoiling in face of the adverse opinion of Mr. Maynardier.

Mr. Parsons, through his counsel, first spoke of Prof. E. W. Hilgard of the University of California, and Mr. Stover attacked that authority. Then Mr. Parsons brought up the name of Prof. Whitney.

"Where is your evidence of his support?" asked Mr. Stover.

"We can produce it, if you will give us time," was the reply.

"Perhaps I can produce it," said the Commissioner, and proceeded to read a letter stating that in the Bureau of Soils at Washington there was no record of any approval of the Central Park resoiling plans.

Mr. Parsons declared he was quite willing to summon Prof. Whitney as a witness, if he got a hearing, and in the hurried proceeding the matter was allowed to drop.

"It now appears," said Mr. Parsons last night, "that I could have proved my case absolutely from the official record if I had received the common justice of being permitted to know what had been testified about me. Please notice that all that was officially denied in the letter Mr. Stover read was that there was anything on record at Washington to support my position.

"But I never contended that I had consulted Prof. Whitney formally. What took place was that in 1908 I was in Washington and saw Prof. Whitney and talked over Central Park. I specially mentioned clay and the Professor took down a geological map and pointed out that I could obtain my requirements from much where I have done so. Two or three men from the Bureau of Soils came over here, went over the park for two or three days and when I was again in Washington, within a month or so, I again saw Mr. Whitney, talked the matter over with him, told him what my specifications were and received from him the statement that it seemed all right. But this was merely done verbally and I never maintained that I had an official report from the Bureau.

"However Prof. Whitney's attitude seems clear enough from the evidence that Mr. Maynardier gave on the stand."

A literal transcript of part of Mr. Maynardier's evidence reads:

Q.—You say you saw Mr. Whitney on April 9. How did you happen to see him on that day? A.—By appointment. I received a telegram from Mr. Whitney on Saturday, the 8th of April, asking me to meet him at the Republican Club in West Fortieth Street at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Q.—Did you meet him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say? A.—That I had placed the Bureau of Soils in a very embarrassing position.

Q.—How had you done that? A.—I presume by not advocating resoiling.

Q.—What made him think that you were not going to advocate resoiling? A.—I cannot imagine. I did have on the 9th of April a little statement, which practically represented my views, in The New York Tribune, but Mr. Whitney had not seen that article until I gave him a copy of it out of my pocket in the reception room in the Republican Club.

Q.—In some way or other he gathered the impression that you were going to report against the resoiling of Central Park? A.—Yes.

Q.—And he told you that you had placed the Bureau of Soils in a very embarrassing position? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why, did he state? A.—Not very clearly.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said that I had placed the Bureau of Soils in a very embarrassing position, that they had gone on record with certain recommendations for the treatment of Central Park, which included resoiling. I told him that I was unaware of that, that I did not know that any recommendation had ever been made from the Bureau of Soils other than those made by Wilder and Reed in 1908, which advocated plowing up and sowing a crop of corn or potatoes, something of that sort on those lawns [illegible] needed renewing. He said, "No, that [illegible] the case, that they had advocated resoiling." I told him that I differed with him and did not think that it did. I asked him if he would go up to Central Park with me and look at the conditions, and he said he did not have time. He said that Central Park was worth about $500,000,000, the real estate in it, and that the City of New York ought to be willing to spend quite a large sum of money for its preservation and restoration. I told him I had not considered the value of Central Park in dollars and cents nor the cost of preservation or restoration; that as far as I could see it might not or it might be an expensive proposition, but that from my standpoint it required tile drainage, it required turning over of the soil, and the raising up of the hard soil that I think is formed there, the reseeding of grass, and more care in the future to keep out troublesome weeds and plants; that I had seen very little need of resoiling, and that I was diametrically opposed to resoiling in the popular notion of putting from six inches to one foot of soil over the whole Park, which I understood from general conversation is the plan of resoiling generally contemplated. Our conversation lasted about twenty minutes. He dismissed me again, stating that I had put the bureau in a very embarrassing position, and said that he had an appointment with a gentleman who was waiting for him on the second floor, and signified that the interview was at an end and I left.

Q.—Your interview then was not very pleasant, I take it? A.—Very quiet, but the professor seemed to be very much miffed with the attitude I had taken, although how he knew I had taken it I am at a loss to understand, but considering that I knew my business I remained perfectly firm.

Q.—Who was the gentleman he was to see on the second floor? A.—He did not say.

Q.—Have you any idea? A.—No.

Mr. Maynardier, who had already expressed in detail his reasons for opposing the resoiling plan, went on to say that he wrote to Prof. Whitney asking for the recommendations of the Bureau of Soils. Commissioner Fosdick later put in evidence the letter formally stating that no such recommendations were in the records.

"I leave it," said Mr. Parsons last night, "to the judgment of the citizens of New York whether it was a fair thing for Commissioner Stover to spring this letter on me in the midst of a public meeting without giving me an inkling of the attitude Prof. Whitney assumed at this interview or of the circumstances under which the letter was written. I still maintain that the letter in no way contradicts my own statement that Prof. Whitney did verbally approve of my resoiling plan and of my specifications for the soil required."

Everwear HOSIERY

For Men, Women and Children

To make two blades of grass grow where but one grew hitherto is not a circumstance to making one pair of hose suffice where six pairs failed before. Yet that is the plain, unvarnished story of Everwear Hosiery. Made of special yarns whose tensile strength gives them unusual durability, each pair is guranteed proof against holes for a period of six months, or will be replaced free of charge. But Everwear Hosiery does not make its appeal on durability alone. It is also a hosiery of high lustre and soft texture, and costs no more to buy than any other good quality hose. And in the end it costs less, for one pair of Everwear Hosiery will outwear six pairs of ordinary hose.

CROWD AT VITERBO HAS DISAPPOINTMENT

Oral Exchanges in Confrontation of Alfano and Abbatemaggio Comparatively Mild.

FORMER JOKES ON BAGNOLI

Says Soldiers Could Have Heard Death Sentence There—Only Camorrists Understood Language of the Order.

VITERBO, May 12.—The great crowd that pressed into the Court of the Assizes this morning in anticipation of a violent scene between Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, and Enrico Alfano, alias "Erricone," whom the former has denounced as the guiding spirit in the Camorra, was disappointed. The exchanges were comparatively mild, Alfano maintaining a dignified composure and his accuser following the other's lead.

Several hours passed in an effort to establish whether the two first met in 1905 as Abbatemaggio asserts, or in 1906 as Alfano declares. On this point the jury heard to-day only the conflicting statements of these men.

The informer repeated his accusations against Erricone to the effect that he was the actual if not the acknowledged head of the Camorra, and primarily responsible for the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife. Erricone denied every charge. He said that Abbatemaggio had blackmailed Giovanni Rapi, the alleged Treasurer of the Camorra, and had denounced him to the authorities only when Rapi had been gone four days from Italy and so could no longer be the victim of extortion. Turning to the informer Erricone said:

"The truth is that you are the real murderer. We are your victims, but we will reply as lions."

To this Abbatemaggio responded grandiosely:

"I will be a lion of accusation."

At this point adjournment was taken for luncheon.

At the afternoon session Erricone said the assertion of Abbatemaggio that the banquet in the Aida tavern in Bagnoli, a suburb of Naples, was organized for the purpose of condemning Cuocolo to death was simply laughable, considering that fifty persons participated in the feast, and that the barracks of the police and the municipal guard overlooked the spot and that it was impossible, therefore, for any one to speak without being overheard by the authorities.

To this Abbatemaggio retorted that it was unnecessary to shout at the dinner, and that, besides, the Camorra had a jargon which would have been incomprehensible to any outsiders who might overhear it.

Erricone, however, still insisted that Abbatemaggio's statement was absurd, declaring that even if he had desired to have Cuocolo done to death he would not have sought the assistance of so many persons in its accomplishment.

"Although weak-looking," said Erricone, savagely glaring at Abbatemaggio, "never in my whole life have I needed the assistance of anybody to avenge myself, if vengeance were necessary. Everybody knows that."

Abbatemaggio, after this, added fresh particulars to his accusations, and Erricone, who had grown more excited, shouted:

"You are like the hyena, which, knowing that a man is dead, goes forth to dig up his corpse. When you knew I was arrested, the first time, you went to steal the harness of my horse."

The trial will continue Saturday.

SINKS SPANISH BOAT; 5 DIE.

British Steamer Westmoreland Rams the Debayo Off Goodwin Sands.

DOVER, England, May 12.—The British steamer Westmoreland collided with the Spanish steamer Debayo from Huelva for Rotterdam, off the Goodwin Sands to-day.

The impact was so violent that the Spanish craft sank two minutes later. Her Captain, chief officer, and three sailors were drowned.

DUBLIN FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Lord Mayor Presents Petition to Commons Urging Enactment of a Bill.

LONDON, May 12.—The advocates of woman's suffrage gave their cause another impetus in the House of Commons to-day when the Lord Mayor of Dublin, John J. Farrell, at the head of a deputation from the corporation of the Irish capital presented at the bar of the House a petition urging the passage of a female suffrage bill at the present session of Parliament.

The members of the deputation appeared in the full regalia of their offices, and the ceremony was attended with picturesque details.

TO ATTACK FEZ TO-DAY.

Beleaguered City Hears That Tribesmen Plan a General Assault.

FEZ, Morocco, May 5; by Courier to Tangier, May 12.—In skirmishing to-day between the Sultan's troops and the rebels three of the Sultan's soldiers were killed.

The news reaches headquarters from the Sultan's spies that the tribesmen who are besieging Fez have prepared for a general attack upon the city to-morrow. The Sultan's troops are taking up positions to repel the assault.

GOUT STILL AFFECTS POPE.

Public Audiences Suspended, but His Physicians Are Not Alarmed.

ROME, May 12.—Pope Pius X. is still feeling the effects of his recent attack of gout, and the public audiences planned for this morning were suspended. Those who had obtained invitations were turned back when they arrived at the Vatican.

The general condition of His Holiness is, however, giving little alarm to his physicians, who permitted the private audiences set for to-day.

Expels Jews Without Permits.

YEKATERINOSLOV, Russia, May 12.—The provincial Governor of Yekaterinoslov has given orders for the expulsion, from the villages of the province, of all Jews not possessed of permits of residence. He has also threatened the police with severe punishment if they fail to discover those subject to expulsion.

LADY DECIES TREATED FOR APPENDICITIS

Operation Decided On at Once Rather Than Wait Until After the Coronation.

IS RESTING COMFORTABLY

Recurrent Attacks to Which She Had Been Subject for Two Years Had Lately Been More Severe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 12.—After two years of recurrent attacks of appendicitis, Lady Decies was successfully operated on at noon to-day, and to-night is resting comfortably.

The operation was performed by Dr. James Collier, whom repute names as the most skillful surgeon in London for this particular operation, with Dr. Scott, the Decies family physician, in attendance.

Lord Decies told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the attacks to which his wife had been for so long subject had recently become more severe and frequent, and it was therefore decided to have the operation performed immediately, instead of running possible great risks by waiting until after the coronation.

"Lady Decies has been very brave through the trying time," he said. "You can imagine her pluck in going through the ordeal, trying enough at an ordinary time, having been presented at Court on Wednesday night, and knowing all the while that she was going to be operated on in a few hours.

"We were to have dined with the Duke and Duchess of Connaught to-night; but everything has been canceled for the present, although I hope she will be well enough to spend a day or two at Ascot."

Messages of sympathy and inquiries as to the condition of the patient have been pouring in all day to 4 Hereford Gardens, the Decies home, where the patient is lying. Members of the royal family, including the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, are among the inquirers.

When rumors concerning the former Vivien Gould's health were set afloat last week, inquiry elicited the positive reply to the effect that she was perfectly well.

LAFAYETTE'S BODY FOUND.

Searchers Unearth It from Ruins of the Edinburgh Theatre Fire.

EDINBURGH, May 12.—Lying amid the fire ruins of the Empire Music Hall in the pit, where the counterweights of the iron curtain were sunk, searchers this evening found the body of "Lafayette the Great," the vaudeville performer, who, with a number of his company, perished in the fire that destroyed the theatre several nights ago.

The body was still clad in silk tights and was in a good state of preservation. The features of the dead illusionist were easily recognized by his manager, and the identification was made complete by a number of valuable rings which were still on Lafayette's fingers.

A body previously taken from the ruins, and supposed to have been that of Lafayette, was taken to-day to Glasgow and cremated. This body, however, proves to have been that of Richards, who acted as Lafayette's double in carrying out his illusion.

Another member of the vaudeville company died to-day, this being the tenth fatality resulting from the fire.

SUGAR TAX TOO LUCRATIVE.

Lloyd George So Tells Delegation Who Want It Abolished.

LONDON, May 12.—Representatives of those who are urging upon the Government the remission of the sugar tax had an interview with David Lloyd George to-day, and asked him to abolish this provision for revenue from the forthcoming budget.

The Chancellor was sympathetic, saying that he agreed that the sugar duty was oppressive to the poor and interfered with a valuable industry. It was most disirable, he thought, that it should be remitted, if he could extract the same amount of taxes from another source. As it was, he could not afford to surrender a tax that was bringing in $15,000,000.

ALEXANDRA AT SANDRINGHAM

Queen Mother to Remain There Till After the Coronation.

LONDON, May 12.—Queen Mother Alexandra, who returned a week ago from a cruise in the Mediterranean, has taken up a residence at Sandringham Hall, where she will remain until after the coronation.

During the cruise and since her return the Queen Mother has enjoyed good general health. She reached here in time to be present at the memorial service on the anniversary of the death of King Edward, and her distress during the service was marked. As yet she has scarcely recovered from the strain of this sorrow, but otherwise the royal widow is in excellent health.

FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Clergymen of Eleven Sects Form Committee to Promote Arbitration.

Members of eleven Protestant bodies of this city have joined in a committee to promote industrial arbitration. With this committee Roman Catholic leaders in social service have offered to co-operate. The aim is to study conditions in industrial affairs, and in this task the committee has the promise of collaboration by commissions in the various bodies.

At the head of the committee is the Rev. Dr. A. G. Cummins of Poughkeepsie, Chairman of the Episcopal Church's Social Service Commission. With him will serve the Rev. Dr. George William Douglas of the Cathedral parish of St. John the Divine. Other members are the Rev. Charles S. Macfarland and the Rev. Edward F. Sanderson, Congregationalists; the Rev. Dr. Henry E. Cobb, Reformed; the Rev. William L. Fisher, Church of the Disciples; the Rev. Dr. Frank O. Hall, Universalist; the Rev. Dr. F. Mason North, Methodist; the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer, Unitarian; the Rev. Charles Stelzle, Presbyterian; the Rev. Dr. George U. Wenner, Lutheran; the Rev. Leighton Williams, Baptist, and Rabbi Samuel Schulman of Temple Beth-El in Fifth Avenue.

Dr. Cummins, the Chairman, said yesterday:

"We want the public to know that we intend to inform ourselves on general industrial conditions. Immediately any strike or other trouble comes we intend to look into the merits of both sides. Finding them we can make them public and let the people decide. We believe such a course will, in many cases, bring about arbitration."

DO YOU NOTICE

in the letters we are publishing, the consistent reference to our employment for future work?

The following letter from J. J. Shubert, Esq., of Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Inc., for whom we built the Lyric Theatre, in Boston, furnishes another example:

"I want to take this opportunity of complimenting you upon your work on the new Sam S. Shubert Theatre, Boston. I assure you the work, time and everything appertaining to the building is most satisfactory and far beyond my expectations as to time. I look forward with great pleasure to continuing our business relationship with reference to the construction of theatres or other buildings."

In our ensuing advertisement we shall see what the Architect has to say about our work on this same operation. Confirmation strengthens a case.

TEACH THE TRADES, ADVISES ROOSEVELT

Declares That Expansion Is Needed in Vocational Training in Our Schools.

PRESENTS MOSELY'S GIFT

Picture, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" Turned Over to De Witt Clinton High School.

J. C. Dollman's picture, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" showing unemployed workmen of London spending the night on a bench on the Thames embankment, which has been sent to the Board of Education of New York by Alfred Mosely of London as an expression of gratitude to the board for its co-operation with his educational work, was formally presented yesterday afternoon by Theodore Roosevelt at the De Witt Clinton high school.

There was an elaborate programme, including music by the De Witt boys and the Wadleigh high school girls. Col. Roosevelt was received by the audience standing and with prolonged clapping and waving of programmes, and was called during the exercises the "most illustrious citizen of the United States." Miss Olivia Leventritt of the Board of Education, Chairman of the Committee on Vocational Schools and Industrial Training, accepted the picture for the board.

Mr. Mosely, who organized the English Education Commission and arranged the tours of English teachers to this country and of American teachers to London, said in a letter regarding his gift that he wished the picture to emphasize to the people of this country the need of vocational training, so that the sad conditions the preponderance brought about by unskilled labor in England and the European cities might never be repeated in this country.

President Egerton Winthrop, Jr., of the Board of Education, presided, and introduced Col. Roosevelt, who said:

"I know all teachers will agree with me when I say that I have a weary contempt for the cuckoo type of parent, the father or mother who deposits the child in the school and then goes off feeling that all the rest of the responsibility rests with the teacher."

"The poorest economy of the citizen and taxpayer is to cut down the salaries of the teachers." Col. Roosevelt said that he had felt obliged to accept the invitation to speak on this occasion because of his strong belief in the need of industrial education for the whole country.

"Any one who has paid attention to education matters," he said, "and that should include every American citizen worthy to be called so, must see the need of making changes in the educational system that it may do what we demand of it. We must train toward and not away from the shop and factory, and if I was in the country I should say toward the farm. Some of the best educated people I have ever known were not perfect in spelling, and I don't mean reformed spelling.

"Mr. Maxwell," turning to the Superintendent, "you have done us a great service in promoting the musical work in the schools, as we have seen here to-day. It is a very nice thing to play the viol and to sing, but it is also nice to work and cook."

After paying his usual compliment to mothers in which he said: "There is nothing as exhausting or as difficult as to be a good mother," Col. Roosevelt concluded by saying:

"I don't wish a diminution in cultural work, but a great expansion in vocational, technical, and industrial. It must be extensive and intensive—no smattering, but in one or two lines to do the best work possible."

After the general applause the De Witt Clinton boys gave their school cheer, and following the Colonel from the rooms, cheered him again outside the building.

Supt. Maxwell told of the dangers to uneducated workers in factories where foreigners taken in at the lowest wages were frequently maimed or lost their lives because they could not speak English or be made to understand.

SAYS SHE'S PRIEST'S WIDOW.

Sues for Dower Rights in Property Once Owned by Catholic Clergyman.

Saying that she is the widow of the Rev. Father William A. Farrell, a Catholic priest, Angeline B. Duncan of this city has begun an action in the Supreme Court of Westchester County for what she terms her dower rights in property located in Mount Vernon's most exclusive section. Six or seven property owners in a section embracing East Lincoln Avenue, between Rich and North Fulton Avenues, and on both Rich and Fulton Avenues for several hundred feet, have been named as parties to the action.

The Rev. William A. Farrell died at the home of his mother in New Jersey in 1895. Angeline Duncan asserts he became her husband in 1888. She declares that Father Farrell deeded the property to his father, William Farrell, in 1894, and while she does not dispute the titles, she contends that the property as originally conveyed was subject to her dower rights which she has not received.

The present owners of the property declare that there is no question as to the titles, which they hold indirectly from Father Farrell. The titles have been passed on by the Westchester and Bronx Title Guarantee Company, and the United States Title and Guaranty Company. The two companies will defend the action. The only record of a Father Farrell in Westchester County dates back twenty years, when a priest by that name was located in Tuckahoe and Tarrytown.

Serge Suits Are in the Minds of Ten Thousand Men.

DOES A MAN EVER LOOK BETTER than he does in a well-fitting, well-made, true blue serge Suit? We doubt it. And so we make Serge Suits one of the SPECIALTIES for this Store for Men.

First we look to the quality of the serges. They must not fade or grow shabby under sun or rain. They must be the right shade of blue—not the purplish tone that is found in the cheaper serges.

Then we look to styles and to workmanship—and we will back Loeser Suits in these respects against any serge Suits that are made in New York City.

You do not need to buy a plain blue serge. There are many serges in which a pattern gives an extra touch of liveliness.

If you want to look as well as a man can look in a new serge Suit, if you want to pay as little as a man can pay for a GOOD blue serge Suit—you will make no mistake if you let the Loeser Store show you what it can do to-day.

New serge Suits are $12.50 to $25.

Other sack Suits—and in a wonderful range of new fabrics—are $12.50 to $35.

POLICE DUTY FORCED ON IVINS'S DAUGHTER

No Other Way, He Says, of Getting a Woman Habitually Drunk Out of Madison Square.

FINDS FORCE DEMORALIZED

By Carrying Personal Liberty Idea Too Far—Corrigan for Head of Police Removable Only by Courts.

William M. Ivins, in an address at the Conference on Reform of the Criminal Law and Procedure at Columbia University yesterday, told how his daughter was compelled to appear personally in the Night Court at two hearings against a drunken woman, who habitually dozed in Madison Square Park. Mr. Ivins used the story to illustrate the point he had made that, under present conditions, the police are afraid to make arrests in such cases for fear of reprimand for interfering with "personal liberty."

"I live near Madison Square," said Mr. Ivins, "and one day when we had some friends to luncheon as the guests were about to depart we found that one of the persons for whom the benches seem to be reserved in the park had tired of that resting place, and had laid her head on our front steps. She was comparatively well dressed, but in a stupor. The problem was to get our guests across the drunken lady or to remove her from the way. I called up Police Headquarters, and it took just an hour and forty-five minutes to clear the obstruction. The first policeman who came found the cause of the difficulty in a black pint bottle in the lady's dress. She also had a large roll of bills, as is frequently the case with women of her class. Three policemen in all and an ambulance succeeded in taking her to a place where she could be cared for.

"The next morning as I walked through Madison Square I saw her again occupying one of the benches, and sleeping peacefully. Why she had been discharged I don't know. She had already had several morning potations. I saw her there several times afterward, and she was evidently a regular.

Miss Ivins's Dilemma.

"It so happens that I am an advocate of woman suffrage, as a result of my studies under and contact with John Stuart Mill when I was a youth. It happens also that my wife is a suffragist, and my daughter, a young woman of 27, is also a suffragist. My daughter has a keen sense of civic duty, and when she saw the same drunken lady lying at full length on a park bench soon afterward surrounded by a group of children, who found amusement in her alcoholic eccentricities, my daughter suggested to a policeman that she should be taken into custody.

"'I can't do anything about it,' he told her. 'I have been reprimanded three times in the last two weeks for interfering with personal liberty, and I won't arrest her and take the chance of another reprimand.'

"The policeman explained to my daughter that the only conditions under which he would act were that she should make a complaint against the woman.

"'Does that mean going to court?' she asked him.

"'It does,' he said, 'and the Night Court at that.'

"My daughter was not quite sure that her civic duty obligated her to act as an unsalaried policeman, so she consulted her mother. Her mother said she thought it was her duty to make the complaint. So my daughter went back, and the policeman made the arrest.

"On the way to the station the woman turned to my daughter and said: 'This is very foolish. All you want is $20, and if you won't appear against me I will see that you get it.'

"Well, my daughter appeared against the woman in the Night Court, and was represented by counsel. The drunken lady, who, as I said, was pretty well dressed and had had time to freshen herself up, declared that she hadn't taken a drink, and the difficulty was due to the fact that my daughter was under the influence of liquor herself. The Magistrate continued the case till the next night, and again my daughter and her counsel had to visit the Night Court. This time the lady said my daughter was a habitual inebriate, but she was sent to the island for thirty days.

An Insulting Policeman.

"That is a sample of the police work that is thrown on the citizen under a system where the officers are afraid to make an arrest. Another experience that shows their demoralization and lack of responsibility was that of a young woman of my acquaintance who was a stranger in New York and thought Madison Square would be a pleasant place to sit and read. She must have pre-empted one of the benches reserved for the regulars. A policman in uniform made an offensive assault on her. I can't be more specific than that in this place, but it could not have been more offensive. She reported the matter to me, and I have been prayerfully trying to find that officer ever since. He was carrying his belt in his hand, or in other words was off duty, and the young woman was too hysterical to think of taking his number.

"These are the conditions you are bound to have if the rank and file feel that they will not be supported from above if they do the right thing, and have little fear of detection if they do the wrong thing. Our police force, taken by and large, is as honest, faithful, and trustworthy as any body of men of its size I know of, but man is a self-seeking animal acting under leadership. If something is wrong with the man at the head of the force it reduces the enthusiasm of the men. They may do good work, but they won't do their best work. If the policeman knows that if he does what he believes to be right he will be sustained, he works very differently than he does if he knows he is not going to be sustained, because the forces of the under world are always active and represent votes and influence, which is exercised under the excellent motto of 'personal liberty.'

"We may have a personal liberty that will destroy society. We talk of crime as detestable and of the criminal as though he should receive sympathy. Leniency is urged for the individual criminal which if applied to all of his class would destroy society. I will agree to the sentiment that it is better that ten guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer, although I would make an exception of the rich man and turn the sentiment about to read that it is better that ten innocent rich men should suffer than one guilty one escape, but in any case I say let us give the benefit of the doubt to society and not to the individual."

Corrigan for Permanent Head.

Magistrate Corrigan also discussed the New York police force in relation to crime.

"Some maintain," he said, "that the sole function of the police is to maintain outward order and decency and not to bother about what goes on behind locked doors. Perhaps it might well be that this should be the function of the uniformed force, leaving it the function of the police detective to prevent the crimes behind the doors.

"We cannot have a proper system unless the head of the force is in actual control. In New York City the head can be removed at any time by the Mayor, and the result is that the Commissioner is not the real ruler. There is always an appeal to the Mayor or to powers that might be supposed to influence the Mayor. This situation demoralizes the force. Before we will have proper discipline we must have a Commissioner who is there to stay. He should have a definite and long term, at least ten years, and should be removable only on charges before the Appellate Division, as is the case with Magistrates. It is also necessary to pay him a respectable salary.

"One of the most demoralizing things is the punishment of a policeman on every kind of charge. Men have been reinstated by the courts with opinions that are almost scathing, declaring that they were dismissed on the flimsiest kind of evidence. Several detectives were recently sent to do patrol duty not for failing to catch criminals, but because they were seen talking with a man whose ideas are understood or supposed to be inimical to the present administration."

Magistrate Corrigan said there would always be graft as long as there was human nature. People were always willing to pay part of what they made by breaking the laws for the privilege of doing so.

"Graft," he said, "always comes from dishonest people, and as long as we have dishonest people we will have graft. The only way to do away with it is to do away with the laws. Graft, however, does not seem to me the most important thing. It is of less consequence that ten saloon keepers have given policemen free drinks of beer or $5 notes than that ten murderers have been permitted to escape.

"Perhaps the greatest difficulty in having a Commissioner with a long term in office is the question of how to get him into office. Appointment by the Mayor is open to objections because he is governed by the Mayor's peculiar views, if he has any. Appointment by the Governor is in violation of home rule. I think it would be best if he were appointed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which is composed of men of different political faiths and diverse views."

Mr. Corrigan said the office of Magistrate should be made such that the right kind of men would be willing to make it their career, as was the case in London, instead of regarding it as a stepping stone to higher judicial office.

Magistrate Barlow told briefly of the operation of the Women's Night Court and regretted the necessity of fining women of the street, as there was no house of segregation to which to send them.

All this discussion was based on papers that had been read or were to have been read. One of these, by Supreme Court Justice Alfred R. Page, was on "The Powers and Importance of the Magistrates' Courts," which was read by Prof. Samuel M. Lindsay of the Department of Social Legislation at Columbia. Prof. John Bassett Moore read another on "The Difficulties of Extradition." Chief Magistrate McAdoo was to have read one on "The Police in Relation to Crime." He was not present and the paper was not read, but the subject furnished the chief topic for discussion. Papers on "The Probation System in the Juvenile Court," by Homer Folks and Arthur W. Towne, and on "The Disposition of Trivial Offenses in Cases of Juvenile Delinquency," by Madeleine Z. Doty of the Russell Sage Foundation were read by title only and will be published as part of the proceedings.

The general subject yesterday was "The Organization, Procedure, and Problems of the Courts of Inferior Criminal Jurisdiction." To-day will be taken up "Reform of the Criminal Law and Procedure" and "Responsibility for Crime." The conference will close with a dinner at the Hotel Astor to-night, at which President Taft, Attorney General Wickersham, and Francis J. Heney will be among the guests.

OSTEOPATHS LOSE RIGHTS.

Health Board Need Not Accept Their Death Certificates.

In a decision handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Second Department, the Board of Health is upheld in refusing to accept a death certificate from doctors of Osteopathy in New York. The osteopaths sued to force the Board of Health to accept their death certificates as they do those of other schools of medicine. Osteopaths declared yesterday that the decision will ruin their profession. Dr. Charles S. Green, President of the Osteopathic Society, said that osteopaths had not had time to make any definite plans for fighting the decision, but he declared the issue probably would be carried to the Legislature.

"It is difficult," he said "to surmise on what grounds of law or logic such a decision could have been reached by these learned jurists. While we are recognized as competent physicians by State law, the local Board of Health seeks to handicap and discredit us by refusing to accept from us death certificates. Whether we will take the issue to the Court of Appeals or to the Legislature, we have not as yet had time to decide, but it is probable we shall go to Albany, as there is so much delay in the courts."

FIRE PERILS PLENTY, SAYS E. F. CROKER

There'll Be a Big Loss of Life in Some Downtown Skyscraper Some Day.

A LOT OF ROTTEN FIRE HOSE

In Public Buildings—Rubbish Allowed to Stay Around—Fire Department Personnel Is Not What It Was.

Ex-Fire Chief Croker was the guest of honor at the monthly meeting of the Men's Club of All Souls' Episcopal Church, Ditmas and Ocean Avenues, Flatbush, last night, and for nearly an hour he answered the questions of 300 young men on matters pertaining to the fire department and the prevention and fighting of fires. It was Mr. Croker's first public appearance since he retired from command of the fire department, and in response to the many questions put to him he offered some severe criticism of the department and of the civil service examinations.

The ex-Chief was introduced by William Martin, the President of the club, who referred to him as "the best fire fighter New York ever had." In responding the former Chief acknowledged that he did know something about fires "and nothing about much of anything else."

"The principal cause of fires in New York City," said Mr. Croker, "is carelessness. The way to prevent them is by a rigid and careful inspection of all buildings. Rubbish must be cleared from the hallways, and electric wires carefully examined. Many fires are caused by defective insulation.

"The old-fashioned oil stove is a very dangerous thing. In my opinion it should not be used any longer. Candles, too, are bad. On a certain day in December a Jewish holiday is celebrated by lighting candles all through the house. When these burn low the flame is usually close to an inflammable substance. Firemen are instructed to go into these houses, and extinguish such candles as have burned dangerously low. They are called agents of satan for their pains.

"Our skyscrapers are another source of fire danger. Some day there will be terrible loss of life as well as property in some of our downtown skyscrapers. They are called fireproof, but they are no more than what we firemen call 'slow burning' buildings. While the buildings themselves are fireproof, the contents are frequently extremely inflammable, and in case of a fire starting in the lower floors those in the upper stories would have a very slim chance of escaping with their lives. The stairways usually are narrow and curving.

"Fire appliances in public and semi-public buildings are in poor condition usually. The extinguishers, which should be recharged at least twice a year, more often than not are recharged only once every three or four years. Fire hose is allowed to remain in its reels for years at a time, so that when it is called into use it is so rotten that it falls apart."

Chief Croker was asked his opinion of the value of dynamite in fighting big conflagrations. He said he had little use for this subterfuge. It usually serves only to spread the fire, he declared.

The question of fire escapes also interested the ex-Chief's hearers exceedingly. After discussing many kinds he said that he favored the tower fire escape, which consisted of walls entirely separate from those of the main building.

Of the personnel of the Fire Department, Mr. Croker had this to say:

"The class of men we are getting in the Fire Department now is much inferior to the character of the old timers. We are now compelled also, by civil service laws, to promote a man when he passes a certain examination, without regard to his abilities as a firefighter. I believe that these examinations should be changed materially, and I believe that if I had the power to make up the examinations I could get a more desirable set of firemen."

Stray Dog Bites Two in the Bronx.

Eight mounted policemen of the Westchester Station were scouring the upper Bronx last evening for a small brown dog last seen trotting up the Fort Schuyler Road in the direction of the Country Club. The description of the animal was furnished by two children who were brought to the station—a boy, bitten on the foot, and a girl, bitten on the hand. A mile and a half lies between the places where the children had run foul of the dog. In each case it had made one jump and one bite and then gone on its way.

SALOON KEEPER SLAIN.

Robbery the Motive of the Murderers of John Whiteford of Brooklyn.

John Whiteford, 60 years old, proprietor of a drinking saloon at Willoughby and Jay Streets, Brooklyn, which has been long known to the police as a resort of notorious characters, was found murdered in a room on the second floor of the building yesterday morning. The body lay with its face downward, the head being toward the door of the room. Michael Kerrigan of 459 Gold Street, who was employed by Whiteford as a lunchman, was the first to make known the murder, of which robbery was apparently the motive. Whiteford's pockets were turned inside out. He was known to carry large sums of money, and it is believed that he had $300 in his pockets when he closed his saloon at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. A large diamond stud stick pin, which he always wore, a solitaire diamond ring, and a gold watch are missing.

In his early life Whiteford was noted for his strength and fearlessness. Even in the last few years, when his age began to tell on him, he maintained a stolid indifference to the suggestions of his friends that he might some time be waylaid by thugs.

Whiteford had a sleeping room on the third floor of the building. His home was at Sheepshead Bay, where he lived with his aged mother. He let his bartender go home early on Thursday night and closed the saloon himself. The floor above the saloon is used as a meeting room by lodges and labor unions. At one end of it is a kitchen, where Kerrigan works. He tried to open the door of the lodge room yesterday morning, but it did not give easily. Giving it a stronger shove, he stumbled across Whiteford's body.

An ambulance surgeon from the Brooklyn Hospital said that Whiteford had been dead a few hours. His assailants choked him and battered him with the butt of a revolver, broken pieces of which were found scattered about. The murdered man's face showed the marks of a brutal beating. There was a deep gash in the back of the head, and the scalp was cut in several places. The Adam's apple had been crushed in, causing internal hemorrhage.

Whiteford was last seen alive at 2 o'clock in the morning. He was sitting alone in the rear part of his saloon when Policeman Gray, of the Adams Street Station, passed and saw him through a window. The police believe that two or more men took part in the crime. There were indications that Whiteford made a fierce defense. Blood from his wounds was found in different parts of the room. His assailants, the police think, secreted themselves in the lodge room and lay in wait until he ascended the stairs to go to his bedroom. Bloody finger prints were left on two doors and these, it is hoped, will lead to the punishment of the murderers.

Whiteford had kept the saloon for twenty years, having succeeded Phil McCauley, once known as a backer of pugilists.

Government Sues Mills & Duflot.

United States District Attorney Wise brought suit yesterday in the United States District Court against the firm of Mills & Duflot, silk importers at 465 Broome Street, to recover $23,860.06, alleged as the home value of merchandise from France irregularly entered at the Custom House between Nov. 9, 1908, and Jan. 7, 1910. The present action does not cover all the importations which the Government alleges were fraudulent, and additional suits will be filed against the firm later. Members of the firm pleaded guilty last Winter to indictments covering these frauds, and upon payment of heavy fines were released.

MAYOR SAYS SALOONS OBEY SUNDAY LAW

Declares He Has Stopped All Illegal Sale of Liquor in the Barrooms.

BACK ROOMS STILL OPEN

Because Courts Have Liberally Construed the Law—Offers $10 for Evidence of Violation.

Mayor Gaynor gives the city a clean bill of health in regard to violation of the excise law on Sunday in a letter to a Brooklyn clergyman, made public last night. The Mayor says he has stopped the illegal selling of liquor on Sundays, and to prove his faith offers $10 for evidence of "traffic in liquor on Sunday in any barroom."

The recipient of the letter is the Rev. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn, and it is in answer to one he wrote the Mayor a few days ago. He is Chairman of the Clerical Conference of the Federation of Churches.

For some time the clergymen and church societies of Brooklyn have been making a crusade against the "wide open" condition of Brooklyn on Sunday. Last Sunday it was announced that those behind the crusade had covered the saloons of the borough thoroughly with the aid of the Men's Clubs of various churches, and had collected evidence of hundreds of violations. They also went to moving-picture shows and found, they said, many minors who had not proper guardianship.

Mr. Young's organization is not one of those identified with the crusade, but in his letter to the Mayor he mentioned the things of which they complain. This is the Mayor's letter:

Office of the Mayor.
May 10, 1911.

Dear Dr. Young: I thank you for your kind letter. It has a charitable tone which I often find lacking, I regret to say, in the letters and words of some clergymen. Never was the traffic in liquor in the barrooms in this city stopped until I became Mayor. I have stopped it absolutely. I will give $10 for evidence of traffic in liquor on Sunday in any barroom.

I can only do things gradually. You now ask me to stop traffic in liquor in the landlord's room or the interior room on Sunday. I suppose you know that in every place having a hotel license it is lawful to sell liquor on Sunday in the dining room or interior room, with meals. That is the law. I cannot stop the sale of liquor in such places. If you go up to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel you will find the bar closed, but you can step into another room and be served with liquor. At the same time, however, you order or get something to eat. The courts have construed a meal to be very little, as I suppose you know. I think they have got it down to a little sandwich or some soup. I suppose you know that I am not responsible for the construction of the law, and at the same time it is fair to say that it is not easy to make a fixed standard for a meal, and I do not wish to criticise the courts in their embarrassment in that respect. The rule that applies to the Waldorf-Astoria applies to the littlest place in this city that has a hotel license.

Nowhere in this State is the excise law being enforced on Sunday to the extent to which it has been enforced in this city for over one year. It is easy to get up so-called mass meetings and deal in generalities, but I have to come down to the facts and the law. I should be most glad to receive help from you or any one in the city. Every complaint sent to this office is dealt with immediately and rigorously. If you can give me any liquor place which is violating the law on Sunday I shall thank you for it, and I assure you that your complaint will receive immediate redress. Sincerely yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
Rev. S. Edward Young, D. D., Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The pastor said last night that the Mayor had given him permission to make the letter public.

Brooklyn Police Captains Fined.

Police Commissioner Cropsey fined or suspended seventeen precinct commanders in Brooklyn and Queens yesterday for violating an order regarding the assignment of old policemen to easy posts. This action followed similar action a few days ago against twenty-five commanders in Manhattan for the same reason. Capts. Holahan, Murphy, Scevlin, Reimels, Leary, and Cullen, and Lieut. Enright were fined yesterday ten days' pay; Capts. Wohlfarth, Rooney, Weigand, Maude, Barnes, and Lieut. McKay five days' pay, and Capts. Palmer, Fennelly, Frank, and Creamer were reprimanded.

After the reception President Taft will be taken to Krueger's Auditorium, where the dinner will be held. Every seat at the tables has been taken.

PANAMA HATS TO COST LESS
40 Dozen New Japanese Panamas at $3.96
Fifth Floor.

Your Panama this year will cost you less.

Hitherto Panamas came almost exclusively from South America. Now the wily, industrious, ingenious, ambitious Jap has come into the market, and he is underselling.

Naturally, he has got into touch with Macy's as the appropriate distributing medium of his wares. Merely the lower price would not have induced us to handle these hats, however, were they not in every respect at least equal to the American Panama. As a matter of fact, they have a smoother edge and rather better color than the South American Panamas.

We have marked our first shipment at an introductory price of $3.96, which is about the amount you would have to pay for an ordinary straw approximating to this quality.

Telescopes and Harvards for young men; larger shapes for older men. All are the right shape, and all are thoroughly blocked and trimmed ready for wear.

Macy prices on the real South American Panamas show a considerable reduction from the prices charged by other houses which handle the same high grade goods. Thus, our $4.94 Panama equals the usual $7.00 or $8.00 kind elsewhere. We do not handle any of the coarse Panamas which many stores "specialize" at about $5.00, and which are nothing better than "failures." The lowest price at Macy's buys a Panama which is hard to detect from the more expensive qualities. We have Panamas up to $44.49.

ONLY RECIPROCITY TO PASS, SAYS ROOT

President's Original Programme to be Adhered To, He Announces After White House Call.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS DRAG

Measure Not Likely to Reach the Senate Until May 20—Buffalo Delegation Favors Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—On leaving the White House this morning Senator Root expressed the opinion that the extraordinary session of Congress would confine itself to the enactment of the Canadian reciprocity agreement, for which alone the session was convened by the President. A strong feeling, he said, seems to exist in both houses, but especially in the Senate, against taking up any matters outside the one-bill programme announced by President Taft in his proclamation.

What Mr. Root says about the feeling in the Democratic House must be taken with a grain of salt, but it is not unlikely that his prediction as to what will be the upshot of the extra session will be verified. Certainly the Senators in neither party are going about the work of general legislation with any enthusiasm. The Democrats will probably go through the motions of supporting the Farmers' Free List bill and other tariff measures from the House, but so deeply are they impressed with the practical difficulties in the way of getting these measures out of the Finance Committee that, after a perfunctory effort, they will probably joyfully accept adjournment as the easiest solution.

The Senate Finance Committee is making slow progress on the reciprocity measure, and it will probably be May 20 before it reaches the Senate, and then it is expected without recommendation by the committee. Hearings of a most uninteresting sort are dragging on every day, at which opposition to the agreement is expressed, mostly by grangers or their representatives. To-day, however, a large delegation from Buffalo, each man wearing a badge labeled "Buffalo for reciprocity 100 strong," paid their respects to the President and then filed down to the Capitol to present their pleas to the committee.

A. H. Wilkinson, a Minnesota farmer, who addressed the Senate Finance Committee to-day, told the committee that the price of American farm products would shrink $40,000,000 if reciprocity became a fact. A vital grievance of the farmers, the speaker said, was that they were not consulted as to how they would be affected by the proposed reciprocity.

"Do you believe that a trade agreement would have been entered into that would have injured the Steel Trust or the shoe industry $40,000,000 a year without consulting them?" he inquired.

To prove the opposition of the farmers of the Northwest to reciprocity Mr. Wilkinson invited Senators who favored reciprocity to visit that section.

Workmen from paper mills in New York also protested against reciprocity. M. J. Jones of Corinth, N. Y., said the little paper-mill town would be wiped out of existence if the bill became effective.

J. H. Malin, President of the International Paper Mill Workers, said American paper-mill workers protested against being driven from their native country to follow their chosen trade in another land.

Senator Stone interrupted the hearing to ask that Allen & Graham, lawyers, of New York, be subpoenaed to appear before the committee and bring with them copies of the literature they had distributed in opposition to reciprocity. His action was supplemental to the presentation to the Senate yesterday of a newspaper article questioning the identity of the clients of these attorneys.

"I'll tell you something about that!" exclaimed N. J. Hull, President of the Grangers' organization. "We farmers employed these lawyers, and it is the first time that I ever knew of a Senate committee questioning the right of a body appearing before it to pay lawyers to furnish technical knowledge about tariff rates. That's what these lawyers did for us."

He said the lawyers had been employed by the farmers for years upon occasions. Members of the committee questioned their right to subpoena the lawyers, as Senator Stone suggested, and Mr. Hull settled the affair by promising to have the lawyers appear, with all literature sent out.

As the committee does not expect to make any recommendation on the measure it will report, it also does not expect to amend the form in which it came from the House. The amendments will be offered on the floor, in some cases perhaps by committee members, but it is believed that the real advocates of reciprocity are strong enough to vote all amendments down.

$5,000 More for Famine Victims.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Red Cross to-day sent $5,000 additional by cable to China for the relief of the famine sufferers. This makes a total of $70,000 sent to China by the Red Cross, besides $45,000 worth of supplies sent on the Buford.

OSBORNE HAS NOT RESIGNED.

Forest Commissioner, However, Plans to Take a Rest in Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 12.—Thomas Mott Osborne has not resigned as State Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner, according to Gov. Dix, who said to-day that he had received no communication from Mr. Osborne in the last few weeks. The Governor said, however, that he had understood that Mr. Osborne had been advised by his physician to drop official and personal business and take a rest in Europe for the benefit of his health. It is said Mr. Osborne has planned to go abroad within the next month.

Gov. Dix said he would send to the Senate on Monday night a nomination for State Superintendent of Prisons to succeed C. V. Collins, who resigned. It is said the choice will be Col. James F. Scott, Superintendent of the Elmira Reformatory, who was at the Capitol yesterday.

Gov. Dix will also review the police parade to-morrow in New York City. He will take luncheon with Philip and Oakley Rhinelander and dinner with Col. Dyer and officers of his regiment. The Governor will return to Albany on Sunday.

NEW AMSTERDAM HOTEL SOLD

Last of the Big Fourth Ave. Houses to Make Way for Business.

The New Amsterdam Hotel, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, has been sold to J. H. & C. K. Eagle, a silk manufacturing firm in Broome Street. It will be torn down in a few months to give way to a sixteen-story loft and office building.

With the passing of the New Amsterdam all of the popular hotels that once lined Fourth Avenue will have been wiped out. The Prescott still remains and one or two smaller houses, but with the rapid business growth that has transformed the avenue, even these are likely to go before long. A year ago the Ashland Hotel was sold for a business structure, and in preceding years the Everett, Clarendon, and Westminster Hotels were torn down.

The firm which got the New Amsterdam Hotel also bought two old buildings adjoining on Fourth Avenue, paying a trifle over $600,000 for the total plot, giving them a Fourth Avenue frontage of 115 feet.

WOODRUFF IS PESSIMISTIC.

Sees Defeat for Republicans in This State in 1912.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Timothy L. Woodruff, former Republican State Chairman of New York, brought some dire predictions to the White House to-day.

"If business conditions continue as bad as they are now," said Mr. Woodruff, "the Democratic Party stands an excellent show to carry the State in the Presidential campaign. That is due to the practice of business interests in blaming the party in power for famine, droughts, and all other natural and unnatural disturbances.

"The reciprocity agreement has made President Taft popular in the cities, particularly in New York. But the farmers are yelling 'bloody murder,' and it remains to be seen whether or not they will come around by election time."

NAVY SHOES AT LOWEST BID.

Secretary Meyer Thus Explains Why One Firm Got Most of the Contracts.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary of the Navy Meyer to-day scouted the charge that a "trust" absolutely controls the shoe contracts of the navy. All awards, he said, in a report to Congress to-day, have been made openly and to the lowest bidder.

While one bidder, Herman & Co. of Boston, obtained a majority of the awards, being generally the lowest bidder, the Navy Department discovered no evidence of unfair or illegal methods nor of blacklisting.

R. G. Woodward Sentenced to 5 Years.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Robert G. Woodward of New York, recently convicted of embezzling $5,000 from a New York medical company, was to-day sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He noted an appeal and was reelased on $5,000 bail.

VAN DYKE TO STAY WITH PRINCETON

Bows to Wish of Students and Trustees and Withdraws His Resignation.

NEVER SOUGHT PRESIDENCY

Hopes These Reports Are Now Permanently at Rest—No Factional Rivalries or Politics.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12.—Dr. Henry van Dyke has been persuaded by the Committee of Trustees appointed to consider his recent resignation to withdraw it and remain in the service of Princeton University. Dr. van Dyke had several offers to preach and teach elsewhere, and at one time had a "for sale" sign placed on the lawn of his home, Avalon. Princeton students are rejoicing to-day that the sign has been removed.

The committee wrote to Dr. van Dyke as follows under date of April 20:

Dear Dr. van Dyke:

The committee appointed by the Board of Trustees to confer with you regarding your resignation earnestly ask you to withdraw it. We do this not only because of our personal affection for you, but also in the interest of Princeton.

We have the highest appreciation of the benefits you have conferred upon the university during the twelve years in which you have held the Chair of English Literature, and we should view your leaving Princeton with the greatest regret. You have been of the highest service, not only as a lecturer and a teacher, but as a wise and sympathetic adviser to generations of Princeton men, and a warm personal friend to their elders.

We sincerely deprecate the rumors of which you spoke, that you have been seeking the Presidency of Princeton University, knowing that they are entirely false and unwarranted, and we trust that you may not give them any further consideration.

We assure you that the false position of which you complain no longer exists, and that we desire the benefit of your counsel and experience more than ever.

It is our desire and purpose that Princeton, holding fast to her traditions of a regulated collegiate course, shall give herself without distraction to the three specific tasks which are before her, the maintenance and development of the new curriculum, of the preceptorial system, and of the graduate college.

Trusting that you will give the matter your serious consideration, and that you will decide to remain with us, we are, yours very sincerely,

M. TAYLOR PYNE,
C. H. DODGE,
J. M. T. FINNEY.

Dr. van Dyke replied as follows, under date of May 10:

Your esteemed favor is duty received. I thank you for your references to my work as a teacher of reading. It has always been a pleasant work to do. Its reward has been a happy fellowship with twelve successive classes of Princeton men. If I have rendered them any service I am sincerely glad.

It is gratifying to note that you recognize that the perennial rumors of my seeking the Presidency of your body are entirely false and unwarranted. I do not know where they originated. But your frank disavowal now should lay them to rest, and relieve me from the recurrent annoyance of being considered as a candidate for an office contrary to my desires and altogether out of my line. The prospect of this relief is welcome.

The last subject touched by your letter is the most important. The reasons for my resignation have never been concealed, nor personal. They have to do with the spirit and policy of Princeton for the future. Regarding peace and work as essential to the life of the university, I have ventured in the course of these long conferences which you have invited to put a certain pertinent question.

If I understood you rightly, the phrase, "without distraction," is meant to express your wish and intention that Princeton shall not be distracted by factional rivalries and conflicts, your purpose that she shall move forward, under a guidance disregarding academic politics, to accomplish her three specific tasks as a university, in an atmosphere favorable to manhood, scholarship, and religion.

Understanding you thus, with the consent of the Board of Trustees, I will gladly accede to your wish and withdraw my resignation. This is a double pleasure because it makes the way clear at last to return an affirmative answer to the request which the students made last Winter that I should stay at Princeton. Very sincerely yours, HENRY VAN DYKE.

Spaghetti Better Than in Rome

The chefs of Italy are famed the world over for a delicious blend which they make with spaghetti.

Many a traveler has wished he could find an equal dish in America.

Now America has it—a better spaghetti than ever was served in Rome.

Our chefs spent two years in perfecting the recipe. There are 17 ingredients used in it, each the best of its kind.

The wonder lies in the harmony of taste—in the unmatched flavor. Nowhere in the world do they serve better spaghetti than you can now serve on your table.

We use to make it:

CARNEGIE BLAMED IN BANK REPORT

Refused at Last Moment to Save Trust Company That Bore His Name, Says Supt. Cheney.

DEFENDS HIS DEPARTMENT

Tells Gov. Dix of Improvement Made in Company's Affairs—Never Reported Insolvent to Him.

Orion H. Cheney, State Superintendent of Banks, submitted to Gov. Dix yesterday a full report of the department's handling of the Carnegie Trust Company's affairs. He declares that Andrew Carnegie, upon whose help he had relied, refused at the last moment to advance money to save the institution.

The report was in the form of a letter, which Mr. Cheney asked permission of the Governor to make public. It was placed in the Governor's hands late in the afternoon by a special messenger. The report was called for two months ago by Gov. Dix, but Mr. Cheney asked to delay it until the Grand Jury investigation, which was then pending, came to a close. He suggested that his report might hamper the Grand Jury inquiry.

"Uunjustified public criticism," says Mr. Cheney in his report, "has been directed toward the Banking Department for failure to close the Carnegie Trust Company before Jan. 7, 1911, and generally in connection with the supervision of that company's affairs. Although such criticism was unwarranted, nevertheless it has tended to create a distrust of this department, and has thereby done injury to our State banking system.

"The Carnegie Trust Company was not closed before Jan. 7, 1911, because prior to that date the conditions did not justify such action.

"It is important to note that, contrary to statements heretofore made in the press, the Carnegie Trust Company was never reported insolvent. Even with the large deductions required by this department because of slow and doubtful assets, a considerable surplus over the capital stock still remained.

"At the time I became Superintendent of Banks the Carnegie Trust Company was a source of distinct anxiety to the department. The elements of weakness could be classed under two heads—it had too great a proportion of slow assets and its management did not command confidence. The problem before the Superintendent, therefore, was to correct the unsatisfactory conditions, and at the same time to protect the depositors against the loss that might be occasioned them through closing the institution."

Mr. Cheney says that he caused a special examination of the Carnegie Trust to be made soon after he took office and that upon the strength of the examination he warned the Carnegie officials to improve the company's condition. Two weeks afterward William J. Cummins informed Mr. Cheney of Mr. Carnegie's loan of $2,000,000. The late C. C. Dickinson resigned about that time and was succeeded by Joseph B. Reichmann. Mr. Cheney says he ordered the Carnegie officials to make daily reports to him. These reports, he says, continued until Joseph T. Howell was elected President in October last.

Carnegie Evinced Concern.

Then the Banking Superintendent tells of his first visit to the home of Andrew Carnegie, which was on April 28, 1910.

"I disclosed to him the situation in the trust company," he says, "and told him that while improvement had been made in its condition, very largely through his assistance, I no longer felt any confidence in the management of the company. Mr. Carnegie evinced much concern, stated that the depositors must be protected, that their money must be saved, and said that he would find a proper man to take control of the company as its President in order that the company might become a creditable and conservative financial institution, and would devote to that purpose his entire time before sailing for Europe on May 4.

"He said further that his financial secretary, Mr. R. A. Franks, then present, would be in New York throughout the Summer, and would devote such time as might be necessary to the affairs of the company.

"On May 9, 1910, at the request of Mr. Franks a meeting was held at which Mr. Franks, Mr. Willard A. Mitchell, (Mr. Carnegie's attorney,) Mr. Condon, Mr. Cummins, Mr. Rollins, and myself were present. I laid before Mr. Franks and Mr. Mitchel in the frankest manner possible the weak spots of the trust company and the things in the management which I regarded as objectionable. Mr. Franks stated that Mr. Carnegie on the day he sailed for Europe shortly before had delivered to him a paper on which there appeared the name of Joseph T. Howell, who, he suggested, would be the man to become the President of the trust company. Thereafter Mr. Franks and Mr. Mitchell had frequent communications and conferences with the Banking Department, expressing themselves as desirous of assisting in the rehabilitation of the company, and stating that they would devote their time and attention to the accomplishment of that result.

"On May 31, 1910, Mr. Franks introduced me to Joseph T. Howell, stating that an effort was being made to induce him to accept the Presidency of the company. On June 3, 1910, at the request of Mr. Carnegie's attorney, Mr. Mitchell, I had a five-hour conference in my office with Mr. Howell, Mr. Franks, and Mr. Mitchell. At that interview I set forth in detail to Mr. Howell the department's conclusion regarding the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company and advised him not to accept the office of President unless he could be assured of adequate financial assistance in the event that any sudden call for funds should arise."

Other conferences followed, says Mr. Cheney, and on July 12, 1910, he wrote to Mr. Franks, saying in part:

> I cannot help but express again the gratification I have experienced as a result of our conference this afternoon in regard to the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company. It is a satisfaction to know that both Mr. Carnegie and yourself are desirous that the institution should occupy a strong and creditable position in the community and are disposed to be helpful so long as its management shows good faith. I know that your influence has been very beneficial in the present situation and that your continued interest cannot but be effective in securing further improvements.

Promise Made to Howell.

"As a result of the efforts of Mr. Franks," continues the report, "Joseph T. Howell finally consented to become President of the trust company, was duly elected, and took office on Oct. 10, 1910. Mr. Howell stated to the Banking Department that he was given assurances, which satisfied him that Mr. Carnegie would render financial assistance to the company, and support its management. I refer you to a copy of the letter received from him. I quote the following:

> I was twice in New York during the month of August—preceding and following my vacation. Mr. Franks called upon me on both occasions and urged me to accept the Presidency of the company. At that time he said to me: "I will ask you to take a long jump—a jump into the quicksands—but it is only fair to say to you there will be rocks at the bottom and ropes around you, and you shan't go in over your head."

"Notwithstanding all of the efforts directed toward the rehabilitation of the company, the affairs of certain of its Directors finally became peculiarly pressing. Loans upon which payment was expected were not taken care of, and in December the Northern Bank and the Washington Savings Bank were closed by the department. I ordered an immediate investigation of the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company, and found that large withdrawals were being made.

"On the morning of Jan. 5, 1911, the chief examiner of the department telephoned to the trust company to ascertain what step they were taking to get additional cash. In reply he was advised that Mr. Cummins and Mr. Franks would immediately call at the office of the department. They arrived promptly, and Mr. Franks stated that Mr. Carnegie had not as yet said the last word, and that cash would be furnished within twenty-four hours if necessary. The withdrawals continued, and on Jan. 6, 1911, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon I received such reports from my examiners as convinced me that the company should be closed the following morning, unless additional cash were provided before then.

"In company with my attorney, Mr. Case of Messrs. White & Case, I had a conference with Mr. Andrew Carnegie that same evening, in the course of which I told him that unless at least $500,000 in cash was furnished the company not later than 9 o'clock the following morning I could not allow the company to open for business. Mr. Carnegie pleaded with me not to take such a step, saying that he had given instructions during the day to Mr. Franks to release to certain of the Directors and officers a large amount of collateral held by him as security for their loan, and that this action was done to enable them to raise further funds for the benefit of the trust company. He stated that he had telephoned to Mr. Franks at Pittsburg to return at once and deliver this collateral upon his arrival on Saturday morning. I informed Mr. Carnegie that it would be impossible to allow the company to open unless the money was in hand by 9 o'clock. He thereupon said that he felt that he had done all that could be expected of him. The cash was not produced, and I took possession of the company before the opening of business on the following day.

Defense of the Department.

"Thus were concluded what I believe to have been the most active, insistent, and thorough efforts ever made by a banking department to keep fully advised regarding the affairs and condition of a financial institution under its supervision, to eliminate objectionable assets through the substitution of cash or its equivalent, and to correct that which was criticisable in management. No one familiar with the facts can question the sufficiency of these efforts. During my thirteen months in ofice I had held 139 conferences regarding the affairs of the company, of sufficient importance to have had record made of them in the department. For more than ten months of that period I had exacted daily reports from the company which kept me constantly informed as to its cash position and enabled me, if anything appeared in those reports of an unusual nature, or suggestive of the need of an inquiry, to institute an investigation; while from time to time I had these reports verified by special examinations. Ten such special examinations were had in addition to the regular examinations.

"During the period as a direct result of the efforts of the department, $4,000,000 of doubtful assets had been turned into cash. During the same period the claims of depositors against the Company had been reduced from $14,000,000 to $7,800,000.

"This department cannot be blamed because the company was not saved in the end; the efficiency of its efforts and the wisdom of its course are established beyond question by the fact that when the end came the loss to its depositors both actual and proportionate was far less than it would have been at any time prior thereto.

"In the interest solely of that public confidence which should be reposed in the Banking Department, I desire that this brief report should be given publicity. Our examiners are trained and experienced men; they are faithful in their work, loyal to the department; their honesty and efficiency have been proven on many occasions. The advantage to me personally of making public these facts is of no consequence, but it is of great consequence and importance to the business community that it should be known that the banking law in letter and spirit was at all times fearlessly administered by this department in the case of the Carnegie Trust Company as in all other cases of which I have had any knowledge."

It was announced yesterday at the State Banking Department that Arba K. Alford, the Special Deputy Superintendent in charge of the liquidation of the Northern Bank, has resigned, and his place filled by the appointment of George B. Williams.

Clark Williams Explains.

Clark Williams, who was Mr. Cheney's predecessor, issued a statement last night, explaining his connection with the efforts to keep the Carnegie Trust Company afloat. It was Mr. Williams who wrote to Andrew Carnegie in Dec., 1909, praising William J. Cummins. Mr. Williams says that this letter was published before in a garbled form. The following, he says, is an exact copy:

> 293 Madison Avenue, Dec. 22, 1909.
> The Hon. Andrew Carnegie, Ninety-first Street and Fifth Avenue, New York:
>
> Dear Mr. Carnegie: At the request of certain members of the Board of Directors of the Carnegie Trust Company, I am writing to advise you that during my incumbency of the office of Superintendent of Banks I was familiar with the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company.
>
> I have no hesitancy in saying that in my opinion such growth and improvement in condition as the company enjoyed was largely due to the efforts of Mr. William J. Cummins and those Directors whom he brought into the board and his business associates.
>
> I know Mr. Cummins as an intimate personal friend, and I have high regard for his ability and integrity of purpose. I believe that he and his associates are making earnest and praiseworthy efforts to improve the condition of the company and to secure for it more favorable consideration on the part of the banking community.
>
> I believe that the condition which they are now seeking to remedy does not in any way impugn their integrity or honor, and if you could contribute to assist them you would be helping in the accomplishment of a distinct good. Respectfully yours,
>
> CLARK WILLIAMS.

Mr. Williams says that his views concerning Cummins and the Carnegie Trust changed after that, and in April, 1910, he wrote to Mr. Carnegie, saying:

> In light of present information I have reason to be greatly disappointed in the progress made, and because of the letter above referred to and your apparent interest in the situation which then existed I deem it my duty to suggest that you possess yourself at the earliest possible moment of the facts developed through an examination now in progress by the State Banking Department.

Mr. Williams says that two days after the letter he called at Mr. Carnegie's house at the latter's request, and in the presence of Mr. Franks told Mr. Carnegie that he had lost confidence in Mr. Cummins and certain of his associates.

MERGER PLAN APPROVED.

Directors of the Equitable and Madison Trust Companies Agree.

With the acceptance yesterday by Directors of the Equitable Trust Company and the Madison Trust Company of terms proposed for the merger of the two institutions the way was made clear for liquidation of the Madison's assets. Stockholders' meetings will be held May 29 to ratify the merger.

It was said after the Directors' action that while it is impossible yet to tell how much can be realized on some of the Madison's assets, prospects for the stockholders of the company are brighter than they appeared when the merger was started. Andrew Carnegie is the principal holder, with about 6,900 of the 10,000 shares of Madison stock. Mr. Carnegie took over the shares, along with a majority of the stock of the Platt Iron Works and other collateral, when he let the trust company bearing his name have $2,100,000 Steel bonds in January of last year. It was thought until a few weeks ago that little would be realized by holders of the old Van Norden Company's stock.

Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable, is Chairman of an Advisory Committee which will look after the liquidation. The other members are Bradley Martin, Jr., who was nominated by the Madison's stockholders, and Benjamin Strong, Jr., Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company, who was named by Messrs. Krech and Martin as a disinterested third party. It is provided that this committee shall receive as payment 1 per cent. of the net amount payable to the stockholders, with a minimum of $6,000 guaranteed. The Equitable Company is to receive for its services in effecting the liquidation 5 per cent. of the net amount payable to the stockholders, with a minimum of $50,000 guaranteed.

The agreement states that the Equitable has advanced $650,000 to the Madison, and repayment of this sum is the first claim on the proceeds of liquidation. After that the Equitable is to be repaid for any obligations it has assumed on account of the merger, and for all expenses and counsel fees incurred. The surplus then remaining is to be divided ratably among the stockholders of the Madison.

The lease of the main office of the Madison at 786 Fifth Avenue is to be disposed of, if possible, and if not the rent is to be included among other expenses of realizing on the assets. It is provided that the first distribution to Madison stockholders shall be made when the sum of $100,000 has accumulated.

There is to be no change in the organization of the Equitable with the completion of the merger. That company's name remains the same, and there will be no increase in its $3,000,000 of stock.

DIX'S STAND ON INCOME TAX.

Considers Party Pledged to One "From Whatever Sources Desired."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 12.—According to Gov. Dix's interpretation of the Rochester platform, the majority of the Legislature is committed to the ratification of the proposed Constitutional amendment providing for an income tax.

His attention was called to-day to the contention that the Democratic Party, through the platform, is pledged to an income tax amendment in some form, but not to the particular amendment which has been submitted to the various Legislatures for approval or rejection. The Governor said the action at Rochester followed the rejection of the amendment which has been submitted by Congress, and the general understanding was that the party in its platform was pledged to the amendment which would permit a tax on incomes "from whatever sources derived."

In his letter to Mayor Gaynor, answering the Mayor's argument against the amendment, the Governor took the position that the exemption of State and municipal bonds would give an unfair advantage to securities of that class.

The Governor has had a talk with Assemblyman Levy, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and believes that the committee will report the resolution ratifying the amendment. Senator Wagner, [illegible] the upper house, which adopted the amendment by a party vote, said to-day that the Assembly undoubtedly would adopt the amendment next week. Assemblyman Levy, however, says that if the Assembly Committee reports an income tax resolution it will not be in ratification of the present amendment unless it is amended.

RACE TRACK MEN BEATEN ON APPEAL

Appellate Court Throws Out Petition to Declare 1907 Reapportionment Illegal.

NOT THE COURT'S BUSINESS

Will Not Upset the Acts of the Legislature in a Special Proceeding Aimed at No One.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court dismissed yesterday the petition granted by Justice Amend, declaring the reapportonment of the Senatorial and Assembly districts made in 1907, illegal. The Appellate Divison held that the courts have no jirisdiction to declare unconstitutional the acts of the Legislature, a co-ordinate branch of the Government, in a special proceeding.

This decision is regarded as a knockout blow to the racing interests. It was openly asserted that the racing interests were behind the effort to declare the 1907 reapportionment illegal, hoping on that ground to overthrow the legislation against race track gambling enacted by subsequent legislatures.

Among the defendants named in the petition were ex-Attorney General Edward R. O'Malley, ex-Gov. Horace White, George H. Cobb, formerly Temporary President of the State Senate, and James W. Wadsworth, Jr., ex-Speaker of the Assembly. Seth Low and several other prominent New oYrkers obtained permission to be represented in the proceedings, and appeared by Bronson Winthrop as their attorney.

In order to expedite the determination of the serious issue involved, Justce Amend specified that he would grant the petition without prejudice for the purpose of allowing the contentions to be reviewed speedily by the higher courts. Frank K. Johnston, attorney for the petitioners, incorporated among the petitioners newly made citizens and voters who had just come of age, and whose right to attack the apportionment could not be attacked on the ground of their failure previously to question the reapportionment.

Justice Miller, who wrote the unanimous decision of the court, said:

"A party cannot come into court with an academic question and arbitrarily select some one with whom to debate it. The President pro tem. of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly were doubtless summoned on the theory that in their official capacities they represented the Legislature. The idea of haling the Governor and the Legislature to court to defend the official conduct of either has the merit of originality.

"In the great case of Marbury v. Madison the power to issue a writ of mandamus directed to the Secretary of State was defended by Chief Justice Marshall solely on the ground that Mr. Madison, as Secretary of State, could be required to perform a ministerial duty on the discharge of which he was in no sense an organ of the Executive will.

"Of course, the petition amounts to nothing but an invitation to the court to express its views, and the order to show cause has no more force or effect than an invitation to the officers named to debate the question with the petitioners and then to hear the court expound the law.

"Obviously, there are no adverse parties and there is no controversy before the court."

The hopes of the racing interests are now centred on the passage of two bills now before the Legislature whose purpose is declared to be "to draw the teeth" of the Hart-Agnew laws against race track gambling. These two bills, if passed, will remove the penalties assessed against Directors of clubs on whose tracks gambling is permitted, and will remove the penalty of imprisonment against convicted race track gamblers and substitute therefor a fine.

VOTE MILLIONS, LACK QUORUM

Few Assemblymen Pass $9,000,000 in Appropriations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 12.—In a praiseworthy effort to expedite the public business the present Legislature will not let a little thing like the Constitution stand in its way. To-day the Assembly voted away roughly $9,000,000 of the people's money. The journal will show that three-fifths of the entire membership were present. In fact about one dozen members attended out of the 150.

The Constitution of the State requires that three-fifths of all the members elected shall constitute a quorum when appropriation bills of a certain character are passed. Section 25 of Article 3 is very specific in its language. It reads:

> On the final passage in either House of the Legislature of a bill of any act, which imposes, continues or revives a tax, or creates a debt or charge, or makes, continues, or revives any appropriation of public or trust money or property or releases, discharges or commutes any claim or demand of the State, the question shall be taken by yeas and nays which shall be duly entered upon the journals and three-fifths of all the members elected to either House shall in all such cases be necessary to constitute a quorum therein,

Here are the Appropriation bills that were passed, all of them introduced by Majority Leader A. E. Smith:

> $50,000 for the payment of interest for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1910, for the Palisades Inter-State Park debt, contracted as provided by Chapter 636 of the Laws of 1910 for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1911.
>
> $3,166,900 for the payment of interest on the canal debt for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1911.
>
> $4,000,000 from the sinking fund under Article 7, Section 4, of the Constitution for the payment of a part of the principal of the canal debt, which falls due on Jan. 1, 1912.
>
> $200,000 for the payment of interest on the canal debt for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1910.
>
> $1,030,000 for the payment of interest on the debt for highway improvement contracted or to be contracted under Article 7, Section 12, of the Constitution and as provided by law, becoming due during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1911.
>
> $9,902.03, reappropriating for various public works unexpended balances of former appropriations.

On all these bills, including the one appropriating $4,000,000, the roll call sounded something like this:

"Adler—Blu-blu-blu-blu-blu-zorn — Noes none."

It took only about five minutes to vote this sum of money away. The reading clerk was somewhat fatigued when the Assembly had done its duty and risen superior to the Constitution, the Democrats having a majority and the Republicans being agreeable that it should be done. Majority Leader Smith, when asked about the regularity of the thing, smiled and said that the spirit, if not the letter, of the Constitution had been complied with, and that the minority leader, who always is supposed to be the watchdog of the State Treasury, had been present anyhow and never let out a growl.

It should be stated that all the appropriations were regular and mandatory and that no harm was done to anybody or anything—save the Constitution, and the Constitution ought to be used to it because it is being violated at every session of the Legislature and has been until it is honored in the breach rather than in the observance.

WHITE MAKES CLEVER WINNING GOLF SHOT

Holes Out from a Bunker in Two Shots and Takes Match from Bowers.

By holing a niblick shot out of a bunker for a 2 at the sixteenth hole, Gardiner W. White of Oakland made one of the most sensational finishes on record in a match on the links of the Fox Hills Golf Club yesterday. The feat was accomplished in the second round of the open tournament, and S. D. Bowers of Brooklawn was the victim.

White had been 2 down at the tenth hole, but by winning the eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, and fifteenth holes, the former interscholastic champion completely reversed this situation so that he stood 2 up, driving from the sixteenth tee. This hole is short and White's iron shot, a trifle sliced, found a trap to the right of the green, while Bowers pulled his ball to the hollow. The Brooklawn veteran made a capital recovery, laying his ball about ten feet from the pin.

It was then up to White, and as his ball rested on sand close to the side of the hazard, it looked as if Bowers would win the hole. White's niblick shot was a beauty, the ball rising quickly, striking about twenty feet short of the pin and then rolling on with just enough force to trickle into the cup.

The other survivors of the day were P. W. Kendall of Deal, A. F. Kammer, and B. T. Allen, both of the home club. In the semi-final round this morning White will play Kendall on one side of the draw, while Allen and Kammer will lock horns on the other. The summary:

Princeton Makes Golf Sweep.

Princeton golfers made a clean sweep in a team match with Williams, over the links of the Nassau Country Club yesterday. Foursomes during the morning left the Orange and Black with a 3 to 0 lead, which was increased by six more points after luncheon, when the collegians played singles. Albert Seckel, former intercollegiate champion, with Tyson for a partner, played at the top of his game and for fourteen holes the first named was 3 under 4s. After Seckel and Tyson had beaten Standish and Hill by 5 up and 4 to play, Seckel let up on the bye holes, otherwise he might have threatened the course record. The scores:

Miss Campbell Beaten in Ireland.

LONDON, May 12.—Mrs. Ross, who on three occasions held the British women's golf championship title, to-day defeated Miss Dorothy Campbell, the American and Canadian champion, on the links of the Royal Portrush Golf Club in Ireland. The round ended even, and on playing the nineteenth hole, Mrs. Ross made the hole in four splendid strokes. Miss Campbell, who won the American championship two years in succession, is also a former holder of both the British and Scotch titles.

Stock Exchange Golfers.

The Stock Exchange members will hold their annual golf tournament to-day on the links of the Knollwood Country Club. The conditions call for eighteen holes, blind handicap, and over a hundred entries have been made. This will mark the fifteenth holding of the series, which invariably results in a keenly contested match.

Columbia Beats Tigers at Tennis.

Columbia defeated Princeton by the score of 5 to 4 in a lawn tennis match on the South Field courts yesterday afternoon. The Tiger racquet wielders put up a game fight, but they were unable to hold the Columbia players in doubles, although they played them to a tie score in the singles with three matches all. Dean Mathey, the intercollegiate singles champion, was a little off his game, and had a hard time in beating A. S. Moses, the Columbia Captain, in the singles. The summaries:

Singles.—D. Mathey, Princeton, defeated A. S. Moses, Columbia, 6—3, 7—5; G. O. Thomas, Princeton, defeated G. Gordon, Columbia, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1; S. Rawley, Princeton, defeated E. N. Harvey, Columbia, 6—1, 8—6; F. Washburn, Columbia, defeated A. Tobey, Princeton, 6—3, 6—0; D. W. Haines, Columbia, defeated J. Magoun, Princeton, 6—4, 7—5; L. A. Coffin, Columbia, defeated W. Brooklyn Manor Tennis Club.

The Brooklyn Manor Lawn Tennis Club has been organized with Almon G. Rasquin, President; Harry D. Neier, Secretary, and George W. Drucker, Treasurer. Their new court in Fulton and Napier Avenues, Brooklyn Manor, L. I., is now in course of construction, and they are looking for match games with other tennis clubs.

TRACK AND OTHER SPORTS.

The Mott Haven A. C. will hold its invitation set of games to-morrow morning on the oval at 138th Street and Third Avenue. All athletes who are registered are invited to take part in the various events, which are as follows: Seventy-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, three-mile run, one-mile walk, putting the 12-pound shot, running high jump, and pole vault.

R. E. Fitzmaurice, 66 Greene Street, is anxious to get a number of football players of experience to join a semi-professional team, which will hold matches on upper Manhattan Field next Fall.

The famous old Guttenberg race track will be the scene to-morrow afternoon of a number of motor races, and a five-mile professional footrace, in which the best men in the Metropolitan district will engage.

The rifle team of the Seventy-first Regiment will compete in their annual match against the Middies at Annapolis to-day. This will mark the sixth match, the local marksmen having won the first, third, and fifth events. The Seventy-first team will be made up of Major James M. Hutchinson, as Captain; Capt. Clarence W. True, manager; Major W. S. Beekman, Capt. George W. Corwin, Capt. E. A. Wells, Capt. W. E. De Lamater, Capt. James Eben, Lieut. J. T. Westerman, Lieut. L. W. Thompson, Lieut. H. A. Kehlbeck, Lieut. F. R. Potter, Lieut. T. B. McManus, Sergeant George H. Doyle, Sergeant Charles B. Spies, Sergeant P. V. Dooley, and Private R. H. Lummis.

George V. Bonhag, holder of most of the American distance running records, will make a try for the two-mile mark at the games of the Irish-American A. C. at Celtic Park on Decoration Day. He will have for an opponent Tel Berna, the Cornellian, who has been doing great work, both indoors and out. It is expected that Jack Monument, the National champion, will also be a starter in this event. In a special 125-yard sprint Cloughan, Gynn Henry, Tex Ramsdell, Rosenberger, Eller, and Dorland are scheduled to meet.

Gaelic football and hurling will be among the features at the Corkmen's P. B. & P. Association at Celtic Park to-morrow. Cork will meet Kerry in a challenge match, while Kilkenny is scheduled to play Mayo in an inter-province match.

YALE AND PENNSY CREWS IN DUAL RACE

Columbia Will Row Against Middies in Annapolis Harbor To-day.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 12.—The 'Varsity crews of the University of Pennsylvania and Yale will match strength and oarsmanship in a two-mile sprint down the Connecticut River a couple of hours before sunset to-morrow.

It will be a case of a veteran crew from Pennsylvania racing a green and heavier crew from Yale. Fast time is expected as the Connecticut River current will help the oarsmen along at a rate of about three miles an hour.

Yale has visited Philadelphia with more or less success for the past dozen years, and to-morrow the Quaker oarsmen will be practically the guests of the Yale crew in the regatta held here, there being no opportunity for such a race at New Haven.

Because of counter attractions in the way of track meets, baseball games, and other sporting events, the attendance from the two universities will be light. Only close followers of the rowing game came to the city to-night prepared to see the race. The number included, however, representatives of the Cornell, Navy, and the Harvard rowing associations, who have an eye on the two crews here with reference to Poughkeepsie and New London some seven or eight weeks hence.

The crews which will race to-morrow will be made up as follows:

PENNSYLVANIA.—Bennitt, bow; Hoagland, (Captain,) 2; Smith, (manager,) 3; De Long, 4; Stifel, 5; Shoemaker, 6; Alexander, 7; Reath, stroke; Williams, coxswain. Average weight, 170 pounds.

YALE.—Frost, (Captain,) bow; Field, 2; Romeyn, 3; Philbin, 4; Adams, 5; Oldenborg, 6; Van Blarcom, 7; Vansinderen, stroke; Barnum, coxswain. Average weight, 177 pounds.

The race will start at 5 o'clock, and it is expected that the crews will cover the two miles in something like nine minutes.

COLUMBIA CREW RACE.

New Yorkers Compete Against Middies in Annapolis Harbor To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 12.—The members of the Columbia University crew which will race against the Naval Academy to-morrow arrived here this morning under the charge of Coach Rice. This afternoon the visitors had some excellent practice, the conditions being fine. Everything points to favorable weather to-morrow, so that the race may be rowed on the outer course in Annapolis Harbor.

The race between the Naval Academy first crew and the Columbia 'Varsity will be the only one which will take place to-morrow. Races were also arranged between a junior eight of the Academy and its four against crews from the Arundel Boat Club of Baltimore, who are also charges of Coach Rice, but these had to be called off. The Navy crew averages within a quarter of a pound of ten pounds more than the Columbia oarsmen. Nevertheless a good race is expected. The crews, with weights, are:

ENGLISH BOXERS DUE TO-DAY

Canadians and Other Visiting Amateurs Expected in a Few Days.

The five English amateur boxers who are to take part in the international boxing tournament, managed by Tim Hurst, and under the auspices of the Pastime A. C. at Madison Square Garden on May 19 and 20, will arrive in New York to-night or to-morrow morning on the steamship St. Louis of the American Line. The Englishmen who make up the party are W. W. Allen, champion at 116 pounds; A. Spenceley, champion at 140 pounds; D. Erskine, runner-up for the championship at 126 pounds in the last tournament held in England; Bruce Logan, one of the best of the heavyweight division, and R. Warner, a top notcher among the middleweights. By special permission from the Navy Department, Mr. Hurst has engaged Joseph J. Murray, formerly of Columbia University and now connected with the athletic department of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, to look after the training of the English boxers during their visit here. They will make their headquarters at Woodlawn Inn.

The Canadian boxers who are to take part in the tournament are expected to arrive here early next week, and they will take up quarters at Westchester while here. George Brown of the Boston A. A. has sent word that he will reach New York on Tuesday with a delegation of Boston's best amateurs.

Hurst will make every endeavor to have the details arranged so that the foreigners will see none of the clumsiness that has characterized several of the amateur boxing shows held around here lately. The woeful lack of knowledge of mere boxing rules, not necessarily the amateur rules, has been so manifest on occasions that the entertainments have bordered on the ridiculous. Even the professional referees who should know better have been sadly deficient in judgment. In amateur boxing contests it is so necessary for the officials to know their business that when a technicality occurs a decision must be made instantly and without bungling, for the boys who box know so little of the game as a rule that they can render no assistance whatever in obviating an absurd situation. In professional boxing the fighters as a rule know somewhat more of the essentials, and an ignorant official can often get away without his ignorance becoming too apparent.

On the other hand, competent officials can often make an otherwise mediocre amateur boxing show interesting by handling the lads in an expert manner, pretty much in the same way an expert horseman can make a second rate horse beat better animals by superior handling.

Seven events are carded, including the following handicaps: 100 yards, 300 yards, 600 yards, 1,000 yards, and three mile runs; discus throw, and two mile walk. Among those who will compete are Le Roy Dorland, Dan Healey, Harry Jensen, John J. Stack, Harry Smith, Frank Ruggerio, M. Taub, Tom Dolan, and many others, who are making this series the medium of their initial outdoor appearance for the year. Martin Sheridan will give an exhibition with the discus, in an endeavor to do a performance as good as his own best on record. Eddie Frick will meet Mel Sheppard, Harry Gissing, or Ed. Gilmore in a special half mile, the outcome of which will probably show a new mark for the track at the distance.

BEACHEY IN HIGH FLIGHT.

Curtiss Aviator Reaches 4,000 Feet Altitude at Bridgeport.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 12.—Before a crowd of 6,000 spectators, including a number of visiting aviators, Lincoln Beachey performed a number of stunts in his Curtiss biplane at Aerodrome Park this afternoon. Beachey had just made the local record for altitude, a height of 4,000 feet. From this autitude he made dips and spirals till he reached the park.

Both McCurdy and Beachey had a race around the park with their machines, and the latter appeared to have the best of the showing, both for speed and altitude. Beachey took two passengers for a short flight in his machine, but did not attempt to go over ten feet in the air. Lieut. Fickel, U. S. A., was scheduled to do some target shooting from one of the machines, but on account of the condition of the wind the attempt was not made.

Glenn Curtiss was about the city a good part of the day with Fred Enos, President of the Board of Trade, looking up a site for a factory. It is understood that he is planning to move from Hammondsport, N. Y.

A wireless apparatus was rigged up on McCurdy's machine to-night for the purpose of sending messages to New York to-morrow. Gov. Baldwin and city officials are expected on the final day of the meet.

Reading for a Lifetime

A saving in cost, to all who order now, of not less than $10.00 a set

The convenient new format of the Encyclopaedia Britannica—light, thin, flexible, easy-to-hold volumes (one inch thick) printed on opaque India Paper—affords endless possibilities for the reader, whether for systematic study, leisurely reading or definite research.

From Subscriber No. 2161:

"Browsing in an Encyclopaedia is an amusement of mine. It resembles travel in that one sees and hears of a great many interesting places of the world. Browsing in your India paper Encyclopaedia is travelling in Pullman cars looking through the windows of truth that your good type makes clear."

From Subscriber No. 2288:

"YOU HAVE INTRODUCED US TO THE DELIGHTFUL PASTIME OF BROWSING AT EASE, INSTEAD OF SEARCHING LABORIOUSLY THROUGH THE FIELDS IN WHICH IS THE SUM OF HUMAN KNOWLEDGE."

From Subscriber No. 1820:

"IT SEEMS TO ME THAT THIS PUBLISHING EVENT IS BOUND TO QUICKEN THE WHOLE INTELLECTUAL LIFE OF OUR GENERATION .... I AM ESPECIALLY STRUCK WITH THE DELIGHTFUL LITERARY FLAVOR OF MANY ARTICLES ON SUBJECTS WHICH ONE EXPECTS TO FIND TREATED IN THE DUST-AND-ASHES MANNER."

From Subscriber No. 3247:

"I BELIEVE THAT A GREAT STEP HAS BEEN TAKEN TOWARD THE ULTIMATE GOAL OF ENCYCLOPAEDIA PRODUCTION—NAMELY, THAT HENCEFORTH THE AVERAGE READER WILL PICK UP THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA AND READ FOR PLEASURE RATHER THAN DELVE AMONG A NUMBER OF ENORMOUS TOMES FOR INFORMATION ON SOME SUBJECT IN WHICH HE HAS ALREADY BECOME INTERESTED."

The Pursuit of Knowledge is Now a Pleasure

THE employment of India paper for the Encyclopaedia Britannica has revolutionized all preconceived ideas of an encyclopaedia—heretofore regarded as a series of bulky volumes to be referred to only as a matter of necessity. The new format of the 11th Edition (each volume but 1 inch thick) renders the books so light and thin, and in the Full Flexible Sheepskin or Morocco bindings so delightful to hold, that the work for the first time in its history belongs to the category of books that may be read in an armchair, merely for the pleasure they will afford.

"Who would have thought it possible," writes a New England college professor, "that an encyclopaedia could ever compete with the latest novel?"

The new Britannica is, indeed, the most fascinating of books for casual reading, not less than for systematic study. The largest private library in the world could not give the reader such absolute freedom to choose his subject and his author. The newspapers he has read, the conversation in which he has taken part, the course of his day's work or of his amusements can have suggested to him no topic upon which he will not find the fullest, the most reliable, and the most clearly presented information. Fifteen hundred writers, including the leaders of every branch of thought and activity, are at his disposal; he has the clearest of print, the best of illustrations; no amount of money spent upon books, no amount of trouble taken in searching for the best book upon each subject, could do more for him.

For those who desire to undertake an ordered course of reading, to accomplish some definite purpose as well as to enjoy the richest of pleasures, the new Britannica provides an inexhaustible store of profit and of delight.

Intelligently and systematically used, the book (1) affords cultural facilities for those who cannot go to a university; (2) fosters professional efficiency; (3) offsets the narrowing effect of a purely specialistic training; (4) arouses both curiosity and ambition; (5) enlarges the scope and interest of school work.

Some Suggested Courses for Systematic or Occasional Reading

Preparation for Efficient Citizenship

High instincts and noble intentions do not of themselves make efficient citizens. Something more is needed—accurate knowledge. Nowhere more than in the realm of politics and foreign relations are facts and principles currently accepted and rejected with less scrutiny of their foundations. Moreover, "Civis Americanus sum," is a phrase which means more and involves more in the case of all patriotic Americans than ever before. The expanding relationships and ever widening foreign interests of this country necessitates accurate knowledge on the part of all concerning those pregnant issues with which the destiny of the United States and its present position among the community of nations are now inextricably woven. In this field no merely American work of reference can suffice. In the new Encyclopaedia Britannica the articles which touch on foreign relations are written from a comparative viewpoint and offer endless possibilities of profit to the student of affairs, to the writer and to the intelligent layman.

The following are a few of the hundreds of subjects that might be included in this course:

Contemporary History
International Relations
Navies and Armies
Tariffs, Labor Legislation
Education, Crime
Trusts, Socialism
Anarchism, Communism
Suffrage
Diplomacy
Political Economy
Trade Unions
Currency
Public Debts
Money
Railroads and Canals
Charities
Taxation, &c.

Literature and the Arts

A course of reading under this general heading would have for its object the development of the critical faculties and the faculties of intellectual and artistic interest and appreciation. In this direction the 11th Edition is beyond question the most authoritative of guides. Every division of the subject is covered in a series of exhaustive articles, each by an acknowledged authority, constituting collectively a contribution which alone will make the new edition notable among works of its kind.

This course would include a study of the many hundreds of articles on the world's

National Literatures
Poetry
Drama
Opera
Legends
Folk Lore
Music
Painting (40 pages)
Scuplture
Architecture (70 pages)
Literary Biographies
Literary Forms

—and might be prefaced by a careful study of Prof. G. E. Woodberry's exhaustive article on American Literature.

Religion, Ethics and Philosophy

There is no more interesting reading for broad minds than the study of what men of all times and countries have thought and believed. The new Britannica has always been celebrated for its articles on Religion. Those in the new edition contain the latest results of research and constitute an unparalleled body of religious exposition and interpretation.

> "Our aim and object has been to look at truth objectively, to face the religions of the world as they are; not as we or others think they ought to be; to present not only what we believe, but what everybody believes. Somewhere is the white light of truth; this light, passing through the prism of many minds, breaks into a thousand varying colours which it has been our purpose to reflect. You may say that the book is parti-coloured. You cannot say that it is partisan."—W. ALISON PHILLIPS, Editor of the Religious Section of the 11th Edition.

Biblical Criticism (844 articles)
History of Christianity (1,773 articles)
Comparative Religion (855 articles)
Churches, Propaganda
Pagan Religions
Theology and Philosophy (1,614 articles)
Apologetics

Exploration and Adventure

This course would take up the fascinating study of the world's great explorations and the bolder forms of commercial adventure, the hardier callings and forms of sport, and the opening up of new territory. It would include:

Lives of Explorers
Famous Voyages
First Discoveries
Mountains
Aeronautics
Flight
Submarines
Pearl-Diving
Orchid-Hunting
Big-Game
Shooting
Whaling
Prospecting
Lighthouse-Building, &c.

The employment of India paper completes the attraction and the usefulness of the new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. In this form, the 29 volumes occupy a minimum space, while each one is light enough to hold easily in the hand, and flexible enough to double back, cover to cover.

Home and Foreign Travel

This course would consist of articles or parts of articles which would help the reader to lay out tours combining with recreation some plan of special observation—historical, geological, agricultural, industrial or artistic. All these features of every country in the world are amply described in the new Britannica.

Reading for the Householder

There are hundreds of up-to-date articles in the new Britannica which will be found of the greatest practical use to those who have undertaken or are about to undertake the management of an independent home, such as those on

Building
Sanitation
Ventilation
Heating
Furniture
Carpentry
Lighting
Medicine
Hygiene
Rent
Insurance
Adulterations
Master and Servant
Landlord and Tenant
Fire-Prevention, &c.

Reading for the Country House

Country life, in all its aspects of work and play, is fully dealt with in the new Britannica in articles on every conceivable subject connected with it, such as:

Agriculture
Horticulture
Forestry
Fruit and Flowers
Poultry, Cattle
Outdoor Games
Bee-Keeping
Dairy-Farming
Veterinary Science
Horses, Dogs
Drainage, Irrigation
Fishing, Shooting
Hunting, Sailing
Indoor Games
Country Houses

Beautifying the Home

Most women have a natural faculty for interior decoration, but the instinct needs to be supplemented by study. The following are suggestions for a course of reading in the new Britannica in this relation:

Decoration
Old Furniture
China, Glass
Wood Carving
Ceramics
Painter-Work
Embroideries, Lace
Rugs, Tapestries
Etchings, Prints
Silverware
Indoor Plants
Plaster-Work

Indoor and Outdoor Amusements

Every known game, indoor as well as outdoor, ancient and modern, is described in the new Britannica. Here is a rich resource for the days or nights when outdoor amusement has to be foregone. There are in the work no less than 257 articles on Sports and Games. Only a few can be noted here:

Backgammon
Billiards, Pool
Boxing, Chess
Cane-Fencing
Cards (Every Game)
Charades
Children's Games
Cock-Fighting
Dancing
Dominoes
Draughts
Fencing, Foils, Golf
Gymnastics, Hockey
Riding, Tobogganing
Skittles
Yachting
Tennis, Polo
Racquets, &c.

Natural History

There are no less than 980 articles (including biographies) on Botany alone in the new Britannica, and the Zoological section is equally full. The following subjects are suggested for a course of reading:

Botany, Plants
Arboriculture
Mammals
Reptiles, Birds
Fishes, Insects
Bacteriology
Biogenesis
Evolution
Mendelism
Distribution
Comparative Anatomy, &c.

Amateur Mechanics

A course of reading in Amateur Mechanics would cover such a knowledge of machinery and processes as may be desired by those not actually engaged in mechanical work, but with a bent for and an interest in it. It would include:

Motor Cars
Motor Boats
Steam Engines
Oil Engines
Telephones
Lighting-Plants
Pumps
Turbines
Plumbing
Cameras
Typewriters
Sewing-Machines
Heating-Appliances
Gunmaking
Wireless Telegraphy, &c.

Malays, Tibetans
Ainus, Dyaks
Esquimaux
Polynesians
Maoris, Arabs
Australian Aborigines
African Races
Indian Tribes

THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA (11th Edition) consists of 28 volumes of text and an index.

Each volume of text averages 960 to 1,060 pages. The whole work contains between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 words.

There are 40,000 separate articles, 7,000 illustrations in the text, 450 full page plates (many of them coloured) and 569 maps.

The work is based on a new survey of the whole field of human knowledge, and the information is brought up to the summer of 1910.

There were more than 1,500 contributors to the 11th Edition (representing 21 countries), including 599 members of the teaching staff of 81 Universities, 200 Americans, 168 Fellows of the Royal Society and 47 Officials of the British Museum. The editorial staff numbered 64.

The whole work was written and edited at one time, nothing being printed until the text was practically finished. This ensured proper editorial supervision of the work as a whole to the end that the earlier articles should be as up-to-date as the later ones.

On May 31st the lists for the first distribution of the new (11th) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica will be closed, the present special terms of subscription will be withdrawn and there will be introduced a new schedule of prices at least $10 higher than those at which the work is now procurable.

DELIVERY of the 11th Edition will be made at the earliest possible moment, but the increasing demand for the work has been such that in the case of present applications delivery is likely to be delayed.

MAYOR YIELDS MORE IN CHARTER FIGHT

Abandons His Administrative Board and Budget Committee Plans.

MITCHEL AGAINST NEW FORM

Tells Legislators City Doesn't Need Entire Change in Charter—Against Extending Mayor's Veto Power.

Mayor Gaynor backed down still further on his new city charter proposals yesterday. A committee of the Board of Estimate, consisting of Controller Prendergast, President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, and Borough President McAneny of Manhattan, held a conference with the Mayor in the morning, and after it a memorandum was given out indicating that the Mayor had agreed to the following changes:

The abandonment of the Board of Administrative Detail.

The abandonment of a statutory budget committee.

The retention of the audit in respect of the city's contingent fund.

The retention of the certificate of the Controller in case of contracts let against the contingent fund, that there are funds available against which such contracts may be let.

The Mayor also agreed to the inclusion in the charter of provisions that the Board of Estimate should have the right of subpoena in conducting investigations rather than the heads of the city's departments, as proposed by the Gaynor-Smith charter, and that a provision should be inserted giving the Board of Estimate definite control over the streets.

There were a number of other modifications which the committee agreed upon among themselves, but which the Mayor was not yet ready to accept. These, as well as the matters on which the Mayor had given his agreement, Mr. Mitchel presented to the legislative committee yesterday afternoon at the hearing in City Hall. He was not subjected to such a heckling by the Tammany members of the committee as the previous speakers on the Gaynor charter have been, although several of the members of the committee, notably Assemblymen Hoey and Foley and Senator Saxe were not content with the agreement of the Mayor and asked questions indicating a desire to retain some of the provisions of the Gaynor-Smith charter most objected to by the Board of Estimate.

Sees No Need for New Charter.

After he had closed his discussion of the specific points on which the Board of Estimate Committee had agreed, Mr. Mitchel addressed himself to the general question of any charter revision at all at the present session. Senator Cullen, Chairman of the joint committee, tried to shut him off, and various members of the committee explained how they had heard and were acting upon an overwhelming demand for charter revision. However, Mr. Mitchel succeeded in getting a hearing, and said in this connection:

"You have before you a charter in which, you must be convinced, there are so many defects that to give the city a workable instrument it must be revamped in its entirety. That work requires more data, more time for investigation and deliberation than you or any other similar body can possibly find between now and the end of the legislative session."

Senator Cullen interrupted first to say that the legislators had before them the fruits of several charter investigations as well as two present drafts, and seemed to have all the data necessary.

"But," said Mr. Mitchel, "if you are going to give us an entire new charter, you must show the need of a new charter, and I challenge you to point out a single defect of the existing Government that cannot be corrected either by executive or by municipal legislative action, the Board of Education, the Bureau of Purchases, and the matter of street control only excepted. These things no doubt call for the adoption of new sections in our present charter, but by no conception can it be said that they create a situation in which an entirely new charter is imperative."

Opposed to Mayor's Veto.

In his discussion of the specific points raised by the Board of Estimate, Mr. Mitchel first took up the Mayor's veto, as to which his committee were unanimous, so far as the opposition to the provision in the Gaynor-Smith draft was concerned, but had not yet convinced the Mayor himself. This was the point on which much of the discussion centred in the session of the Board of Estimate on Thursday, at which time the Mayor said that he would agree to anything his colleagues wanted and didn't care whether he had extended veto powers or not.

Mr. Mitchel explained yesterday that the provisions of the Gaynor-Smith Charter giving the Mayor a suspensive veto on all matters relating to the expenditure of city money which could only be overridden by twelve votes in the Board of Estimate meant to extend the Mayor's veto to practically all the important business of that board and to place him in a position where by controlling only two votes besides his own he might tie up action indefinitely. He said:

"For one member of a deliberative body to be given first a vote equal to that of any other member and greater than that of all but two members and then receive also a veto power on matters on which he has acted by casting his votes, which veto he may make permanent by controlling only two votes besides his own, is a dangerous and unwarrantable provision and one on which the Mayor's own mind is not yet made up. The committee is unanimous in saying that this is wrong. The Controller and I think that as an original proposition the Mayor should have no veto. Mr. McAneny concurs in the recommendation of the Ivins Charter Commission that the Mayor may veto, but that ten votes in the board may override his veto."

Mr. Mitchel ran through the provisions on which the Mayor had agreed, and then presented the matters on which his committee agreed, but on which the Mayor had not yet declared his mind. They were as follows:

1. Transferring to the Board of Estimate the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics, rather than to the Commissioner of Accounts.
2. Transferring to the Board of Estimate the Bureau of Real Estates, rather than to the Sinking Fund Commission.
3. Establishing in the Board of Estimate a separate Bureau of Franchises.
4. Establishing in the Board of Estimate a separate Bureau of Standards for Supplies and Specifications.
5. The cutting out of the proposed new charter the provision in Section 208 requiring the Board of Estimate to fix maximum prices for supplies.
6. Cutting out of the proposed new charter the provision requiring the Board of Estimate to go into the terms and conditions of all contracts before determining whether an award shall be made to the lowest or other bidder.
7. Recasting of the phraseology of the section dealing with open market orders under $1,000.
8. The omission or modification of the provisions of the proposed new charter relating to the veto power of the Mayor on matters other than franchises.

Following Mr. Mitchel's appearance, Borough President McAneny, who was a member of the Ivins Charter Commission, spoke on the same general lines as his predecessor against any charter revision at this time.

Preventorium Ready In December.

The tuberculosis preventorium to be erected at Farmingdale, N. J., will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 15, it was announced yesterday. William H. Scopes of Scopes & Feustmann, architects of the preventorium, who has just returned from an inspection of the beginning of the work, said yesterday that with reasonable weather the buildings would certainly be ready for use well before next Christmas, and that the Adirondacks will not have a better equipped preventorium than that at Farmingdale when completed. Scopes & Feustmann have associated with them for this work W. W. Judell, who, with an office in New York, will superintend its progress.

PACKERS MUST GO TO TRIAL.

Judge Denies Demurrer That the Law Fails to Define Their Offense.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Ten Chicago meat packers must go to trial on Federal indictments charging them with conspiracy to control the price of fresh meat, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. This was decided to-day by Judge George A. Carpenter of the United States District Court, who overruled a demurrer in which the packers held that the Sherman law failed sufficiently to define the offense it sought to prohibit.

The packers, who were indicted on Sept. 12, 1910, are J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co.; Louis F. Swift, President; Edward F. Swift, Vice President, and Francis A. Fowler and Charles H. Swift, Directors, of Swift & Co.; Edward Tilden, President of the National Packing Company; Arthur Meeker, General Manager for Armour & Co.; Edward Morris, President of Morris & Co.; Thomas J. Connors, Superintendent of Armour & Co., and Louis H. Heyman, Manager for Morris & Co.

Attorneys for the Government declared the decision was a tremendous blow at the packers' defense and that the prosecution had scored at every point.

The indictment charged that the packers controlling the greater part of the meat industry were divided into three groups—the Armour, Swift, and Morris groups—and that these three had a common medium of exchange of price lists and instructions through the National Packing Company. The indictments also charged that the three groups had an arrangement whereby each would not compete in territory belonging to another group.

In overruling the packers' contention that the Sherman law was too indefinite and uncertain in defining the elements of the offense to justify the indictments, Judge Carpenter said "the statute defines the acts declared to be unlawful in simple English. The purpose of the act, when ascertained from the language used, is as clear as may be."

NEW HOME FOR THE GLOBE.

Office Building for Its Use to be Put Up at Dey Street and Broadway.

A newspaper and office building is to be erected for The Globe and Commercial Advertiser on the property now occupied by the paper at 5 to 7 Dey Street in addition to the abutting parcel at 187 Broadway. These three plots surround the southwest corner of Broadway and Dey Street, giving a Broadway frontage of 25.6 feet and 52.3 feet on Dey Street for the new building.

The Broadway plot, now occupied by an old five-story office structure, was bought last week from the Becar estate for about $400,000. It was not stated who the buyer was, but yesterday it was ascertained that Edward F. Searles, who owns the Dey Street property and also holds a controlling interest in the newspaper, was the purchaser. The Globe has occupied the Dey Street buildings for several years.

No details regarding the size of the new building have yet been announced. It will, however, be an important addition to the modern office structure recently erected on lower Broadway. During the building operations the newspaper has leased as temporary quarters the old three-story building on the southwest corner of Washington and Dey Streets.

The short-story prize was awarded to Abraham M. Grill, '11, for his "Episode in the Life of a Young Man," and honorable mention was made of the stories submitted by James H. Henle, '12, and Moritz A. Jagendorf, '12. No award was made of the poetry prize.

The belles-lettres prizes have been offered annually for years at Columbia, by Dr. Joel E. Spingarn, former Professor of Comparative Literature. As Dr. Spingarn is no longer of the Faculty it is thought unlikely that there will be any more competitions.

"I thank you very much for your poem, which I have read with great interest and enjoyment. I am old and tired, but still I take pleasure in the dreams of other men when they treat of noble things—and are well told. Lines like 'For Spring finds Summer trembling in the root,
And the March mists are melting into flowers,'

'Only the seeker worthy of the quest
Shall find the perfect land,' remind me of the days when I, too, dwelt in Arcadia."

AMONG THE AUTHORS

MR. E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, one of the most popular and prolific of English authors, arrived in New York the other day, and will soon visit Boston, where the American editions of his books are published—"The Moving Finger" being the latest. Mr. Oppenheim spoke at the annual meeting of the booksellers last week, and the next day was entertained at luncheon to meet a number of New York editors.

MR. JOSEPH K. GOODRICH, for many years Professor of English in the Imperial College of Kioto, declares that he has lost his almost lifelong conviction of the integrity and uprightness of Japan's political intentions, especially toward China. In the Fall he will bring out a book called "The Coming China," and next Spring one on "Africa: Past and Present."

COL. T. W. HIGGINSON, the distinguished writer, preacher, soldier, and reformer, who died at his home in Cambridge, Mass., last Wednesday, at the age of eighty-seven, was the best-known survivor of a group of men who made New England an intellectual and moral stronghold in the third quarter of the past century.

MR. JACOB RIIS, writing in the Yale News on the possibilities offered by a newspaper career, warns against "old fish-eyed cynicism, which will surely get newspaper aspirants if they don't watch out." The newspaper profession, he says, "needs young men with nerve, who will drag from his seat the devil of sneering cynicism that has done more to degrade our people than the yellow sensationalism of the press." Mr. Riis, it will be remembered, was himself for many years a New York reporter.

MRS. ROGER PRYOR, in a recent interview in a Boston paper, when asked why she waited so long before she began to write fiction, replied:

> I was too busy before. I had a family of seven children and I was also much interested in society. I used to have eleven teas on an afternoon's programme; but after a time I got tired of that. My health is not really robust, and other cares have weaned me almost entirely away from society.

Asked what she considered woman's best age Mrs. Pryor said: "Every age has its compensations, and the interests are so varied and changing that it would be impossible to choose between them. Personally I have got the greatest satisfaction out of the last epoch of my life."

"PIERRE DE COULEVAIN," the writer of two "best-sellers," is, in spite of her assumed name, a woman. Her first work attracted the attention of Ludovic Halévy and other eminent French critics and won for her an Academy prize.

MR. CHARLES PIERCE BURTON is said to be busily engaged on a fourth book in his series of "Bob's Hill" stories.

MISS CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY, author of two popular collections of plays for children, will have the distinction of being the first woman in this country to produce a pageant for children when, on May 30, she gives in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, her "Pageant of Patriotism."

MR. H. PERRY ROBINSON, author of "Essence of Honeymoon," is a London journalist and author who has lived much in America in recent years.

MARGARET CAMERON is spending the Spring months in New York, writing another novel which will have Mexico for its setting. To her publishers she writes: "I am trying to give myself as completely as possible to this book, and am working literally night and day. Last night I sat here at my desk all night, hard at it, except for an hour of rest between four and five. This high pressure work seems to be the only way I can do things now. I fancy it would surprise the public, however, who seem to think light comedy is tossed off before breakfast, as a sort of appetizer."

MR. ARTHUR LELAND, author of "Playground Technique," is a New Englander by birth and a Western man by training. His experience with playgrounds began in Louisville, Ky., where he installed and supervised the grounds. He was later Director of Athletics in the University of Denver, Physical Director at Owensboro, Ky., Supervisor of Playgrounds in St. Paul and Supervisor of Playgrounds at Denver. Mr. Leland is now a playground architect and builder.

MR. HAPSBURG LIEBE, writer of short stories, is a Tennessee mountaineer who was early drawn by the "wanderlust" to China, Japan, the Philippines, and Hawaii. The "local color" of his Western stories is acquired at first hand.

MR. OWEN JOHNSON is said to be at work on a dramatization of "The Varmint."

MR. BRIAN HOOKER, who wrote the book of the $10,000 prize winner in the Metropolitan Opera contest, is already known for literary criticism and for original writing in fiction. His most recent work appears this month in The North American Review and is a careful analysis of Kipling's recent work, as well as a comparison of this with his earlier stories. Mr. Hooker has prepared two other articles for The North American.

MISS LOUISE COLLIER WILLCOX has received recognition as a critic of poetry from Mr. Theodore Watts-Dunton, who says in his prefatory note to the new volume of selections from Swinburne: "Except Sir William Robertson Nicoll's, the most appreciative article on Swinburne that I have yet seen is one by Louise Collier Willcox. It is called 'The Fortifying Principle in Swinburne.'"

HARPERS BOOKS

Miss Gibbie Gault

By Kate Langley Bosher

Women's intuition recognized Mary Cary and drew the child into the hearts of thousands. So many thousands, in fact, that the rest of her story had to be written. And here it is in this new book, "Miss Gibbie Gault." There will be a charm for every woman in the surroundings of Mary Cary—the story of her environment as she grows up in Yorkburg—its society, institutions, the Needlework Guild, the town council, the subtle-tragic influence of gossip. Gibbie Gault is a woman in a thousand. And romance also touches Mary Cary as she grows and blooms into young womanhood. This new story is a book to read and to love.

Essence of Honeymoon

By H. Perry Robinson

"When a married couple leave a hotel," I said to Euphemia, "the wife should walk quite independently of the husband. You need not cling to me." "But I wasn't going to," interrupted Euphemia—"walk straight on to the front door and strive to convey the impression that you are accustomed to having a husband around."

Everybody who has ever indulged in a honeymoon will laugh over the delicious humor of the situations, and everybody who hasn't been honeymooning would better steer clear of the book altogether—it is too fine, too dainty for the uninitiated.

The King Over the Water

Justin Huntly McCarthy

Here we have a "vision of all the gallant men and good women that had given life and love, goods and gear, for the Stuart cause." The story covers a portion of this period, and it is concerned with the romantic adventure of releasing from captivity the affianced bride of the King. The dash, the zest, and the joy of life have not been caught in the pages of a book so completely since Mr. McCarthy wrote "If I Were King."

SUBWAY MADNESS.

We learn upon the high authority of Col. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, that the members of Mr. McAneny's committee "are able to distinguish chaff from wheat, stone from bread, and bricks of gold from bricks of clay." This is reassuring. The inference to be drawn from Col. Williams's remark is, we judge, that in his opinion the subway offer of the Interborough Company is a tender to the city of a "gold brick." Conversely, we are assured by Mr. Shonts that the Interborough people "are not even disposed to question the purely altruistic purposes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, or to give credence to those who say that the motive back of their desire to form a partnership with the city is to postpone indefinitely the day for putting under ground their overhead trolley wires and feeders in the congested portions of Brooklyn, which have so long endangered life and property." This, we take it, is sarcasm, and the plain implication is that, in Mr. Shonts's judgment, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's offer would not stand the tests of the Assay Office.

This little interchange of compliments, however, may well put the representatives of the city on their guard, because of the three parties to this subway transaction the city is the only one at all exposed to the danger of buying a "gold brick." The Brooklyn Company and the Interborough Company are abundantly able to look out for themselves. In such matters it is the public, if anybody, that gets fooled.

Is there any reason to believe that the city is going to be fooled? It has the opportunity by the acceptance of either of the offers to invest something like seventy millions of the taxpayers' money in building subways. Naturally the companies are careful to require that the city shall assume the risk of loss in operation. It is a very real risk, not an imaginary one. It is a risk inseparable from the policy of public construction, since the city, through the optimism of its people or of its political officers, may easily be persuaded to invest millions in the building of a subway which private capital could not be got to touch. For instance, Col. Williams in his official proposal to the Public Service Commission says:

> The accompanying map, also, includes the proposed subway on Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn. We think this is a mistaken route and a questionable investment of capital, and we suggest that it be eliminated.

The Interborough Company offers to build a subway through Lafayette Avenue, one-half of the cost to be paid by the city and the other half by the company. There is the gravest reason to doubt whether any subway is needed in Lafayette Avenue, or whether its operation would for many years or ever be profitable. Like doubts arise in connection with other routes proposed in one or both of the offers. The maps accompanying the proposals show a network of subways and elevated road extensions that sprawl and spread over a vast territory, much of it uninhabited, some of which offers no promise of ever having a population dense enough to pay operating costs on the constructions now proposed. The city needs ivory towers at the Battery and in City Hall Park as much as it needs some of these rapid transit lines which the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the Interborough gayly offer to equip and operate if the city will pay the cost of building. The removal of the salutary restraint of the debt limit has produced a sort of exaltation of mind about subways. We are subway mad, and unless the greatest caution is observed the city will find itself committed to plans far in excess of any need now visible.

In the maps accompanying the proposals of both the companies are routes which neither wishes to build, on both maps lines are laid down that ought not to be built. As we have remarked, neither plan meets the city's need, which can be met as it should be met only by taking the best of both plans. This suggestion is put aside as an impossibility. If it be impossible, then we must conclude that the city is now helpless in the clutch, not of one company, but of two. Out of competition it gets no relief. It must still accept what the companies offer, which is not at all what the city itself needs. The acceptance of either offer would almost certainly lead to litigation that would indefinitely postpone the beginning of actual work. The subways and the rapid transit facilities we want can be had only by combining both plans.

THE "SUBORDINATE DISPOSITION."

It is Mayor Gaynor's idea that the landscape architect of the parks should be a man of suitable technical education and good executive ability, but that he should also be of a "subordinate disposition." Mr. Samuel Parsons's technical education and executive ability have been demonstrated in twenty-nine years of public service. If he had been of a subordinate disposition in the face of Mr. Stover's various schemes to destroy the parks his multitude of friends and admirers would have been compelled to doubt his executive ability. Mr. Stover, with the encouragement of the Mayor and the help of Mr. Higgins of the Bronx, of whom better judgment might have been expected, has deprived the city of the services of Mr. Parsons.

Congratulations are due to the Commissioner of Accounts, Mr. Fosdick, whose vague and unsatisfactory report in the case of Mr. Parsons was used as the excuse for dismissal. The worthlessness of the material on which the report is founded is indicated in the admission on the witness stand by Prof. Maynadier, the soil expert, that he had been rebuked by the chief of his bureau for misrepresenting it in his published utterances about the resoiling of Central Park. Clearer and abler reports prepared by Fosdick have been less effective with the present municipal administration. In his investigation of public affairs in Queens County he made plain a deplorable condition of political corruption, but his report was discredited, and Gresser was "vindicated" and kept in office, through the influence of the Mayor, it is said. Mr. Fosdick now understands better what he must do, and how he must do it.

It is perfectly true that the retiring landscape architect is not of a "subordinate disposition." He has had the suitable technical education and he has exercised his executive ability. He has done something, all that was within his power, to prevent the destruction of the parks. He has prepared reasonable plans for their improvement. He has thwarted many of Mr. Stover's wild schemes. With a purely political landscape architect, of the truly "subordinate disposition," Stover will now have a free hand in the parks. Later, when wiser counsels prevail, Mr. Parsons will probably be recalled to office to undo the havoc. It would be a good thing for this city if he could be appointed permanent Superintendent of all the parks, free from political interference.

THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION.

The Chicago Tribune of May 8, and The Tribune of New York in its issue of the 10th, contain statements from their Washington correspondents that Attorney General Wickersham has filed with President Taft an opinion condemning as unwise the project to incorporate the Rockefeller Foundation, which is intended to receive the bulk of Mr. Rockefeller's great fortune. Therefore, it is stated, the bill of incorporation introduced by Senator Gallinger and favorably reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia will not be passed by Congress. If passed, The Chicago Tribune's correspondent says, President Taft "in all probability will veto it." The controlling reasons for the President's approval of his Attorney General's opinion are thus stated:

> In the first place, the foundation avowedly would be perpetual. In the second place, its Directors would determine what would best advance civilization and apply themselves to its realization, even if the purpose might be the control of the Government of the United States.

And the correspondent of our New York neighbor says:

> It is not a far cry for the imagination to depict a situation where, in all sincerity, the Trustees might determine to devote the fund at their disposal to the frustration of some politico-economic movement favored by large masses of the people, under which circumstances it is not difficult to imagine a growing state of indignation which would ultimately disregard law and order and, perhaps, even attain the proportions of a revolution. At least, this is the view of the Attorney General, and by it the President is most likely to be guided.

Here is a mare's nest. We doubt whether Attorney General Wickersham has been foolish enough to attach his signature to a document setting forth reasons such as we have quoted; much more is it to be doubted that President Taft would read through such a document to its illogical close. To the bill granting a perpetual succession of the Trustees is added the clause "save as hereinafter provided"; and it is further provided that Congress may, at any time, impose limitations upon the business of the foundation and terminate any particular endowment. There will be no endowment in perpetuity. Another section requires the corporation to expend its income for the philanthropic purposes enumerated, and not to accumulate and add it to the principal. The exemption of taxation applies only to Federal taxes—but it is a fixed principle that property devoted to charity shall not be taxed, and this property will be devoted to public uses under Government control. Trustees are not self-perpetuated. The consent of the President and of three other high Government officials and of the Presidents of five great universities may make void the election of any candidate to a vacancy. Dr. Edward T. Devine, editor of The Survey, who opposed the Rockefeller bill in its original form, approves it as at present drafted. Moreover, the amendments now incorporated could have been made at any time in the original charter by the use of the reserve power which it conferred upon Congress.

The bill at present meets all the objections which have been seriously and definitely urged against it. Public sentiment approves it. The fact that Congress has not yet validated its provisions may not be explained by vague reports of Presidential disapproval. It has in the past been difficult to get the ear of Congress in such matters. The Smithsonian Institution "yammered at the gates" a good many years before it obtained its charter, notwithstanding the fact that the Smithson bequest was directly to the United States of America. The two houses ought not to be so distracted by other and pressing concerns as not to realize the significance of this great work of philanthropy which awaits their approval.

NEARING THE END.

At Ciudad Juarez, now the capital of his provisional Government, as it was the capital of Benito Juarez during the usurpation of Maximilian, Gen. Madero has formed a full Cabinet, and assumed all the authority of a ruler. His belligerent rights have not been recognized and the Government of Mexico is still asserting its authority in Mexico City. Thursday this Government declared its intention to try Gen. Navarro, the vanquished defender of Juarez, by court-martial for treason. Obviously the only course open to Navarro is to remain within the rebel lines. There is not the slightest evidence that he surrendered until further resistance was useless. It is said that his men fought for two days without food or water.

Madero's avowed plan is to march all his troops southward to Mexico City. The distance is 1,000 miles, and the road is quite hilly. Probably Madero will patch up the broken railroads and use them to transport his soldiers. Between Juarez and Mexico, Chihuahua City is now threatened with assault, Torreon is practically cut off from the world, Lerdo and Palacio Gomez are in the hands of the rebels, Durango fears an attack, Zacatecas is surrounded by rebels, business is practically suspended in Aguascalientes, Parral has summoned aid from the Federals but has not received it. Many villages are in possession of the rebels. We receive no war news from the important cities of Queretaro and Guadalajara, but the tide of revolution is approaching them. The mining camps of Guanajuato have been fortified and there is little or no business in that city.

If yesterday's vague report that revolutionists have captured Salina Cruz is verified, traffic on the Tehuantepec Railroad may be suspended. Railroad communication between Mexico City and Texas is maintained only on the roundabout way from San Luis Potosi to Tampico, and thence to Laredo. The Mexican Railway to Vera Cruz is still operated, but there have been dangerous outbreaks along its line, particularly at Orizaba. News from the rest of the country seems hard to get in Mexico City. Armed police and soldiers guard the streets and the citizens have been authorized to carry arms. The hope of securing peace through negotiations has not been abandoned, but the stern old dictator in the National Palace seems immovable. The revolution makes headway daily, and it seems that the end cannot be long deferred. The Government seems to be waiting for Reyes, but what can Reyes do?

CHIEF PROBATION OFFICER.

Chief Justice Russell of the Court of Special Sessions has, in the task of filling the vacancy of Chief Probation Officer, an opportunity to show in a signal manner why the office which he fills so ably was created. Upon nothing does the success and development of probation work in this city more depend than on the fitness of this court's Chief Probation Officer. He is largely responsible for inspiring and organizing the work, not only in the adult parts of the Court of Special Sessions, but, also, in the Children's Courts.

The Judges under Chief Justice Russell have this week voted to fill the eighteen new positions of Probation Officers, for whose salaries the Board of Estimate will supply the money, out of the first hundred names of eligible persons who have submitted to the competitive civil service examination. This is the first time this method has been practiced for the selection of Probation Officers, and inspection of the list and records of the applicants demonstrates its efficacy. They are a fine lot. The new Probation Officers and the appointment of a good Chief by Justice Russell will serve at once sensibly to check the beginnings of crime and the growth of young criminals in this city. We trust, also, that Chief Magistrate McAdoo and his assistants of the First Division will delay no longer in filling from the eligible list of the civil service the nine new positions of Probation Officers created for the Magistrates' Courts under the act of 1910.

CANADA'S LOYALTY.

This week's newspapers from Canada read very much like our own. Here, for example, is a quotation from the first page of a leading Ministerial organ:

> Twenty-two thousand four hundred and sixty-seven fans and fanettes—count 'em—twenty-two thousand four hundred and sixty-seven—saw the Eastern League season opened in Toronto yesterday.

Of course there are editorial remarks on the important event. According to this organ "reciprocity triumphs in the domain of sport." Further:

> Before signing him on for the Tory League Manager Borden ought to try out his new pitcher, McBride, on the diamond at Island Park.

Mr. Borden, be it remarked, is the leader of the Opposition, and Mr. McBride is the Premier of the western province which drove Sir Wilfrid into reciprocity, and is now being enlisted by the Opposition to drive him out of office.

The grounders are clipping the dandelions now, and soon will be clipping the daisies. It would be cruel to treat too seriously the sympathetic cord which binds the hearts of our cousins to ourselves in such perfect sympathy and harmony. Accordingly it is in a spirit merely of urbane chaff that we ask our neighbors why it is baseball that drives them into such a frenzy that they discuss even their politics in terms of the game. Why, if they are so loyal as they say, do they not grow enthusiastic over the monarchical game of cricket? However, it is indisputable that Canada is loyal to baseball, and we are willing to let it go at that.

THE "LOAN SHARK" CONFERENCE.

The Merchants' Association will on May 18 hold an hour's conference with the leading merchants of New York upon a plan, proposed by it and agents of the Russell Sage Foundation, to consider the hapless case of those of their employés whose livelihood and whose families' support are menaced by the greedy and inhuman "loan sharks."

To forbid employés to assign their wages to these ravenous creatures under penalty of discharge is the worst thing that employers can do. Small-salaried persons must at times borrow money upon their wages. To threaten them with discharge is to equip the "loan shark" with the keen and formidable teeth of blackmail. His promise of absolute secrecy is kept at the price of extortionate rates of interest, running up from 175 to 390 per cent., and higher. Many large employers have recognized the need for temporary loans among small wage earners by establishing loan departments to which their employés may apply for sums of money at reasonable rates. The extension of this plan by forming an employers' co-operative loan association is the object of the coming conference. The experiments have worked out satisfactorily in the increased efficiency and loyalty of the employés, and, aside from their humanitarian aspects, they have proved of benefit to the business system.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Generosity Well Directed. Just as no great hospital can render all, or more than a comparatively small part, of the public service it is capable of giving unless it is also the essential part of an equally great school for the teaching of medicine and surgery, so great libraries should be great schools for the training of librarians. Nowhere else can both the theory and practice of a most important art or profession, that of making easily and generally available for present and future use the knowledge acquired and recorded by past generations, be as well imparted as in the midst of a huge collection of skillfully arranged and indexed books.

There the pupils can learn by doing, which is the best way of learning—one is almost tempted to say the only way really to learn. Therefore is New York City to be congratulated on the fact that Mr. Carnegie has again displayed his generous wisdom, or his wise generosity, by offering to the Directors of our new Public Library $75,000 a year for five years for the establishment and conduct by their Executive Committee of a school of this sort. A system of apprentice employés had already been thought out, but that, while excellent in itself, would have made the training of the apprentices purely incidental to the services rendered to this particular library, and while it undoubtedly would have produced a certain number of men and women more or less competent to take charge of other libraries, their preparation for the outside positions could not have been either as broad or thorough as Mr. Carnegie's gift will render practicable. Thanks to him, the training will become a main objective, not an incident, and the library will itself profit by the very advantages it confers upon others.

Mere books, no matter how numerous, do not make a library. At any rate, the quality of the librarian and his assistants counts for so much when estimating the value of a library that it is not much of an exaggeration to say that nothing else counts. Certainly a library of 10,000 books, where the seeker for information has in getting it the assistance of a man who knows exactly where it is to be found, is worth many more than ten times as much as a library ten times as large, in which the inquirer must dig for himself through a maze and wilderness of irrelevant literature before he finds what he wants.

Just Missed a Legal Recognition. When it became known that a man on trial in this city, charged with burglary, was confronted with no evidence except certain finger prints on a piece of glass found at the scene of the crime, there was probably no expectation that he would be convicted. For it did not seem likely that the law, with its inveterate liking for everything old, preferably mediaeval, and its deep suspicion of anything new or scientific, would give much weight, if any, to a means of identification unauthorised by ancient precedent. On the other hand, the curious prejudice of jurymen against the very best evidence there is, namely, circumstantial evidence, is well known. So the chances were that Cella, if only he sat tight and denied, would go free, even though guilty.

Unfortunately, though a burglar, he is an educated and intelligent man. He listened to the explanation of the finger-print system made by experts in its use, he was convinced by it that his presence in the entered premises had been conclusively proved, and, without waiting to hear what the law or the jurymen had to say on that subject, he confessed his guilt!

We say unfortunately, for, with the trial thus prematurely ended, we get only an oblique and unsatisfactory recognition, so far as our courts are concerned, of the validity of the contention that the finger prints of every man are unlike, and with certainty can be distinguished from those of every other man, and it is of high social desirability that such recognition should as soon as possible be imbedded in the law as a fundamental rule of criminal procedure. That the contention is true there has been for years no doubt on the part of any man at once reasonable and enlightened. Of course, it has not been demonstrated, and no such universal negative ever can be demonstrated, that two men never did and never will make with all ten fingers prints exactly alike, or so nearly alike that they cannot be thus identified. But the probability that this is the case has been made so high that it amounts to certainty. It is, indeed, as close to certainty as mortals ever get, and much closer than they get in any except the rarest instances.

Judge Rosalsky, it is pleasant to record, saw the great importance of this case, and by his adroit questioning of the prisoner extracted all possible advantage from its outcome. But five of the jurymen, it seems, wouldn't have accepted the finger prints as against the testimony of the interested witnesses who tried to establish the alibi on which Cella had at first confidently relied! That is beautifully characteristic of jury box—conservatism.

Work Needed for the Bayne Bill. Among other disastrous consequences of the fire in the Capitol at Albany was the aid it gave the opponents of the Bayne-Blauvelt Game bill. This measure absolutely forbids the sale in the State of any wild game animals or birds, rabbits alone excepted, and its passage by those competent to judge is considered necessary to prevent the speedy extermination of the few species still surviving in numbers so lamentably small.

When the fire occurred the bill had been favorably reported from committee, the Governor was known to be eager to sign it, and the arguments of its energetic advocates had so impressed both the Senate and the Assembly that a favorable vote seemed assured. The fire threw everything into confusion, and now the time before adjournment is so short, and the Legislature has so much to do, that the opponents of the bill think themselves safe, at least for this session. They probably are, but urgent appeals for action that would take only a few minutes might still be effective, if numerous enough and if made promptly enough.

The bill ought to be passed. Its only antagonists are the owners of certain private preserves and the game dealers who with high prices tempt pot-hunters to supply the needs of a few restaurants catering to after-theatre patrons in this city. On the other side are all real sportsmen, all the naturalists, and all the people of every sort who would regret the disappearance from our woods and fields of forms of life that add so much to their interest—of forms of life which are, too, though practically negligible as a source of food, some of great value in other ways and none of injury in any way.

In an extra edition of "The Wild Call Life," under the heading of "The Thing to Do," William T. Hornaday writes:

> It is not necessary to again ask men to vote for the Bayne-Blauvelt bill who already intend to do so! The thing to ask for, of Senators and Assemblymen, is to keep the bill from being crowded off the track in the closing rush; press for its consideration; and get votes for it when it comes up for passage.

THE UNKEMPT PARKS.

Suggests That Women's Organizations Get Busy to Clean Them Up.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A forgotten poet once wrote some jingling verses emphasizing the joyous sentiment, "When the green comes into the Park"; but alas! the green comes haltingly into our New York parks, and eventually may cease altogether. This is no raven croak. If you need an object lesson, go and walk around Madison Square Park. You will return a sadder and wiser individual, having seen orange and banana peelings freely flung about on the grass, (the paths are kept reasonably clean by the sweepers;) cigarette and candy boxes scattered anywhere; the inevitable paper bag afloat and newspapers buffeted hither and thither by the wind. That park, instead of being a beauty spot in the midst of New York, as it should be, is a disgrace to civilization.

Let us thank heaven, fasting, for the fact that the first-comers to these shores were law-and-order people—frugal, industrious, cleanly, always thoughtful of the rights of others; and so, by custom and inheritance, are their descendants.

Since the women are reaching out for new activities, why do they not exercise some civic pride—instead of tilting at such futile windmills as suffrage, and parading in hobble skirts and helmet hats to show their sympathy with Pankhurst ruffianism—and set on foot an independent movement to clean up the city parks, to keep them free from litter, and to insist that the grass shall be allowed to grow according to Nature's intention.

Why, in the first place, are there not printed and framed regulations hung in the parks, making it a misdemeanor, subject to fines, to throw a banana or orange peeling, a cigarette box, paper bag, peanut shell, or newspaper anywhere within a park's precincts, except in the tin receptacle provided for it? And why, in the second place, are not such regulations enforced by law, as in the case of smoking and spitting? Order is the first law of civilization, and it is quite time that the noble army of devastators were given a strong tip that it does not own New York, nor any portion of her park benches, except on sufferance, but that the parks are for all the people, the workers as well as the drones.

President Taft's Backbone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Taft is giving an exhibition of what has been sorely needed in the country for the last few years, and that is the benefits that will result from the possession of a good, strong backbone. His firmness in the Mexican complication in resisting appeals from interested parties for intervention will redound to his credit in years to come. And now his plain talk to browbeating farmers and their allies, giving them good advice and convincing reasons for his position on public measures, and incidentally teaching them a lesson in good manners, will go far to strengthen him in public confidence.

Hoffman Boulevard's Condition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I suppose New York must always be ridiculous, but the condition of what is called Hoffman Boulevard has ceased to be funny. A year ago it was in such a scandalous state of neglect and dilapidation as to be unfit for use. Since then nothing whatever has been done to repair it. All the way from the bridge to Jamaica there is not one single yard of road that is not pitted with holes, hollows, and gullies, so that a motor car, even when driven at a snail's pace, is wrenched, racked, rattled, and bumped, and the occupants nearly thrown from their seats.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE SITE.

Mr. Shattuck Suggests the Plot to be Formed by the Extension of 7th Av.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest my friend Mr. Flagg's letter with reference to a suggested site for the proposed new Court House.

His letter is interesting as emphasizing an idea which the society, whose Committee on Court House Site I am the Chairman of, the Municipal Art Society, has urged for many years upon the city authorities when considering new improvements, that of placing new improvements in a section of the city where at the time the real estate values are low and thus securing the advantage of the raising in values of the real estate by the very investment made in the new improvements by the city itself. To this part of Mr. Flagg's letter I heartily agree. Wherein I differ, however, from him is as to the site to be selected.

The property in and around the easternmost end of Wall Street is not the most economical that could be secured for the purpose of the new building and its necessary surroundings of park space or open setting to give it especial dignity of position. I therefore take leave to ask the courtesy of your columns for the consideration of an entirely different site, which has many advantages in its favor, and which is the site that will be formed by the extension of Seventh Avenue south.

The extension of Seventh Avenue from Greenwich Avenue through to Hudson Park and Varick Street, thus making a continuous avenue through the lower city, has been definitely approved by the city engineer, Mr. Nelson P. Lewis, and recommended to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment through his report prepared at the request of Mayor Gaynor, so that we may assume that this is one of the first improvements that the city will consider favorably, especially as it forms part of the subway problem, giving as it would by this extension at a nominal expense a new thoroughfare from Southern New York for the subway system to be developed.

The property to be secured for the Seventh Avenue extension would leave a triangle of which this would be the western boundary, the other two sides being Greenwich Avenue on the northeast and Christopher Street on the southwest, the point of the triangle being Sixth Avenue at Eighth and Ninth Streets, at which is the Sixth Avenue elevated railway station and the Ninth Avenue McAdoo subway station, with the Jefferson Market Court House adjoining. This triangular site is an equivalent to the site especially prepared for the Paris Opera on the Great Boulevard when the new Opera site was determined upon by that enlightened city. This site could be obtained at a very low cost, because as a whole the section known as "Greenwich Village" has remained dormant as to real estate values for many years. The improvement so located would at once enhance the value and taxing possibility of a great area contiguous to the site, and thus the city by its own investment would secure a definite increase in yearly returns through its tax rolls.

Architecturally such a site presents the most splendid opportunities for a design with ample surrounding of background to give the best setting. We might hope that a setting as successful in such a situation as Garnier's masterly Opera House would be the outcome of any competition for design.

As to ease of access, it would be noted that the building is strategically placed so as to be reached by the entire McAdoo service with all the railroads across the river by the extension of the McAdoo service to Forty-second Street, thus connecting with the New York Central, by the Seventh Avenue connecting with the Pennsylvania system by the extension of the McAdoo, which, by their charter, they have the right to do to Eighth Street and Fourth Avenue, thus connecting it with the metropolitan underground system, while the elevated railroad on Sixth Avenue stops at the door. The Ninth Avenue elevated is but two blocks away and the Eighth Street crosstown lines connect with all the surface trolley lines. It has a convenience of location which no other site as yet discussed can compare with—certainly not the site indicated by Mr. Flagg. I hope that you will place this matter before your readers as one of the most convenient of all sites and one of the most inexpensive.

Chairman of the Committee on Court House Site of the Municipal Art Society.

INVENTORS ARE OUTSIDERS.

Says Few of the Great Ones Triumphed by Aid of Corporations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. "W. K." is lamentably astray in his facts when he says that the inventions "which really have a commercial value have been developed by the engineers of great commercial enterprises." Just take a few instances. Was James Watt an engineer of a great commercial enterprise when he made his inventions that carried the steam engine so far toward perfection? Was Whitney the engineer of such a commercial enterprise when he invented the cotton gin? or was Morse, when he invented the electric telegraph? or Bell, when he invented the telephone? or Fulton, when he applied steam power to river navigation? or Westinghouse, when he invented the air brake? or Edison, when he invented the multiple telegraph and the incandescent electric light? In none of these instances does "W. K.'s" statement hold good, and similar cases might be cited almost without end. It usually happens that the more important inventions are made by "outsiders," who have had little or no previous connection with that particular subject, and many of these inventions have formed the basis of wholly new and independent "commercial enterprises" of the greatest importance. Moreover, it often happens that these established enterprises are dependent on outside and independent inventors to improve the very apparatus which they are manufacturing, and their managers and owners are constantly on the lookout for these independent inventors and the products of their brains.

It is just at that point that our present system of patent law, and more particularly its administration in the Federal courts, fails completely to protect the independent inventor. As soon as his invention becomes known to the owners and managers of the "enterprise" already strongly established and having plenty of resources and ready capital, they make an offer for the invention, often accompanied by an offer of a salary to the inventor. If their offer is accepted, well and good; if it is not, they proceed to appropriate the invention and put it upon the market, with here and there some slight alterations or additions, and defy the inventor to prevent them.

Irregularities in Sidewalks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter which appeared in this morning's Times, signed "Another Pedestrian," it is stated that "it is impossible to have any complaint for irregularities in the sidewalks corrected by any city department." In another letter on the same subject, over the initial "R," your correspondent says that the raising or lowering of sidewalks in front of premises seems to be at the will of the owner of the premises, and asserts his belief that such practices are illegal. I know little of the law, but it is certainly common sense to suppose that such nuisances can only be illegal. Why cannot we stir some authority to action in such matters. It is this utter disregard for or observance of law or propriety which leads to flagrant violations in other ways.

Memorial Tablet to Tyndale.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The debt which we all owe to William Tyndale, the translator, has been freely acknowledged during the last few years. He was born in this parish, and it is proposed to place in the church a memorial tablet, and also to complete the peal of bells, on which would be put appropriate inscriptions. We are anxious to make the memorial a worthy one, and I feel that this is an object which would appeal to all English-speaking people.

May I ask any of your readers who would like to show practical sympathy with the proposal to communicate with Feigned Hysteria.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Prof. Joseph Jastrow, Prof. Dickinson Miller, and Messrs. Sargent, Kellogg, Davis, and Rinn were all of the opinion that the hysteria of Palladino was about as genuine as her phenomena, and that the evidence of imposture was ample in both cases.

One of the conjurers has already favored the English Society for Psychical Research with the facts which he observed, concerning the hysteria, and Miss Alice Johnson, the Secretary of the society, says that the position is well taken. One of these men ought to reply to Dr. Hyslop and to tell your readers what they know about pseudo-hysteria.

TAFT WILL DEDICATE NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY

Opening Ceremonies to be Held Before a Select Audience Limited to 500.

15,000 ARE INVITED LATER

Will File Through the Building in Procession and Precautions Will Be Taken Against a Panic.

The programme for the opening of the city's new $8,000,000 public library, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, on Tuesday, May 23, has been practically completed. The speakers are to be President Taft, Gov. Dix, Mayor Gaynor, Dr. John L. Billings, Director of the public library system of the city, and the venerable John Bigelow. They are to speak from an elevation at least forty feet above the heads of their audience.

The formal exercises by which the great marble structure, covering two city blocks in width and extending from Fifth Avenue half way to Sixth Avenue in dept, will be dedicated and publicly opened will take place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of May 23. The attendance is limited to 500, the list having been carefully prepared to include the highest National, State, and city officials, together with the heads of the various leading diplomatic corps accredited to the United States.

The guests will enter from Fifth Avenue, and the ceremonies will take place in the main vestibule, just within the great bronze doors. Five hundred chairs will be put on the marble floor of the vestibule for the guests, and the speakers and the Trustees will ascend winding stairways at either side to the three galleries overlooking the entrance. From the central gallery President Taft and others taking part in the ceremonies will speak.

Just what form the addresses will take has not been divulged. It is only announced that President Taft will make the chief address of dedication, while the Mayor, who will, it is said, speak but a few minutes, will probably commit the building, the property of the city, to the library Directors, represented by Dr. Billings.

It is estimated that the formal exercises will not last much more than an hour, and that the President and other distinguished guests will have left the building by 4 o'clock. The time intervening between the conclusion of the ceremonies and that hour will be spent by the guests in an inspection of the more imposing rooms.

At 4 o'clock 15,000 persons, to whom cards will be sent, will be admitted also for an inspection of the building. These 15,000 have been selected from among the most prominent men and women in the city. Admission will be by card only, and the visitors will be required to proceed two abreast along a certain colonnade, which will be indicated by police stationed at short intervals throughout the structure.

It got out yesterday that the various committees in charge for the opening day are a bit nervous, for fear there may be some mishap or a panic in the building when filled with visitors. At any rate, every precaution, it was said, would be taken against such an occurrence. The Police Commissioner will assign 500 policemen, amply officered, to the building that day. They will have instructions not to allow any one in the building who carries even so much as a cane or umbrella, and persons with bundles will be strictly ruled out. Not even the distinguished guests for the formal exercises will be expected to bring their canes or umbrellas. If they do they will be requested to leave them at the door.

When the great crowd enters at 4 o'clock it will be discouraged from going on the second floor at all on the score that the rooms are all locked and there will be nothing to see. They will be conducted by policemen and other guides over a prescribed route, which will take them through several of the larger and more important rooms on the third floor, through lofty marble halls and colonnades, and finally out of the Fifth Avenue exits to the street. To avoid the possibility of a disturbance of any kind the police will have orders not to allow any flashlight or other photographs to be taken in the building while the visitors are going through, and no one with a camera will be admitted under any circumstances.

The doors of the library will be opened for library business on Wednesday morning, May 24.

WATER FOR REFRIGERATING.

Says It Can Be Saved by a Circulating Apparatus.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to call your attention to a possible means of saving a considerable amount of water in this city, which I think is worthy of serious consideration by the authorities in charge of the Water Supply Department, in view of a possible shortage in the water supply. Hotels, apartment houses, cold storage warehouses, ice plants, &c., have refrigerating apparatus in use, which apparatus requires the use of water for cooling purposes. Where this water is taken from the city mains it is heated up ten degrees or more, and then usually passes to the sewer. In hotels, of course, part of this water is used throughout the house for legitimate purposes, but a considerable portion, I believe, is allowed to go to waste.

There is an apparatus on the market through which this water can be circulated and cooled so that the same water can be used over and over again. There is a small loss due to evaporation, which amounts to possibly 2 per cent. of the total amount of water circulated. With this apparatus there is no water discharged into the sewer, and it can be readily seen that a very substantial saving can be made in the amount of water used. In one of the fairly large hotels a refrigerating plant of sixty tons is installed, and with this capacity in operation at all times it would require the use of over 170,000 gallons of water per day. How much of this is used throughout the hotel I cannot say, but this question might be well worth looking into with a view of a substantial saving in the amount of water used.

Clanging Iron Beams.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the most potent causes of noise in this uproarious city are the wagons that go about with long, clanging iron beams. This noise could be prevented to a great extent by having some sound-deadening material between the beams—ropes, bagging; even wooden planks would do.

SOME OF MY STUFF.

Love letters old and creased and torn,
  The ones composed by me in youth,
Were read to me this very morn
  By my dear wife, who loves the truth.
"Did every word come from your heart?"
  "I think so, dear, for I was smitten."
Then Missus reads a certain part,
  The stuff I wish I'd never written.

I wish I had the letters back
  I wrote before I met my wife,
In which I told a girl, alack!
  I loved her "better than my life."
She is an Englishwoman fair,
  She writes "hot stuff" for all Great Britain,
And fills her novels—oh, despair!
  With stuff I wish I'd never written.

I wish I had the verse I wrote
  In days gone by when life was love;
I wish I had each letter, note,
  And valentine with "little dove."
Alas, for thoughts in black and white,
  Such foolishness as "angel," "kitten,"
"Soul of my soul," "heart of my heart,"
  The stuff I wish I'd never written!

LAMBS GET $12,000 FROM BIG GAMBOL

"Everywife," Travesty on "Everywoman," a Feature of Entertainment at The New Theatre.

EDDIE FOY SINGS BALLAD

In "New Rochelle" He Pathetically Describes His Farm Life—Weber and Fields in a Song and Dance.

For the first time in its history the Lambs Club gave a public "gambol" yesterday, to raise money to add to the club's building fund. Ladies' gambols, to which admission was by invitation, and entertainments to which admission was charged have been given by the club before, but the general public has never, until yesterday, been permitted to attend a real gambol.

The New Theatre, where it was held, was filled to its capacity, and as about $9,000 had been paid in premiums above the regular price of the seats, the receipts of about $12,000 will help to swell the building fund appreciably. There were no flower girls or programme sellers visible, as one has usually found at benefit performance, but a street faker with a supply of toy lambs was stationed on the sidewalk and did a thriving business of his own with the arriving audience.

The performance began at 1 o'clock and lasted until 6. Much of the programme was made up of gambols that have been given in the privacy of the Forty-fourth Street clubhouse, interspersed with "single turns" by prominent actors. All of the performers, of course, were prominent actors anyhow. The first number was "The Kaiser Quartette," composed and written by Theodore Bendix. Then followed what the programme called "a babylogue in one act." It consisted of stereopticon views of well-known Lambs in their infancy, introduced by De Wolf Hopper.

Eddie Foy, with some assistance, offered some new songs, including a pathetic ballad entitled "New Rochelle," in which he described his farm life. Then came a one-act piece called "After the Performance," written by Fritz Williams, Jack Devereaux, Sam Forrest, and Tom Wise, all members of the club. It concerned the feelings of Mr. Williams at the end of the first performance of a new play in which he was starred. Mr. Wise played the part of himself wanting to play the part taken by Mr. Williams in the new play. Mr. Forrest was the stage manager, and Mr. Devereaux the dresser.

The first half of the programme ended with a five-act symbolical drama called "Everywife," and written by George V. Hobart. The characters, in the order of their appearance, were Nobody, played by Willis P. Sweatnam; Everywife, Everyhusband, Happiness, Rhyme, Reason, Jealousy, Care, Squab, Drink, Gambler, Dress, and Excitement. A travesty on "Everywoman," it had a little serious purpose of its own, and the audience liked it so well that the author had to come out and bow three times.

An intermission occurred to give the tea room and the men in white coats downstairs a chance, and then "The Great Suggestion," a Lambs Club drama, by Bertram Marburgh and Bennet Musson, was put on with a cast that included many of the names made familiar by electric signs in seasons past. "The Unwelcome Guest," a "baby grand opera," by Arthur Weld and W. H. Denny, followed, and Donald Brian and J. Fred Zimmerman, Jr., appeared in a song and dance number. "Honor Among Thieves," by Scott Welch and Frank Craven, came next, and the entertainment concluded with "The Telephone Belles," a comedy by Clay M. Greene and Raymond Hubbell.

Just before that, however, came the joint appearance of Joe Weber and Lew Fields, in their original song and dance, "The Deutscher Pair," something they have not given for a good many years, and something that the audience demanded hearing over and over.

MME. TETRAZZINI WINS.

Supreme Court Order Dismissing Lerner's Suit for $39,000 Affirmed.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, yesterday affirmed the order of Justice Gerard in the Supreme Court dismissing the suit of Isidor Lerner, a theatrical manager, against the opera star Louise Tetrazzini for $39,000 for breach of contract.

Lerner engaged Tetrazzini to sing in Havana in 1904 at a salary of $500 an appearance. He alleged that the singer refused to comply with the terms of the agreement, but his suit was dismissed on the ground that the contract was null and void, being drawn for the benefit of Lerner alone. The court found that according to the contract Tetrazzini could not compel the theatrical manager to give her a certain number of appearances nor was he bound to pay her anything, and the agreement was void for want of mutu-

"FOLLIES FANTASTIQUE."

Wetherill Home Transformed Into Parisian Cafe and Theatre.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—A "Follies Fantastique," given in honor of the newly organized Play and Players Club, was held to-night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Price Wetherill, Eighteenth Street and Delancey Place. The invitations were sent out by Mr. and Mrs. W. Yorke Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. Jaspar Y. Brinton.

The affair was unique. The entire house had been dismantled, and rugs, carpets, furniture, and pictures removed to make the Parisian café effect realistic. Upon entering the guests found themselves in a French café rose garden, with hundreds of the blooming flowers peeping from every nook and corner. Tiny tables were scattered about, and at these the daintiest of French dishes and light French wines were served.

Just beyond was a miniature theatre upon which was run a continuous performance. Miss Geneve Gibbs, society's prettiest danseuse, gave a skirt dance. Charles S. Morgan of mask and wig fame also danced. Charles A. McCann of Baltimore, who always appears at entertainments of this character, sang in his inimitable style, finishing with "A Travesty on Grand Opera."

The Orpheus Club members sang, and Miss Emily Perkins and Mrs. C. Shillard Smith appeared in a play.

The yard attached to the house was turned into a German beer garden, with steins everywhere, and the foaming drinks were flanked by Dutch delicacies.

On the second floor the younger society girls gave Oriental dances in a setting typical of the Far East, with couches, curtains, rugs, and smoking stands contributed by every fashionable family in town. The girls appeared in the baggy white trousers worn by the women of the harems, with veiled faces, odd jewels, and long, flowing tresses.

THEATRE INTERESTS FIGHT CODE CHANGES

Object First to Buildings Being Constructed Above Theatre Auditoriums.

DON'T WANT STEEL CURTAIN

Building Trades Take the Opposite Side at a Hearing Before the Aldermen's Committee.

Theatrical interests of the city strongly opposed changes in the Building Code in regard to theatres proposed by Borough President McAneny at a hearing before the Aldermen's Committee on Buildings yesterday. Marc Klaw, Alf Hayman, and H. B. Herts spoke for the Theatrical Managers' Association. They particularly disliked the amendments which permit the construction of a fireproof building over the auditorium of a theatre, which is not allowed now. B. D. Traitel, representing the Building Trades Employers' Association, replying to this, said that the opposition of the managers was based on their desire to make it as hard as possible for more theatres to be built in this city.

Borough President McAneny filed a statement with the committee explaining the object of the changes. One was to make motion-picture shows safe from fire. Another was to permit construction of fireproof buildings over theatres, and this policy was based on the practice of other cities. A third required stairs, entrances, and exits of all new theatres to be placed on a fixed basis of calculation. Fourteen seats were to be permitted between aisles and rear courts could be abandoned.

Mr. Herts proposed an amendment to allow the elimination of court space in present theatres if they adopt the rigid, steel-faced curtain. Mr. Klaw and Mr. Hayman opposed the use of the steel curtain on the ground that the asbestos curtain was entirely sufficient for fire protection.

"This rigid curtain would add a great deal to the protection of people in our theatres," said Mr. Traitel. "It is required by the Building Code of Chicago, and has been voluntarily installed here by several theatre owners. The amendments, in return for this requirement, give the abolishment of the rear court and the building over the theatre. I cannot understand the opposition of the other side to this last provision. It would mean a saving of from $45,000 to $50,000 to an owner of a theatre."

"My opposition is based on the most selfish motive," replied Mr. Klaw—"that we do not want this $45,000 to $50,000 a year saving with the additional risk of the damage suits to be brought against us in case of fire."

Robert D. Cohn, Secretary of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, read a letter from ex-Fire Chief Croker approving of the provisions in the amendments. Building Superintendent Miller spoke for them, and he was followed by Prof. Ira H. Woolson of Columbia, who appeared for the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

FAIL TO TRAP THE COUNT.

Detectives See Him Take Marked Money, but Former Deputy Flynn Clears Him.

Since Count Anton von Regesburg of Munich, Bavaria, came to this country three months ago, he told Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn he was fleeced out of thousands of dollars by gamblers in this city. Mr. Flynn made several raids based on information he gave.

W. M. Jacobs and Abraham Abrahams told Mr. Flynn's successor, George S. Dougherty, on Thursday that the Count was going among the gamblers saying he still was employed by the Police Department, but wanted money to get out of town. By arrangement Jacobs and Abrahams met Regesburg in a saloon, and detectives saw Abrahams give him a marked $20 bill.

The Count was arrested, and in Jefferson Market Court produced papers to establish his claim to the title. Former Deputy Flynn testified that Regesburg had told him on Thursday that he was penniless, and had received an offer from Abrahams to work at a race track for $8 a day. Mr. Flynn advised him to take the place. Magistrate Harris dismissed the case.

McMANIGLE CASE IS READY.

Detectives Check Up His Confession and Learn New Dynamiting Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.—The case of the State against Ortie McManigle, who is charged with dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works last Christmas morning, is now ready for presentation to a jury. To-day the last step in the retracing of McManigle's movements in this city and in San Francisco was taken by the detectives working with the District Attorney's office.

They found a complete corroborating chain of facts which, they say, prove that McManigle spoke the truth when he confessed that he put ten quarts of nitroglycerine under the Llewellyn building here on Dec. 25.

The evidence implicates a coterie of San Francisco labor union men equally with McManigle, John J. McNamara, and James B. (Brice) McNamara, the trio charged with having dynamited the Times Building, and the Llewellyn Iron Works and is a part of the Grand Jury transcript on which the indictments against these men are based.

The names of E. A. Clancy, Olof Tveitmoe, and Mayor McCarthy are in the confession of McManigle. The first two are named conspicuously in the dynamiting conspiracy. It was also learned where McManigle passed his time during the six days he was in Los Angeles, and the three subsequent days he spent in San Francisco, with whom he conferred in both cities, and the matters discussed.

After dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works McManigle went to San Francisco, the transcript discloses, and called upon E. A. Clancy, Vice President of the National Association of Bridge and Structural Workers.

"Tell the old man that I have delivered his Christmas present to him," McManigle alleges was his greeting to Clancy.

The old man referred to was Olaf Tveitmoe.

Clancy then, according to McManigle, carried the "good news" of the dynamiting of the Llewellyn plant to Tveitmoe, and McManigle received his pay, which amounted to $750.

McManigle was then conducted into Tveitmoe's office by Clancy, according to the new disclosures, and there was mutual rejoicing over the "good work." The party then adjourned to the offices of Mayor McCarthy, where the latter commented on the "good work," so the transcript runs.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Ernest Hebleb, 23 years old, an employe of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, shot and killed himself to-day.

The young man's reason for his act was given in a letter addressed to his wife. The letter said:

"My Dear Wife: I can no longer endure the efforts of my fellow-workmen to force me into joining the union. I do not believe in unionism, and they are making my life so miserable that I cannot bear it any longer. So good-bye."

LAWYER IN CONTEMPT SENTENCED TO JAIL

Judge La Fetra Orders Freyer's Arrest for Offense Committed Before Him May 4.

OUT ON HABEAS CORPUS

Attorneys Argue Before Justice Hendrick That Contempt Decision Is Too Late to be Effective.

Adolph Freyer, a lawyer, of 141 Broadway, was arrested yesterday by a Deputy Sheriff on an order signed by City Court Judge La Fetra sentencing him to five days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $250 for contempt of court on May 4. Freyer immediately sued out a writ of habeas corpus, which was argued in his behalf yesterday afternoon before Supreme Court Justice Hendrick by Max Steuer and ex-Assistant District Attorney Alexander A. Mayper. George H. Kerby argued for the enforcement of the order.

Freyer was counsel for the Metropolitan Printing Company in a suit against Frank E. Robinson, which was on trial before Judge La Fetra in the City Court. In the order committing Freyer Judge La Fetra set forth that despite rulings of the court Freyer had insisted that he admonish Edward B. Wing, a witness. Finally Judge La Fetra exclaimed:

"You can't order the court to admonish the witness. In all of the court's ten years' experience on the bench the court has heard few witnesses who have answered questions more directly or with more care as to accuracy."

After this remark by the court Freyer examined the witness and believed that he had thrown doubts on his testimony. He then exclaimed, as he dismissed the witness, Judge La Fetra charges:

"And you are the complimentary witness who answers questions so directly."

Judge La Fetra took this interjection as an aspersion on his previous remarks and asked Freyer what he meant. Freyer responded in substance:

"Why, this is the witness who was commended from the bench as the most careful witness the court had heard in its ten long years of experience."

After this remark the court decided, according to the writ of commitment, to punish Freyer for contempt of court. Lawyer Steuer quoted a transcript of the record to show that Judge La Fetra had adjourned the case for a week to "fix the fine." After this statement, Mr. Steuer argued, imprisonment could not be imposed for contempt. Mr. Steuer also argued that a sentence of imprisonment could not be legally given to Freyer in his absence. He also said that there was no case on the books where a lawyer had been imprisoned for manifesting zeal in behalf of his client.

Justice Hendrick paroled Freyer in Lawyer Mayper's custody and asked the opposing counsel to submit briefs.

Congressman Vreeland Explains the Aldrich Monetary Plan.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 12.—Senator Walter E. Edge welcomed 200 members of the New Jersey Bankers' Association to-day at their eighth annual meeting, President Adrian Lyon of Perth Amboy, responding, said that the association had never met anywhere else and things had been made so pleasant for them here that he hoped they would never go anywhere else.

He said that the greatest question before the American public, besides that of international peace, was banking and currency reform. He explained Senator Aldrich's plan for the establishment of a National reserve association, which, he believed, would be a means to end any possibilities of panics.

Among the other speakers were Banking Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis, Assemblyman Elmer H. Geran, A. A. Benton, and E. T. Perine, former Deputy Controller of New York.

The annual dinner was held to-night, among the speakers being Judge William H. Speer, Dr. Austin Scott of Rutgers College, and Frank Bergen, General Counsel for the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

CANADIAN CEMENT SCANDAL.

Sir Sanford Fleming Charges That $13,000,000 Passed to Promoters.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12.—The charge that over $13,000,000 par value of securities improperly passed into the hands of one man and his associates in the creation of the Canadian cement merger was made to the Private Bills Committee to-day in a letter written by Sir Sanford Fleming, one of the most prominent men in Canada. He is President of the International Portland Cement Company of Hull, and until recently Honorary President of the Canada Cement Company, which is the title under which eleven of the leading cement companies of Canada were merged two years ago with a capital of $30,000,000.

The cement merger was put through by W. M. Aitken, a young Canadian financier of Montreal, who was elected to the British House of Commons in the last general election for Ashton-under-Lyne as a Unionist. He is the head of the bond and share company of Montreal which contracted for the securities of the eleven cement companies in the merger.

Struck out—By Ames, 2; by Drucke, 4; by Richie, 3. Stolen bases—Schulte, (2,) Hofman, Tinker. Double plays—Sheckard and Zimmerman; Wilson and Fletcher. Hits—Off Ames, 9 in 5 innings; off Drucke, 4 in 4 innnigs; off Richie, 3 in 8 2-3 innings; off Brown, 1 in 1-3 inning. Left on bases—New York, 8; Chicago, 6. Time of game—Two hours and five minutes. Umpires—Messrs. O'Day and Brennan.

A sensational rally which began with two batsmen out and the bases empty in the Giants' half of the ninth inning and closed only when one solid slam would have pulled an apparently hopeless game out of the fire featured the final clash of the four-game series between the Cubs and Giants on the Hilltop yesterday afternoon. The Cubs finished on the long end of a 6 to 3 score, and got an even break for the series, but they spent a nervous five minutes in that closing chapter before they were finally able to pack the game away in their grip. Besides racking the nerves of 10,000 New York rooters who stood up and yelled like Comanches for several minutes, the rally brought about the retirement of Manager McGraw from the coaching line, by special request of Umpire Hank O'Day, allowed Pitcher Richie to stroll to the clubhouse before the game was over, and incidentally caused the Cub chieftain to call on his old reliable standby, Three-Fingered Brown, to check the Giants' advance.

Doyle and Snodgrass had been retired in order in that closing inning, and the Giants were trailing on the empty end of a 6 to 0 count when the fun began. Up to that time McGraw's men had given a grand exhibition of keeping away from third base. Four of them had traveled as far as second base, but none of the quartet had made further headway, thanks to the brilliant slab work of Lew Richie and airtight performing by the men in the field. Two singles had been corraled off Richie's delivery, but they were so far apart that the first had been forgotton before the second arrived. The old whitewash bucket was working fine, but here comes the splash.

Beals Becker drew a pass and Al Bridwell spanked a single into left field, the Giant's third hit of the afternoon. Two men on and six runs needed to tie does not form an especially rosy picture, but the noise indicated that some of the fans were imbued with the hope that springs eternal. The sting of a shutout by the Cubs might yet be wiped ont, and that would be a consolation after that gloomy afternoon. When Fletcher worked the faltering Richie for another pass and the bases were filled, even the pessimists began to take notice. And then came Wilson, who held his bat on his shoulder and drew Richie's third pass, forcing Becker in with New York's first run. If that lone count spelled victory it could not have received a bigger welcome, and the Chicago pitcher took off his glove and hurled in to the ground in disgust at his performance.

Here comes the Indian. Manager McGraw had given Chief Meyers a vacation of one afternoon, but called it off under the conditions and chased Chief in to bat for Drucke. Meyers hit a sassy bounder at Joe Tinker, who had been behaving beautifully all afternoon, and Joe helped along the good cause by booting the ball, allowing Bridwell to score. Business was picking up every minute from a Giant standpoint, and Chance was noticeably nervous. He held a conference with Richie and then went back to his position at first base. Richie pitched one ball to Josh Devore. Umpire O'Day called it a ball, and Chance became desperate. He called Brown in and chased Richie to the bench. Devore bounded one over Brown's head for an infield hit and Fletcher dusted home.

Larry Doyle up. Larry has a habit of punching out long hits, and at this stage a two-bagger would tie up the game, which seemed so safe a minute before. O'Day called a strike on Doyle, and Manager McGraw, who was on the third base coaching lines, began to get noisy, and rub his fingers across his shoe tops to indicate the height of the ball. O'Day took exceptions to this style of showing him up, and ordered McGraw to the bench. Did he go without a murmur? He did—not. But he finally departed, and Larry's wallop was smothered by Artie Hofman in centre field, ending the rally.

The Cubs got their six runs in the second and fifth innings, five coming in the fifth, when nine Cubs faced Red Ames, and succeeded in relieving Red of further service for the afternoon. In the second inning Tinker reached first base when Snodgrass, who filled Merkle's position, failed to hold a ball which Ames handed to him. Zimmerman's clout past second base put Tinker on third base, and he counted, while Bridwell was fumbling Kling's grounder and throwing Johnny out at first base. Ames allowed only three scattered hits in the first four innings, but he was reached for six, half of them doubles, in the fifth.

Kling opened with a double to the score board, and advanced while Larry Doyle was throwing Richie out. Devlin gathered in Sheckard's hoist, but Schulte bounced a stinger off Ames's shoe, and Sheckard counted. Schulte stole second, advanced to third on Hofman's drive past Larry Doyle, and worked a double steal with Artie for a run. Wilson's throw to second was very low. Chance doubled to right centre, scoring Hofman, and the Peerless Leader finished the trip when Doyle doubled past short. Tinker chased Doyle home with a single to right centre and stole second, but Zimmerman ended the rally by striking out. Drucke pitched the last four innings, and the Cubs bunched a brace of hits in the sixth inning, and again in the eighth session, without result. On each occasion desperate chances on the paths killed their opportunities for further scoring.

Both teams did some brilliant fielding stunts. A shoestring catch by Sheckard of Becker's drive to left centre in the fourth, which he turned into a double play, was the headliner, and Johnny Kling contributed a wonderful catch against the stands on Wilson's foul in the eighth inning. Tinker, Zimmerman, and Schulte also favored with sparkling bits of fielding. A stop by Snodgrass, robbing Schulte of a triple, and Devore's work in the fourth inning, when he figured in all three putouts, were the best on the Giants' side.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—The game which enabled the Tigers to break even with the invading Yankees in the first series was won for Detroit by 6 to 5 by a freakish operation, and was a freakish game in several other respects.

Ty Cobb was the individual who kept it from going into overtime, and again demonstrated his claim to the title of the most original of ball players. In the seventh inning, with Detroit engaged in an apparently hopeless chase, Stanage singled past short and was forced by Covington, after which Schaller lined to Hemphill in right field. Bush worked a pass from Caldwell, bringing Ty Cobb to bat with men on first and second basees. He slammed a two-bagger to the left field bleachers, Covington scoring easily, and Bush chasing him home. Cree threw to the plate to cut off Bush, Cobb stopping on second. Bush slid across the plate just as Sweeney brought the ball down on him. The umpire said safe.

Sweeney began a protest and Caldwell and all the members of the infield flocked to the plate to help. Under such circumstances it is the custom of a base runner to sit down on the sack and wait for something to turn up. But Cobb, observing that third base was unguarded, trotted amiably up there. No one saw him. So he tiptoed gingerly along toward the group at the plate. He did not come under the observation of the public until he was about ten feet from the goal all base runners seek, where for a few seconds he stood practically still, peering into the cluster of disputants before him, looking for an opening to slide through. He found one and skated across the plate with the winning run under the noses of almost the entire New York team, Sweeney touching him with the ball when it was too late.

Until the sixth inning New York had what appeared to be an absolutely safe lead. The Yankees got it by hammering Covington's offerings hard, in the first inning. Covington had nothing to offer, in fact, not even speed. Yankee after Yankee slammed the first or second ball pitched. Stranage had nothing to do but stand behind the plate with his hands on his hips and look. But for a sacrifice and a too daring attempt to steal, New York might have had runs in that period ad lib. As it was they took four. Wolter opened by singling and Daniels gave up his lift to help his pal along. Hemphill doubled and Hartzell singled and stole second base. Cree doubled and then Delehanty managed to freeze to the next ball and retired a man. Johnson singled, driving Cree home, but was out trying to snag second base.

Covington did better after that. The run of the third inning, the last the Yankees got, was made without a hit. Daniels led off with a stroll and Hemphill sacrificed him along. Hartzell flied to Cobb, whose throw home was wide, permitting Daniels to count. After that, though there were Yankeees on bases in every inning, only one reached third and he died for lack of help. Gardner spoiled a fine chance by being caught between second and third bases, after doubling in the fourth inning, because he had too big a lead when Sweeney hit to Moriarty.

Hemphill foozled another opening by taking too much for granted when Roach lined to Cobb in the fifth inning, and was nipped before he could get back to first base, where he was dallying by grace of a pass.

In the seventh inning the bases were filled, with one batsman out, on Caldwell's scratch hit to Covington, Wolter's walk, and Daniels's crack in the ribs. Then Hemphill fouled and Roach whiffed.

The Yankees were crippled when they started, through the illness of Manager Chase, who has tonsilitis, and worse crippled before they finished, Hartzell being spiked by Cobb when the latter slid into third base in the third inning, trying to take two stations on an infield out.

Some of that kind of base running scored Detroit's first tally. Cobb Walked and went all the way home from first on Crawford's single to right. In the sixth Cobb singled through short, advanced on Crawford's pass, and scored on a wild pitch, Crawford taking third base. On a hit and run signal Crawford dashed for the plate, and had started to slide as Moriarty swung hard on the ball. There was no chance to get him, as the Tigar Captain connected, though indifferently, the sphere being dumped to Caldwell.

Caldwell was liberal with his passes, issuing six, but was deadly with his curves, fanning seven.

NATIONAL CLUB'S FIZZLE.

Kendrick and Wagner Participate in a Poor Ten-Round Go.

Jim Kendrick of London and Young Wagner were carded to box ten rounds last night at the National Sporting Club, and the corporal's guard of spectators was treated to a featherweight Graeco-Roman wrestling bout instead. By actual count they averaged twenty clinches to a round, and most of the time they couldn't have been forced apart with a hydraulic jack.

It was probably the most tiresome bout ever seen in and about New York, and was not worthy of the dignity of an official decision. It was freely commented that aside from not knowing how to fight the men were trying to demonstrate their ideas of the boxing game in order to draw down the stupendous guarantees they were supposed to receive. One spectator asserted that they should be arrested for obtaining money on false pretense if they had the nerve to ask for any recompense.

In the second preliminary Larry Ryan handed out a trimming to Harry Forbes, and caused the referee's intervention before the end of the third. The supposed semi-final went just two rounds, a very bad match having been made between Willie Hauck of Philadelphia and Eddie Sweeny, in which the latter was palpably outclassed.

KELLY DEFEATS MANTELL.

Bronx Boy Proves Too Clever for Knockout Brown's Partner.

The New Polo Athletic Association was packed to the doors last night with one of the noisiest crowds ever assembled there for a boxing exhibition. The final bout was between Eddie Kelly of the Bronx and Battling Mantell, a sparring partner of Knockout Brown, and both contestants had a large gathering of rooters. Mantell was not in Kelly's class, and consequently was at the losing end of the encounter from start to finish. Kelly did not possess quite as hard a punch as Mantell, but his cleverness easily offset the lack of steam, and he was the aggressor at all times, scoring at will on Mantell with both a fast left jab and using his right to follow up.

From all appearances Mantell possessed a hard punch, but he was never afforded a good enough opportunity to cross it over, and on every occasion sent it wild by large margins.

Young Britt and Houck Draw.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 12.—"Young Britt" of Baltimore and Tommy Houck of Philadelphia fought a fifteen-round draw at the Eureka Club here to-night. Britt had the better of the first eight rounds. Then Houck started in to even matters up, and in the eleventh round cut Britt's eye badly, which worried the local man the rest of the fight.

McFarland Whips Kilbane.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 12.—Packey McFarland of Chicago outpointed and outfought Tommy Kilbane of Cleveland in a ten-round bout before the Buffalo Athletic Association here to-night. Kilbane was weak and clinching at every opportunity to save himself at the close of the tenth round.

Notes of the Boxers.

At the Fairmont A. C. to-night, Jim Smith, the Westchester light heavyweight, will oppose Andy Morris of Boston, who defeated Dummy Maxson in three rounds last week. Morris has fought some of the best heavyweights in the country, including Porky Flynn, Al Kubiak, Sandy Ferguson, and Jim Barry, and is a good, willing mixer. Smith has shown improvement in his recent battles with Morris Harris and Dummy Maxson, and he is confident of winning over Morris. The usual preliminary bouts will precede the main event.

The New West Side A. C., will hold a boxing entertainment at the club rooms to-night, and a fine card has been prepared by the matchmaker. In the star bout, scheduled to go ten rounds, Babe Cullen will oppose Battling Gallagher. The following will take part in the four-round preliminaries: Harry Smith vs. Chick Lawler, Joe Kelly vs. Danny Mack, K. O. Sweeney vs. Artie Edwards, and Frankie Sheldon vs. Johnny Law.

Matchmaker Billy Neumann has arranged an extensive card for to-night's stag at the Long Acre A. A. Besides the usual number of four-round events between novices, there will be five six-round bouts, in which the following will take part: Young Fulton vs. Young Rego, Young Rozner vs. Gypsy Kid, Ben Parks vs. Charley Keener, Jim Doyle vs. George Barber, K. O. Saks, vs. Kid Marto. In the main event of Thursday night's show, Young Brown, the Long Acre featherweight, will oppose Battling Mantell of Brooklyn in the main event of ten rounds.

Tie Scores in Fly Casting.

The second day's competition in the sixth annual fly and bait casting tournament of the Anglers' Club of America was held yesterday at the lake in Central Park. Three events were scheduled, but the entire afternoon was devoted to casting, and the most important of the tournament, which is for the President's Cup, was postponed until to-day. Several tie scores resulted, and these will also be cast over to-day. The summary:

Event 4, Class A, Trout Fly Casting for Distance; five-ounce rods; 75-foot class.—E. H. Higby, 69 feet; E. F. Todd, 68 feet.
Class B; 85-foot Class; same conditions.—E. B. Frazer, 84 feet 6 inches; J. L. Kirk, 84 feet 6 inches; N. F. Smith, 84 feet 6 inches; E. M. Gill, 80 feet; C. H. Higby, 74 feet 6 inches; W. D. Metcalfe, 74 feet.
Class C, Open Class; same conditions.—E. M. Gill, 85 feet; E. B. Frazer, 84 feet; J. L. M. La Branche, 81 feet; J. L. Kirk, 81 feet; R. J. Held, 79 feet; M. F. Smith, 79 feet; W. McGucken, 77 feet 6 inches.
Event 5, Dry Fly-Casting for Distance; five-ounce rods; longest of five casts to count.—R. J. Held, 69 feet; J. L. M. La Branche, 61 feet; W. McGucken, 61 feet; W. Metcalfe, 50 feet; E. M. Gill, 43 feet.

Americus to See Sampson on Mat.

Americus, the clever heavyweight wrestler, who recently forced Zbyszko to extend himself to the full limit of his strength and endurance, is anxious to wrestle Paul Sampson, the German grappler. Americus will be one of the closest observers of the big foreigner's work on the mat next Monday night, when Zbyszko and Sampson wrestle at the Star Casino. Efforts are being made by the Twentieth Century A. C. to bring Gamo, the East Indian wrestler, to this country for a bout with Americus. As Zbyszko, with whom Gamo wrestled a long draw in London, is about to sail for Europe, they will also offer a big inducement to Sampson to meet Gamo or Americus if he defeats Zbyszko.

YALE EXPECTS TO WIN.

Kilpatrick and Mack Predict Close Track Meet with Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 12.—Capt. John Kilpatrick of the Yale track team said that he expected the dual meet with Harvard to-morrow to prove unusually close, although it could hardly be a more stubbornly fought match than last season, when less than 2 points separated the teams. Capt. Kilpatrick and Coach Mack gave out a forecast, in which they gave Yale 53 points to Harvard's 51, unless Foster of Harvard proves in poor condition. He is conceded the furlong flat race. Should he prove in poor condition Yale should win by about 57 points to 47, it is believed here.

Yale claims nothing in the mile and half-mile and only 1 point in the two-mile and the quarter-mile runs. On the other hand, Capt. Kilpatrick's table concedes Harvard nothing in the pole vault and the broad jump and only 1 point in the high jump. In spite of the upset of Hurdler Chisholm in Princeton last Saturday, he is given both hurdle races in the Yale forecast in to-morrow's meet.

Yale expects to take 7 points in the 100-yard dash with Thatcher and Reilly. Rudell, her best sprinter, will be unable to start because of a strained tendon.

Capt. Kilpatrick should win the broad jump and the shot put. Gardner, the former golf champion, hopes to break the world's record in the pole vault.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 12.—Harvard's track team, numbering forty-eight men, together with trainers and managers, arrived here this afternoon and are spending the night at a local hotel. They will leave in the morning for New Haven, where they compete in the afternoon in the annual track meet with Yale on the University Field. The men are in excellent condition and are optimistic of the outcome.

Dartmouth Wins Track Event.

HANOVER, N. H., May 12.—Dartmouth defeated the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a track meet to-day, 81 to 45. Several school records were broken.

Columbia and Lafayette on Track.

The first dual track meet of importance for the Columbia team on its home field will be held this afternoon, when they oppose Lafayette. The Blue and White are crippled by the sickness of two point winners, but they nevertheless are confident of victory.

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATE CUT BY COMPANIES

Power, Too, and Storage Battery Supply Will Be Less After July 1.

REDUCTIONS ON A SCALE

Basic Prices Lowered, and In Addition Discounts Will Be Made According to the Size of the Bill.

President George B. Cortelyou of the Consolidated Gas Company called at the office of the Public Service Commission yesterday and announced that the New York Edison Company and the United Electric Light and Power Company, which Consolidated Gas controls, would put into effect on July 1 a new schedule of rates for electricity which would mean a saving to their customers of $1,250,000 a year, based on present consumption. The companies have yielded to pressure upon them by the Public Service Commission through Commissioner Milo R. Maltbie, who has had electric light and power rates under consideration for two years.

Mr. Maltbie said yesterday that under the new rates every one using more than $25 worth of electric current a month will have reductions of from 5 to 25 per cent. He added:

"Whether these reductions, changes in the contracts, and simplification of the schedules will be found entirely satisfactory only experience can demonstrate, but I am sure that it is a step in the right direction and that the saving to the consumers affected will be considerable and fully appreciated."

Heretofore there have been two methods used in charging for electric current, one based upon a system of discounts dependent upon a customer's maximum demand, and the other based on a system of discounts dependent upon the quantity of current used. The companies are theoretically inclined to the former method, but its technical requirement has given rise to more or less complaint, and the second method will be used hereafter.

The maximum rate which may be charged for current under the law is 10 cents per kilowatt hour. The new schedules start with this figure to retail consumers, with a scale of progressive reductions beginning with consumers whose bills are $25 a month. The reductions will depend only upon the amount of current used, without any regard for the number of lamps in use or for the circumstances of installation. The price for electric power has been reduced from a previous maximum of 10 cents to 9½ cents per kilowatt hour, with reductions based on the amount of current used and the consumer to take advantage in obtaining his reductions of the combined use of current for power and lighting purposes.

There will also be a reduction in the price of current used in charging storage batteries, the maximum price being reduced from 6 cents to 5 cents per kilowatt hour, with reductions based on a $25 monthly bill, instead of on a $50 monthly bill as heretofore.

TELLS OF STOCK INFLATION.

Accountant Says United Wireless Listed $2,500 Assets at $13,465,154.

The Government practically completed its demonstration of the financial methods employed in the United Wireless Telegraph Company at yesterday's session of the trial before Judge Martin in the United States Circuit Court of Col. C. C. Wilson, President of the concern, and five of his fellow officers and Directors. The testimony was largely that of Arthur C. Johnston, an accountant, who made an investigation of the books of the concern after the Government made its raid last Fall and began to make the arrests which resulted in all of the present defendants being charged with the use of the mails to defraud.

Johnston testified yesterday that when he began to look into its affairs the company was an empty shell worth little or nothing. He made an analysis of its balance sheet of Dec. 31, 1909, pointing out first that out of its $15,198,637 assets, $13,465,154 represented the book values at which were carried stocks obtained in the exchange of United Wireless stock for the stock of the old De Forest Company, which the evidence showed the United bought in foreclosure sale for $2,500.

After telling how the stock inflation had been accomplished by Col. Wilson and his associates, Johnston explained that the next largest item of assets, "suspended debtor account," $872,382, represented stock which Wilson and his associates had issued to one of their own concerns, the Greater New York Security Company. On this stock, for the purpose of the transfer, an arbitrary value of $750,000 was placed before the 75,000 shares of which it was composed were offered to the public.

When Johnston got down to tangible things he found "property, plant, and equipment" carried at $434,402; "patents, licenses, and privileges" at $20,233; cash on hand in banks, $17,448, and accounts receivable, $105,786. Into the further analysis of these figures Johnston did not go, and the Government turned him over to the defense for cross-examination. They failed, however, to make any impression on his story, and when it came to the redirect Assistant United States Attorney Dorr asked:

"Why didn't you regard this as a prosperous business?"

"Because it showed a deficit in operating of $176,540," the witness replied.

The Government then switched its line of evidence and put on the witness stand some purchasers of United Wireless securities. The Rev. Elmer Bailey of Carey, Ohio, testified that he bought 80 shares of the stock at $31.50 a share as a result of the glowing circulars which the company sent out. Charles F. Williams, a 17-year-old schoolboy of Mansfield, Ohio, testified that he had saved $30 out of his spending money and bought one share of the stock after reading "Wireless," a publication which the company issued.

TO SAVE CITY TAXES.

Mayor Urges the Passage of a Bill to Cut Watershed Assessments.

Mayor Gaynor sent this letter to Senator Wagner, Democratic leader of the State Senate yesterday urging him to see that a bill before the Legislature for the simplification of the land problem in connection with the Catskill watershed is passed:

> Office of the Mayor,
> May 12, 1911.
>
> Dear Senator Wagner: The city has a bill in the Assembly, No. 1,573, with regard to the valuation for taxation of the city's property outside of the city. Municipalities in which the city's reservoirs and aqueducts are, have heretofore been inclined to value the property so as to include not only the fair value of the land, according to land values in the neighborhood, but also the cost of construction of the reservoirs and aqueducts thereon.
>
> This bill provides that only the value of the land shall be placed on the assessment roll. It is difficult to see how anybody can object to so just a measure, and I hope that you will be able to secure its passage.
>
> Very truly yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR,
> Mayor.
>
> Hon. Robert F. Wagner, Senate Chamber, Albany, N. Y.

The passage of the bill will mean a great saving to the city.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Silk Bands for Floral Pieces Pay 50 Per Cent.—Other Decisions.

So-called mousseline bands, used for tying floral pieces or designs as well as for decorating and other purposes, were held yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers to be dutiable under the present tariff at the rate of 50 per cent, as "manufactures of silk." The goods appear to be known in the trade variously as chiffon bands, mousseline bands, or gauze bands. The importers in the test case are H. A. Caesar & Co. and Heyliger & Raubitschek.

The goods were assessed for duty by Collector Loeb at $3.50 or $4 per pound, but not less than 45 per cent. ad valorem, under the provisions of Paragraph 399, "for woven fabrics in the piece, composed wholly or in chief value of silk, not specially provided for in this section." Among other claims, the importers asked that the merchandise be held dutiable at 50 per cent. under the provision for manufactures of silk. This provision carries a reduction of 10 per cent. over the rate assessed. General Appraiser Howell, who writes an exhaustive decision for the board, reaches the conclusion that the goods are dutiable properly as manufactures of silk at 50 per cent., as claimed by the protestants. Other claims filed by the importers relative to lower rates are overruled.

General Appraiser Fischer has handed down a decision for the board sustaining a contention raised by R. F. Downing & Co. regarding the classification to be imposed on waterproof wrapping paper with a cotton back. The paper in question is used for lining packing cases, wrapping automobile tires, &c. Duty was assessed at the rate of 5 cents a pound and 30 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the law of 1909 for "manufactures of grease-proof paper." According to the importers, the merchandise should be allowed to enter at 35 per cent. ad valorem as "wrapping paper not specially provided for." In sustaining the importers' contention Judge Fischer says in part:

"The assessment in these cases as a manufacture of grease-proof paper, or as an article made of grease-proof paper, seems to us, upon an examination of the record and samples, to be manifestly in error. The article in question is referred to in the reports as an oiled paper with a cotton back. An oiled paper is a waterproof paper, not a grease-proof paper. It may be oiled or greasy, but that causes it to shed water, not grease. Again, the samples before us show that the merchandise is a 'paper' rather than an article made of paper, and the cotton back does not alter its status, merely making the finished article a better paper for wrapping purposes than if not so backed. We regard the merchandise dutiable properly under the provisions for 'wrapping paper not specially provided for.'"

Say He Bribed a Process Server.

Herman Rosenthal was arraigned yesterday before Justice McCall in the Supreme Court charged with bribing Emil Kling, a process server of the District Attorney's office. It is alleged that in 1909 Rosenthal admitted to Jerome that he had been running a gambling place at 123 Second Avenue, but agreed to close up and allow Jerome to inspect the place at any time. After several inspections one of Rosenthal's alleged representatives made arrangements whereby Kling was to tip him off when an inspection was due. Kling did so and received $30, which he turned over to the prosecutor. The day was spent in selecting a jury.

PATRICK J. BYRNES, builder, 105 East Thirty-first Street, schedules show liabilities $37,680, of which $24,388 is secured, and assets $18,962, consisting of accounts, $16,430; notes, $530; cash, $2, and fifty lots at Westhampton, L. I., $2,000. He had four lots at Bay Side, L. I., worth $1,500, of which he gave a deed to Frederick Durgan, but no consideration was received. He had a claim against the City of New York for $10,000 due him as a member of the Building Code Revision Committee, which was assigned to the New Netherland Bank as security for a note of $4,000, and the bank sold it on Feb. 15 to Thomas Daly. Mr. Byrnes thinks there may be an equity of $6,000 in this claim. James A. Donoghue, a creditor for $6,750, also had an assignment of this claim, subject to the prior lien of the bank. Among other creditors are Ella A. Byrnes, $7,138, secured, and Simon Fuchtigold, $8,691 on a judgment.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull, Closing Lower—Call Money Rates, 2¼@2½ Per Cent.

WHEAT PRICES RISE AGAIN

Estimate of Kansas Wheat Yield Low—Better Retail Trade Reported—Banks Gain Cash.

A moderate degree of acivity was maintained during the first hour of trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday, but the market thereafter drifted into extreme dullness. The trading in the last hour, when usually some increase in transactions occurs, fell short of 30,000 shares. The lightness of the trading did not prevent the development toward the close of a heavy tone. The three or four leading issues which were the principal beneficiaries of the forward movement on Thursday afternoon all showed fractional net losses yesterday, such vigor as the advance in these stocks had having been exhausted in the sharp advance of the previous day. The course of the market yesterday helped to confirm the belief that Thursday's improvement in the three or four leading issues was largely the result of a movement against the short interest in these stocks. The possibility of decisions in the "anti-trust" cases being rendered next Monday was an important factor in holding back trading, for while many postponements of these decisions lessen the assurance with which they are expected from one decision day to another there are very many who feel that the long-awaited announcement from the Supreme Court will come on Monday.

Higher prices in the foreign grain markets accompanied by unfavorable reports from some of the wheat-producing districts on the Continent, supplemented in the afternoon by a partially unfavorable summary of conditions in some of our own Winter wheat States, notably in Kansas, brought about a further advance of approximately 1 cent a bushel in wheat prices here and in Chicago. The Kansas wheat crop, according to The Modern Miller's summay of crop conditions, issued yesterday, promises to be little if any over 75,000,000 bushels, a relatively small yield for that important wheat producing State. Except in Kansas and in the other districts which suffered from drought early in the season, conditions are described by this grain trade organ as favorable with the prospect of an average yield per acre. With the increased acreage an average yield per acre this year will represent a very satisfactory total crop. The cotton market moved irregularly yesterday, following its forward movement of the previous day, but most options closed at net declines.

Estimates of the net results of the week's currency movements suggested a further addition to the cash reserves in the banks with the possibility of another increase in the already very large surplus. The day's events in the bond market included the placing of the entire issue of $11,000,000 three-year 5 per cent. notes purchased by bankers from the Reorganization Committee of the International & Great Northern. The general trading in bonds was somewhat lighter than on Thursday, but the New York City issues, and particularly the latest issue of 4¼ per cent. bonds were again very active, though at some slight concession from their recent high figures. Anticipatory trading in the proposed issue of United States 3 per cent. bonds was reported at 101¾ and 102. In some banking quarters actively interested in the Government bond market the opinion is being held that the forthcoming issue may bring a price somewhere between 101 and 102. Such a premium would only very slightly reduce the interest yield below the 3 per cent. rate which the new bonds will carry. It is possible, however, that the actual offering of these Government bonds may not be made quite as soon as recent dispatches from Washington have suggested. A more cheerful tone in retail trade was reported by the commercial agencies, largely as a result of more seasonable weather which has stimulated purchases in some retail lines.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Friday.

Rock Island common, American Locomotive, Third Avenue, and Pacific Mail were all stocks of which odd lots sold on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with no sales reported on the New York Stock Exchange. The relapse of the market once more into comparative dullness was generally attributed to the approach of another day when the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the trust cases might be handed down.

Burst of Activity in Braden Copper at Advancing Prices Helps Mining List.

ADVANCES ARE GENERAL

Inspiration, at One Time 1¼ Up, Closes with a Gain of 1⅛ Over Opening Level—Cobalts Also Strong.

Braden Copper became active yesterday. Transactions of 13,600 shares were reported between 4 1-16 and 4¼, the latter being the closing figure. Inspiration, though less active, was also strong, selling up from 7¼ to 8½. The close, after sales of 6,700, was at 8⅜. The other coppers reflected the upturn in these issues and small gains were general. Giroux, on sales of 1,500, advanced from 5¾ to 5⅞. Greene-Cananea also gained ⅛. Nipissing, Kerr Lake, and La Rose made small gains. The bond list was neglected, and outside of Erie 6 per cent. notes, of which $75,000 were reported sold at 101, transactions were negligible.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—There was quite a little activity in United States Steel, and after showing a firm tone for a time the price eased off slightly. It was said that orders had been coming in abundantly lately, and that a demonstration might be made against the unwieldy short interest reported to have accumulated in this issue. Cambria Steel continued to be offered in small quantities. Heaviness in Pennsylvania was regarded as natural, as it may take the Street some time to absorb the $40,000,000 issue of new stock made under the recent rules. Lehigh Navigation issues were also a trifle depressed, while, on the other hand, Philadelphia Company was in demand at a slight advance. Reading weakened at the close, and this caused a further recession in Lehigh Navigation.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the follow foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

6,703. SEWING MACHINES.—A merchant in a West Indian town informs an American Consul that he would like to handle a low-priced American sewing machine of good wearing qualities. Correspondence in English is invited.

A local business man, already successful in this line, would like to hear from Americans interested in this proposition. He is thoroughly versed in the work and desires to correspond with some American business man desirous of taking advantage of the situation.

6,706. AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY AND MOTOR CARS.—A business man in the Netherlands informs an American Consulate that there is an excellent opening for the introduction of American agricultural machinery in one of the Colonial possessions. He also states that an important firm of dealers in automobiles wishes to represent an American manufacturer of small motor cars and motor commercial vehicles.

6,710. AMERICAN COTTON CLOTH FOR TURKISH ARMY.—Consul General G. Bie Ravndal of Constantinople, reports that a contract for supplies of cotton cloth for the Turkish Army was recently awarded to an Armenian firm in Constantinople, representing a Manchester house. TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Stock and Cotton Exchanges.

Many members of the Stock Exchange were discussing yesterday a report that the Governing Committee was about to extend the rule against participation of members in other markets, and prohibit Stock Exchange houses from engaging in business on the Cotton Exchange. A number of the Governors who were appealed to by individual members of the Exchange who would be affected by such a rule, were told that the matter had not as much as been talked about by the Committee. There are fifty-seven Stock Exchange houses which have seats on the New York Cotton Exchange, including several firms which have members in the Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange. There are men who hold important places on committee of both Exchanges. These personal relationships are so numerous that it was regarded as highly improbable that any effort would be made to bar Stock Exchange houses from trading on the Cotton Exchange as well. It frequently happens that business is active on one Exchange when it is very dull on the other, and membership in both institutions helps materially the business of a number of brokerage houses.

***

The Week's Cash Gain.

The amount of cash gained by the banks this week was variously estimated yesterday at from $400,000 to $2,000,000. There was a loss of a little more than $2,000,000 on the banks' transactions with the Sub-Treasury, but the gain from new gold amounted to $1,600,000, and to this was added a net gain on the movement of currency to and from the interior. This movement was considerably lighter this week than in some recent weeks, the larger banks of the financial district handling very little cash in either direction. It was the Middle Western States which called for most of the money shipped from New York, while receipts came principally from Eastern cities and other near-by points.

***

Selling Bonds at Auction.

An announcement that the City of Council Bluffs will sell an issue of municipal bonds at public auction in a Chicago hotel next week will not strike the conservative East as revolutionary. Though different in method, inasmuch as the sale is to be held in another State than that in which the municipality is located, it is a reminder of the old Massachusetts custom of offering at public auction new bonds of local railways. The Boston & Lowell, Boston & Maine, and other Massachusetts roads are used to dispose of securities in that way.

***

Railroads' Heavier Wage Burden.

It is not likely that the estimate made by President W. G. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen that the wages of trainmen in the United States and Canada have been increased in the aggregate $37,000,000 per annum by last year's negotiations between the men and their employers will be disputed by any of the roads concerned. When the Inter-State Commerce Commission held its rate-hearing sessions in New York a statement was submitted at the opening in which it was said that the wage increases already accomplished by the unions aggregated $34,800,000 a year on 50,554 miles of road north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, while the desired advances in rates meant increased gross earnings of $27,000,000.

Future of the I. & G. N.

There is a possibility that the foreclosure sale of the International & Great Northern, scheduled for next Tuesday, but which is expected to go over for another month, may bring out a rival bidder in one of the Southwestern roads outside the Gould group. The International is a much better property than it was when it went into a receivership, and a committee of the second mortgage bondholders which made an inspection of the line this Spring found that such a great improvement had resulted from the expenditure of money raised by receivers' certificates that they were inclined to believe that it could earn its interest charges if operated independently. Against the suggestion of a new affiliation is urged the fact that with the election of Thomas J. Freeman, the receiver, to a Vice Presidency of the Texas & Pacific plans have been put under way for a merging of the operating management of those two Gould properties, and that the International & Great Northern is worth more to the Iron Mountain than to any road outside the Gould system. One great difficulty in the way of a successful bid by an outside company lies in the great advantage enjoyed by the Reorganization Committee in competitive bidding. Whereas an outsider would have to offer actual money for the property, the Bondholders' Committee can turn in at their full par value all of the bonds deposited with them. This advantage of a reorganization committee usually makes the success of the committee in the competitive bidding at a foreclosure sale a foregone conclusion.

Clearing House Conveniences.

Since early in the century, the New York banks have found it convenient to keep a store of gold centrally located in Wall Street, so as to avoid the necessity of transportation through the streets with the accompanying temptation of robbery. The Bank of the Manhattan Company was originally the depository, and later it became one of the functions of the Clearing House to store gold in its vaults for the convenience of its members. This deposit department of the Clearing House was extended later to embrace paper currency, and for many years member banks have saved room in their own vaults by keeping a large part of their small bills in the Clearing House. Small bills in the numbers that are carried by the New York banks make a surprising bulk, and the storage facilities offered by the Clearing House have been found a great advantage. These conveniences in the matter of storing gold and paper money have now been recognized by the Chicago banks, where the Clearing House has under consideration the organization of a similar department. Such deposits, of course, figure in the reserves, besides being readily transferable through Clearing House certificates.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

> Warmer weather has stimulated increased activity in retail trade in most of the large centres of the country, but the business situation as a whole is otherwise very unsatisfactory, so far as the immediate volume of transactions is concerned, although the outlook for the future is by no means unfavorable. Consumption is much below producing capacity, and curtailment is the order of industry.
>
> Some activity is noted in the cotton goods market by the appearance of certain large orders, and the dry goods trade is further benefited by the increased retail distribution already noted, but the textile situation as a whole, like that of iron and steel, is one of curtailment, pending more settled conditions upon which safe planning for the future can be based. Domestic hides are more active and higher, and leather is somewhat better, but the shoe trade is slow. Bank clearings this week outside of New York showed 2.2 per cent. loss compared with 1910 and 4.8 per cent. improvement over 1909; in the city the losses were 9.3 and 14.1 per cent., respectively. Railroad earnings during April decreased 2.3 per cent.
>
> The conditions of the money market continue auspicious, and the entrance this week of trust companies into the New York Clearing House is an event of great significance, as increasing the power of financial resistance against the effects of any sudden changes in the situation. During the latest week foreign commerce at New York aggregated $34,272,013, against $30,592,800 a year ago and $25,381,231 in 1909. Exports were $1,491,715 better than in 1910 and $4,293,475 better than in 1909.

Bradstreet's says:

> Better weather with high, in fact midsummer, temperatures has helped retail trade, which has shown improvement at most large centres. This fact, coupled with more favorable crop conditions, has made for a rather more cheerful tone in jobbing and wholesale lines, but as yet retailers' or final distributors' stocks seem ample. In fact, reduction sales are in evidence rather earlier than usual, and the net gain in jobbing sales is slight, though a continuance of present weather and crop conditions seem bound to be reflected in a renewed call for seasonable goods. Collections are not much changed from earlier reports, ranging from slow to fair.
>
> There is a rather firmer feeling in the cotton goods line, a reflection partly of better weather conditions, of renewed firmness in raw material, and of reports of large buying of print cloths by leading printers. One explanation of this latter is, however, that printers who are also cloth manufacturers can buy cheaper in the open market than they can manufacture.
>
> Wool is dull but steady as a whole. Buying at the West is limited, but while part of this is due to tariff uncertainties, the shearing season is reported later than usual. Crop reports of the week are mainly good. Needed rains have fallen in the Northwest and helped Spring wheat, and Winter wheat has improved as a whole, despite hot weather in the Southwest.

READY FOR TRUST COMPANIES

Clearing House Committee on Admissions Enlarged for Quick Work.

To facilitate the examination of the twelve trust companies which already have applied for admission to the Clearing House, under the new provisions of the constitution, the Clearing House Committee on Admissions has been enlarged by ten associate members. The present committee of five is to be divided into sub-committees, each composed of the regular member and two associate members, who will assist in examining the new applicants. This is a work of considerable magnitude, and if the same minute examination be pursued which has been the practice when banks apply for admission, even the addition of ten new men to the committee will not make the task light.

Besides the twelve trust companies named in THE TIMES yesterday morning, a number of others are expected to come forward soon, among them the Brooklyn Trust Company.

SUES FOR COMMISSIONS.

Cotton Exchange Member Wants Broker Betrg to Pay $22,500.

Charles E. Levy, member of the Cotton Exchange and a private banker, has brought suit for $22,500 commissions against Louis S. Berg, a broker at 49 Wall Street. Levy asserts that in July, 1909, he was employed by Berg to get an offer from William D. Stratton to sell Stratton's interest in the Alexander McDonald, Edmund K. Stallo, and Stratton syndicate, the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City Railroad, the Gulf & Chicago Railroad, the Alabama Securities Company, the Inter-State Securities Company, and a loan in the Metropolitan Trust Company for $150,000.

Levy says he was offered $25,000 for this work in writing and was paid $2,500 on account. Berg denies all of Levy's allegations and sets up a counter claim of $2,500 on a promissory note.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 12.—A steady tone prevailed on the local Exchange to-day, and a majority of the issues traded in showed advances. Principal among the gains was an advance of 1¼ points in Commonwealth Edison, though a fraction of this was lost by the end of trading.

Another comparatively large gain was made by National Carbon common, whose net rise for the day amounted to a fraction more than a point. There were smaller increases in Diamond Match, People's Gas, American Can preferred, and South Side Elevated, while Chicago Telephone lost a point, and Illinois Brick a fraction.

Notice is given that the four year 5 per cent. notes of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Company, due June 1, will be paid at the office of the Treasurer, Grand Central Terminal, New York City. Coupons will be paid as heretofore at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co.

All of the $11,000,000 three-year notes of the International & Great Northern, taken by Redmond & Co., J. & W. Seligman & Co. and Middendorf, Williams & Co., will be allotted to institutions. The demand from that source for short-term securities is so great that there will be no public offering of the issue. They were sold on a 5¾ per cent. basis.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Pronounced strength developed in wheat, with final prices at best of the day. The market hesitated in the early trading, but late became active and advanced readily. There was some disappointment early at the cables, which showed less advance than expected. Early foreign statistics indicated Argentine shipments of 2,480,000 bushels for the week, against 3,288,000 the previous week; Indian, 1,000,000 bushels, against 344,000, and Australian, 736,000 bushels, against 1,592,000. Later Bradstreet's American shipments were 3,132,000, against 1,944,000 bushels the previous week. World's exports were estimated at 13,100,000 bushels, against 12,176,000 bushels the previous week and 11,552,000 bushels last year. Cables reiterated reports of dry, hot weather in Southeastern Europe and considerable damage, while Continental markets were strong and the late English cables were firm. Bids on export wheat were advanced. There was good inquiry for red Winter wheat, but stocks are about cleaned up here, and cash dealers stated that there was no wheat which could be drawn upon for immediate shipment. There was good bidding for Manitoba wheat, with export sales of twelve loads reported. Some crop damage advices came from the Southwest, and The Modern Miller stated that Kansas promised little, if any, over 75,000,000 bushels as a result of the severe drought the past Fall and Winter. Receipts were moderate and cash wheat was generally ½c to 1c higher at the West, with reports of better milling demand. Spring wheat advices were favorable. Manitoba advices were very favorable, reporting general rain or snow over the entire Spring wheat belt, crop about seeded, and prospects for material increase in acreage. Cash wheat closed firm, with No. 2 red, 99⅜c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.10¼; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.06¼; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.04⅝.

CORN.—Corn developed reactionary conditions early on reports of increased offerings from the country and on somewhat disappointing cables. Weather conditions were favorable for field work and planting is making rapid progress. There has not been a Spring for several years when planting conditions have been so favorable. Late the market turned strong, influenced by wheat and oats. Bradstreet's exports were 570,000 bushels, against 275,000 bushels the previous week. There were no Argentine shipments. Export sales of six loads were reported. No. 2 corn was quoted at 60c, free on board; steamer, 59½c, in elevator, export rate.

OATS.—Trade was active, and after a little early reaction prices became very strong, advancing 1c to 1½c, closing at the top, near deliveries showing most gain. The late advance was influenced by reports of dry weather and crop damage in Illinois and the Southwest, and the trade has, apparently, accepted the idea of smaller crop area this season. Receipts continue limited West, with interior shipments exceeding receipts. Cash oats were firm, with standards quoted at 40c; No. 2 white, 40½c; No. 3 white, 39⅜c.

PROVISIONS were dull and heavy, with prices selling down on a break in May pork of $1.50 a barrel and some selling of lard by packing interests. Hog receipts, however, were light and prices were strong at all Western points.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Sentiment seems to be in favor of higher prices at the moment and apparently there is little disposition on the part of traders to antagonize the operations of leading refining interests who appear to be distributing orders for the purpose of short covering. Underlying conditions have improved somewhat, with the continued firmness in oleostearine reflecting a larger compound lard business, while crude is firm at the South and demand from consumers is fair. Crude quoted at 5.34 to 5.40. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

Although the daily occurrence of some of the old crop months establishing new high records was again witnessed during the session of yesterday, it was apparent that the technical position had been weakened, while the belief is that remaining shorts are not to be intimidated at prevailing levels. On the other hand there is little disposition to make new commitments in the near positions, it being realized that operations are subjected to unusual risk, although the common expectation is for bulls to render support on any material recession.

Opening values were generally 1 to 7 points lower, the result of hesitation in the Liverpool market toward following the upward movement, and generally favorable appearance of the early weather map, but there was little pressure manifested, excepting that in the way of realizing. New crop months were under the influence of this selling, particularly, and although trade interests were said to be buying, offerings were in more liberal volume. Private crop accounts were generally of an optimistic tenor, although depredation by cut-worms was reported in sections of Texas and advices indicated that rains would be beneficial in some of the Eastern States.

The statistical situation continues to exhibit strength, and while weekly Liverpool and American figures were bullish, their effect was naturally small in view of the advance that the future market has had recently. Despite the falling off in foreign spot business, (sales at Liverpool yesterday aggregating only 5,000 bales,) Liverpool statistics showed 76,000 bales forwarded to spinners, same as the previous week and comparing with 60,000 a year ago. The stock there at present amounts to 794,000 bales against 837,000 last week, 585,000 last year, and 1,100,000 bales two years ago. The official Manchester cable stated that cloths and yarns were hardening, while private cables attributed the relative heaviness at Liverpool as due to profit-taking by the Continent.

Firmness is prevailing in Southern spot markets, values there yesterday being unchanged to ⅛c advance, New Orleans reporting a good business. Locally spot demand was quiet, and prices unchanged, with warehouse stocks aggregating only 113,000 bales, against 126,000 last week, and 231,000 a year ago. Over 6,000 bales are being shipped to Bremen this week.

So far this season, according to Cotton Exchange figures, there have been 11,236,000 bales brought into sight against 9,860,000 last year. For the week, 57,000 bales were reported against 57,000 last week and 60,000 a year ago. Spinners takings of American cotton were 204,000 bales against 187,000 last year, suggesting a decrease of 147,000 in the visible, against a decrease of 127,000 last year, and indicating a total at present of 2,186,000 bales against 2,159,000 a year ago. Exports to date are slightly over 7,000,000 bales, against 5,415,000 for the same period last year.

COFFEE.

Coffee was quiet at the opening, with prices unchanged to 2 points higher and, after showing a slightly easier tone due to reports of slightly lower offers from Brazil, rallied, and at the close was firm at a net advance of 6 to 12 points. Total sales were 26,000 bags. Havre closed at ¼@½f net lower, while Hamburg was ¼ pfennig higher to ¼ pfennig lower. Rio was unchanged and Santos was unchanged to 50 reis lower.

The spot market was unchanged at 11⅝c for Rio No. 7. Contract prices follow:

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

New Amsterdam Hotel on Fourth Avenue to Make Way for Big Loft—Amsterdam Avenue Sale for Fourteen-story Apartment—$250,000 Sale in the Bronx—Hoguet Property Resale.

Several important business deals which will involve extensive improvements in addition to active apartment and tenement house buying combined to make a decidedly lively market in the realty field yesterday. An announcement of more than ordinary interest as affecting the lower Broadway section was that Edward F. Searles is the buyer of the parcel at 187 Broadway, adjoining the southwest corner of Broadway and Dey Street, and that this property with the abutting parcels at 5 and 7 Dey Street will be improved with a newspaper and office building for The Globe and Commercial Advertiser.

No limit seems to have been reached in the upbuilding of Fourth Avenue as a high-class commercial thoroughfare, and to the large number of splendid commercial structures erected there within the last two years will be added another on the southeast corner of the avenue and Twenty-first Street. The site is now occupied by the New Amsterdam Hotel. The property has been purchased from the Edward Coyne Hotel Company by J. H. & C. K. Eagle, one of the largest silk manufacturing firms now located at 454 Broome Street. The hotel covers a plot 69 by 90 feet, and in addition the buyers have acquired the two old buildings adjoining on Fourth Avenue, 46 by 90, giving a total frontage for the proposed improvement of 115 feet on Fourth Avenue. Possession of the property will be had on Dec. 1, and a sixteen to twenty story structure will be erected, the lower floors of which will be occupied by the firm. The consideration for the realty was somewhat over $600,000, and, with the proposed improvement, the entire operation will involve considerably over $1,000,000. The deal was negotiated by Alwyn Ball, Jr., of the firm of Frederick Southack, Alwyn Ball, Jr. The new building will be assured of excellent light in view of the church standing on the northeast corner of the block, while the plot abuts on the rear of the row of houses facing Gramercy Park.

Big Amsterdam Sale for Apartment.

A big deal on Amsterdam Avenue in the Sherman Square district has just been made by Slawson & Hobbs, who have sold for Patrick Kiernan the four houses at 287 to 293 Amsterdam Avenue, just north of Seventy-third Street. The plot is 80.8 by 100 feet. The buyer, Ronald H. Macdonald, proposes to tear down the old structures at once and replace them with a fourteen-story apartment house, which will be wholly devoted to suites of one and two rooms with bath. Mr. Macdonald has been identified with several operations of a similar nature on the west side and in other parts of the city. The sale, with the forthcoming improvement, is in keeping with many others of like nature which have taken place on the west side since the first of the year.

Improvement for Dakota Stable Plot.

An important improvement, probably of an apartment-house nature, is said to be contemplated for the old Dakota stable property on the south side of Seventy-fifth Street, extending from Broadway to Amsterdam Avenue. The street frontage is 212 feet, with 52 feet on Broadway and 53 feet on Amsterdam Avenue. The property is owned by the Crawford-Bradley Company, having been acquired by William Crawford in 1906, when it was held at $525,000. It is to be taken over by one of the owners, and when negotiations are completed, it was stated, some definite plan for future improvement will be decided upon.

Another Seventh Avenue Deal.

S. B. Goodale & Perry and Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company have sold for Mary U. Hoffman 286 Seventh Avenue, a four-story building, 20 by 90 feet, adjoining the northwest corner of Twenty-sixth Street.

This makes the second parcel on Seventh Avenue that S. B. Goodale & Perry have sold in the past week. Several sales in the same vicinity were reported last week by other brokers.

Tenements in Good Demand.

John N. Golding has sold for John L. Golden 308 East Sixty-first Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 75, adjoining the northeast corner of Second Avenue. The buyer is M. Sturtz.

Nathan & Zimmerman have bought 1,455 and 1,457 Madison Avenue, two five-story double flats, with stores, each on lot 25 by 80, between 100th and 101st Streets.

The S. H. Raphael Company has sold for Mrs. M. Murphy to Antonio Rossi 446 and 448 East 117th Street, a six-story new-law apartment house, on plot 41.6 by 100, for $58,500.

Bailey & Sullivan, attorneys for the estate of John Jay Mathews, have sold 272 Third Avenue, a three-story building, on lot 21.6 by 75, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Streets. On Wednesday the estate sold the building 255 Third Avenue to Charles E. Calthup.

E. Sharum has sold for a client 247 West Sixty-first Street, a five-story tenement, with stores, on a plot 25 by 100.5.

Private Dwellings Sold.

Emanuel Simon has sold for Charles and Anna Mundorff 312 West Eighty-third Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 18.6 by 100, to Isaac Steigerwald. Mr. Steigerwald will occupy the building after some alterations are made.

H. C. Senior & Co. have sold for Mary A. Thorne the three-story dwelling 119 East Ninety-fifth Street, near Park Avenue, on a lot 16 by 100, to the Ess Eff Realty Company, (Solon and Sam Frank.) The purchasers have bought and resold several houses in this street, and the property was purchased with a view to a resale quickly.

E. A. Johnson has sold for a client the private residence at 223 West 134th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues.

Shaw & Co. have sold 112 West 131st Street, a three-story and basement brown-

Quick Resale of Hoguet Parcel.

The demand for apartment house sites on Washington Heights was shown conclusively yesterday by the resale of the Hoguet estate property, 100 by 100, on the north side of 142d Street, 100 feet west of Broadway, sold early this week to Robert M. Silverman. The new owners, the Emkaar Realty Company, will improve the plot with a six-story elevator apartment house.

$250,000 Apartment Deal in Bronx.

One of the largest of the many big deals in the Bronx this season has just been closed by Arnold, Byrne & Baumann, who have sold for the Reville-Siesel Company, of which Patrick J. Reville, ex-Superintendent of Buildings in the Bronx, is President, to the Nagrom Realty Company the six-story elevator apartment house on the northwest corner of 163d Street and Intervale Avenue, known as the Seville. The plot is 85 by 125, and is located in the Hunts Point section, one block from the Intervale Avenue Subway station. The property was held at $250,000. Out of the seven elevator apartment houses completed during the last year on East 163d Street this is the second to be sold. Last week a block front of ten lots on East 163d Street was sold by the Getsky Realty Company, where two more elevator apartment houses will be erected. East 163d Street will be one of the important crosstown thoroughfares of the Bronx, as with its direct connection with Hunts Point Avenue it extends from river to river, and tracks for a crosstown trolley are now being laid, which will connect Long Island and Sound with Washington Heights by way of the Washington Bridge.

Most of them will be stucco style and hardwood throughout. Foundations are now going in, two on Alsop Street, two on Lake Street, and two on Orchard Street.

The property of the Manhanset Improvement Company, comprising about 175 acres of land, with cottages, at Shelter Island, was sold yesterday in the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange by Joseph P. Day. The property was offered in four parcels and then as a whole, and was bought by William C. Foster for $38,000.

Investor Buys Newark Plot.

Louis Schlesinger, Inc., has sold for James H. Cruikshank and William D. Kilpatrick of New York to Joseph Oschwald, for a consideration said to be $75,000, the property 1,006 and 1,008 Broad Street, northeast corner of East Kinney Street, 60 by 141 feet. This property was in former years the residence of ex-Mayor Nehemiah Perry, who acquired the plot in 1851 for $4,500. M. Oschwald is the buyer. The same broker has also sold the two brick dwellings, 504 and 506 Washington Street, to the Success Realty Company, and the northwest corner of Nye and Hobson Streets, for Mrs. E. C. An Excavating Record.

An excavating record was established yesterday by the construction company now engaged in the building of the world's largest hotel—the McAlpin—which is to be erected on Greeley Square, Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth Street.

In an interview with Mr. Gorrell, in charge of this undertaking, the following figures were disclosed: It is estimated that in the short space of six weeks no less than 147,420,000 pounds, or 73,710 tons, of rock have been excavated and hauled away.

"This," said Mr. Gorrell, "constitutes as near as can be figured a little more than half of the quantity of rock to be blasted in order to make room for the hotel foundation, which necessitates a depth of sixty feet and an area of 30,000 square feet.

New York Central Freight Station.

Plans have been filed for the construction of a two-story freight house for the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, fronting on Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets, with an extension on Tenth Avenue. It will be semi-fireproof and will have a frontage of 38.8 on each street and a depth of 197.6 feet. The cost has been placed at $250,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Warm weather continued Friday in the Atlantic States. Temperatures above ninety degrees were recorded at points from the District of Columbia to Georgia, and above eighty degrees as far north as the interior of Maine.

The warm wave in the Eastern States will be broken Saturday by north and northeast winds, blowing out of an extensive area of high barometric pressure that is building over the Great Lakes. The fall in temperature over the lake region has been decided, while over the Rocky Mountain region a return to warmer weather is in progress. Within the last twenty-four hours there have been widely scattered showers. The rainfall over Southern Texas was heavy, while elsewhere it was light.

The weather will be generally fair Saturday and probably Sunday in the Atlantic and Gulf States and the Upper Ohio Valley, with moderate temperatures Sunday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate to brisk west to northwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate variable.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate to brisk west and northwest winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

NOT COMPROMISING ON SUBWAY OFFERS

Time for That Has Passed, Says B. R. T. Head—City Conferees Won't Wait.

SECRET DIVISION SUGGESTED

By Interborough Last Winter and Turned Down—Steers Explains His Preference for B. R. T. Plan.

The plan to work out a compromise between the Interborough Rapid Transit and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's rival subway offers so as to effect a division of territory and the establishment of certain zones within which the five-cent fare would be general seems likely to amount to nothing. President McAneny of Manhattan, Chairman of the Board of Estimate Transit Committee, said yesterday that the work of framing his committee's report would not be delayed by any move looking to the resumption of conferences, and Col. Timothy S. Williams, President of the B. R. T., said that, so far as his company was concerned, the time had passed when any such matter was within the range of consideration.

Col. Williams defined the position of his company very definitely. He said:

"I have heard nothing of that kind from the Interborough, but certain prominent citizens have represented to us that it would be possible, perhaps, to reach an agreement looking to a division of territory.

"I fail to see how the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company can consider such a proposition at all. At the outset we made an offer which did not interfere with any one's logical development of his own existing lines. That proposition did not arouse any enthusiasm. Then the representatives of the city asked us to make a ~~~er bid, and we made it in good faith.

It seems to me that the time within which compromise offers could properly be considered is past and that any such suggestion made at this time means only the further delay of a decision that ought to be reached with the greatest expedition. In justice to the city and to ourselves, I fail to see how we can agree upon or consider any such proposed division of territory."

Mr. Williams said he did not believe his company could take up any suggeston for a joint use of a two-level subway under Broadway, Manhattan, such as has been suggested as one possible phase of the proposed compromise. The members of the McAneny committee, who attended a conference yesterday morning with Col. Williams and a committee of B. R. T. Directors over the one unsettled point in the Brooklyn company's offer, said that the compromise suggestion had not been presented to them as yet officially, although they recognied it as one of the possibilities which had been in the situation from the start of the subway negotiations.

It became known yesterday that the Interborough conferees in the sessions of last Winter proposed a division of territory between their company and the B. R. T., suggesting that the Brooklyn company should be admitted to Manhattan through the Centre Street loop only, should get much of its plan of Brooklyn extensions, and that Manhattan and Bronx traffic should be reserved permanently to the Interborough. The suggestion was added that such an agreement might be made without announcing the fact to the public, it being understood between the two companies and the city's conferees that the city would not let any competing element into the field. This was rejected by the city's representatives, and the Interborough's Broadway ultimatum followed, namely, that its offer would be withdrawn if any other company were admitted to Broadway.

In Brooklyn yesterday Commissioner of Public Works Pounds issued the promised statement of Borough President Alfred E. Steers defining his attitude on subways. In this statement Mr. Steers said:

"I do not pledge my vote one way or the other. It seems to me, however, that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's proposition brings greater advantages to Brooklyn than does the Interborough proposition. Some may consider that Brooklyn is better taken care of than the Bronx by the B. R. T., but this is not so. The Bronx to-day has a great express subway with two branches. The B. R. T. proposition brings to that borough another express subway with two more branches. The trouble with the Interborough proposition is that it runs new lines into vacant areas in the Bronx and leaves thickly populated parts of Brooklyn without any facilities whatever.

"The B. R. T. plan brings Brooklyn into five-cent-fare relation with all of Manhattan, and does more for Brooklyn than any other plan that has thus far been suggested. It should not be thought that no part of Brooklyn is benefited except those parts near the new lines. Perhaps the greatest benefit is to the vast number of people who are located near the present elevated lines, but who now have to pay 10 cents to go to their business in Manhattan. The Broadway extension of the B. R. T. proposal will distribute these people for a five-cent fare.

"The Interborough plans appear to me to preserve congested areas and block future distribution of population, whereas the B. R. T. is a disseminating proposition at a five-cent fare. Moreover, future extensions can be added under the B. R. T. proposition on a basis that gives part of the increased earnings of the inside lines to support the suburban extensions. This is not the case with the Interborough proposition.

"In a former statement I referred to the fact that the Interborough proposition prevented the Fourth Avenue subway from sharing in the earnings of the entire system and put it on the same basis as future extensions, on which the city might be called upon to pay a deficit for an indefinite time. The amended Interborough proposition still strangles the Fourth Avenue subway. This affects the entire city. It is not a borough matter. The profitable operation of any subway line and the exemption of city bonds from the municipal debt is of the greatest importance to the city as a whole."

Max E. Schmidt, President of the Continuous Transit Securities Company, which has had a moving platform scheme before the public authorities for some time, sent to the Public Service Commission yesterday a letter inclosing tentative plans for a moving platform under Broadway from Ninth Street to Forty-second Street, along with two tracks of a subway express service. The pending Interborough Subway proposal provides for a two-track line under Broadway from Fourteenth Street to Fifty-ninth Street, and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit plan involves a four-track road. When that was submitted some time ago Mr. Schmidt sent a letter to the commission protesting against it in various respects. The letter sent yesterday outlined the moving platform proposal along the lines heretofore described—that there should be three platforms moving at different speeds, the highest attaining the speed of twelve miles an hour.

AGAINST CITY HALL SITE.

Realty Men Suggest Putting New Court House in Duane Street.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers of the City of New York has adopted a resolution protesting against putting the new Court House in City Hall Park and advocating the site bounded by Centre Street, Park Row, Pearl and Duane Streets. This block is opposite the new Municipal Building and the Hall of Records. Its area is 193,000 square feet, of which the city owns 26,000 square feet, and this fact is cited as one of the reasons for selecting the site.

It is pointed out that the city ought to be able to buy the remainder of the property for $4,000,000 or under. President Irving Ruland of the Real Estate Board has appointed Francis E. Ward, David A. Clarkson, Joseph P. Day, and Gerald R. Brown as a committee to bring the feasibility of the site before the city officials.

Suit Against Stock Exchange Reopened

Judge Ward, sitting in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday allowed the New York Bank Note Company to reopen the default and serve an amended complaint in the second suit instituted against President Thomas and the 1,100 members of the New York Stock Exchange. The action, in which damages to the amount of $5,000,000 are asked, is brought under the conspiracy provision of the Sherman Anti-trust act. It is charged that the Stock Exchange by its rules created and maintained a monopoly for the American Bank Note Company in the printing of bonds and stocks.

DIFFER ON KILLING OF DR. W. R. C. LATSON

Coroner's Physician Suspects Foul Play Because No Powder Marks Appeared.

CORONER SURE IT'S SUICIDE

And Decides Not to Arrest Miss Marnevka, Who Believes Her Employer's Soul Will Return.

In their investigation of the death of Dr. William Richard Cunningham Latson, editor of Health and Culture, and a specialist in skin diseases, whose body was found Thursday evening beside a couch in his apartment, at 660 Riverside Drive, the Coroner in charge and the Coroner's physician, who performed the autopsy, came to directly opposite conclusions.

The Coroner's physician, Dr. Philip F. O'Hanlon, said he was quite confident that there had been foul play, and that there was every reason for the police to make a most seaching inquiry before finally accepting the theory of suicide.

The Coroner in charge, Dr. I. L. Feinberg, expressed the conviction that it was clearly a case of suicide, and that the motive had been found in statements by Latson's associates that he had been carousing steadily for weeks and was in financial trouble.

Another thing that helped Coroner Feinberg in reaching his conclusion was the note found beside the body addressed "to Gertie and mother," saying, "I have done my best," and signed, "Death."

Hundreds of papers in Dr. Latson's handwriting were examined, as were also a number of letters sent by him to Harry Weinberger, a lawyer, of 261 Broadway. Weinberger was confident that the note was in Latson's handwriting, and all the evidence of the letters and checks was to the same effect.

Coroner Feinberg, announcing his conclusion that the letter was written by Dr. Latson, decided not to arrest Miss Alta Marnevka, the young Russian girl, who, under the name of "Miss Gordon," was known to the janitor of the apartment house as a frequent caller at Dr. Latson's rooms.

Miss Marnevka's story to the Coroner satisfied him. She said that she was employed as an associate editorial writer and editor's secretary on Health and Culture; that she went regularly to the apartment to write letters for Latson, and to take dictation. She had a latch key, so that she might come and go when she wished to work upon editorial matter and the correspondence.

When not actively engaged in this work, she said, they sometimes talked over the subject of death, and she gained from Latson peculiar ideas, which she came to believe implicitly. She thought that the note "I have done my best, Death," was meant not to indicate that he had given up, but that in his ending he was defying death and meant to live on as a soul, as he was always confident he would. She insisted that Latson was not dead, but had only passed on to another existence, and that his soul would return to visit his old friends.

Miss Marnevka said she went to work on Thursday morning as usual, and wrote an editorial for Dr. Latson. Then she went to luncheon at her home, 3,671 Broadway, and in the afternoon went shopping, returning to Latson's apartment at about 8 o'clock, when the incidents occurred which gave Louis M. Kafader, the Superintendent of the apartment house in which Latson lived, the impression that her visit was mysterious.

"I am pretty commonplace in my views of death," said Coroner Feinberg, "and I can't see anything in this mystical business about the soul coming back. But still I realize that thousands of persons have gone through this life expecting implicitly to have their souls outlive their bodies and linger close to old associates. So this girl could have got such ideas from Latson in their normal relationship of employer and stenographer."

Dr. O'Hanlon, dissenting from the Coroner's views, declared that there was no powder mark about the wound in Dr. Latson's neck and that a revolver fired within an arm's length of a body always leaves a powder burn. He said that Latson, who was well known as a medical man and a writer on medical topics, chose an unexplainable place in which to shoot himself, if he had decided to end his life by that means.

"Shot where this bullet entered," he said, "it would be only by rare chance that death could result. Any one with half his wits about him would have chosen a more vital spot to aim a bullet if really ntent upon causing his own death."

To ascertain whether poison had anything to do with death Dr. O'Hanlon had the contents of Dr. Latson's stomach sent to Prof. Larkin of Columbia University for analysis. He said that Prof. Larkin agreed with him that the revolver shot was fired in a very unusual way for a suicide, especially one having a knowledge of anatomy. To make the full analysis called for by Dr. O'Hanlon will require at least a week's time, Prof. Larkin said, and in the meantime Lieut. Jones, the Police Department's revolver expert, will have charge of the police investigation.

CATSKILL WATER NEARER.

Mayor Congratulates President Strauss of Water Board for a Claim.

Mayor Gaynor sent this letter to President Strauss of the Board of Water Supply yesterday congratulating him upon the satisfactory settlement of the damage claim of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad against the city for the necessary relocation of its tracks at the Ashokan Reservoir:

Office of the Mayor.
May 12, 1911.

Dear Mr. Strauss: I do not want to let pass the signal work which you and your associates have done in removing all obstacles to the speedy completion of the Ashokan Reservoir by the settlement of the controversy between the city and the Ulsten & Delaware Railroad Company, without expressing to you the Mayor's thanks therefor. The claim of the company is settled, and the relocation of the railroad outside of the bed of the reservoir provided for. When the negotiation was opened in my office by you and Mr. Coykendall, President of the road, and his counsel, Judge Clearwater, not three months ago, it did not seem to me possible that the matter could be brought to a head so speedily. But your daily persistence in the matter soon brought it to a head, and to a complete settlement. The result has made it possible to get the Catskill water to Croton Lake in two years, so that there need be no reasonable fear that the city will be put on a short use of water. The bringing of the Catskill water on to the new Kensico reservoir and thence down through the high-pressure tunnel through the city will take a longer time, but we can get the Catskill water temporarily by way of the Croton reservoir meanwhile. While we were conducting the negotiations it is true that many had their minds fixed on minor things, and paid no heed to what we were doing, and that makes me feel that it is all the more fit that I write you these special words of thanks for your work.

May I call attention to another matter which bears upon the speedy doing of the work of building the dam and aqueduct and getting water to Croton Lake within the two years. We have talked with the engineers and the contractors and have got them all in the spirit of the work, so as to do it in two years, but in looking over the list of contracts heretofore given out I am astonished to find that the contractors in eight cases have failed, thereby retarding the work. I also find that in six cases the contractors are behind time, the fault often being that the contractors are weak and liable to fail. I, therefore, trust that in the giving out of future contracts great care be exercised in ascertaining the financial standing and the capability of contractors who bid, for we cannot afford to have any more delay in the work by the failure of irresponsible or incompetent contractors. Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Charles Strauss, Esq., Chairman of the Board of Water Supply.

It was originally estimated that the Ulster & Delaware claim could not be settled for less than $5,500,000, but an agreement has been arrived at under which it will cost the city only about $2,500,000.

WARD WINS HIS LIBEL SUIT.

Jury Taxes Ban Johnson $1,000 for Calling Him a Trickster.

The jury which has been hearing the libel-slander suit brought by John M. Ward against Ban B. Johnson, President of the American League, in the United States Circuit Court, returned a verdict for the complainant yesterday afternoon, taxing Johnson $1,000 for calling Ward a "trickster." Ward sued on five counts alleging slander and libel, but Judge Hand ruled out all but the charge of libel.

The case has been on trial for about a week and has attracted a good deal of attention in the baseball world because the statements to which Ward took exception were made in newspaper interviews at the time that Johnson, as President of the American League, tried to keep Ward from being appointed a member of the National Commission which became the Arbitrating Board between the National and American Baseball Leagues.

Johnson denied the accuracy of the interviews and asserted that he did not use the language attributed to him. He took a train for the West before the verdict was announced. Counsel for Johnson moved for a new trial, but Judge Hand denied this, remarking:

"I think it's a light verdict and that you ought to be satisfied."

"If Johnson had retracted," Ward said, "I wouldn't have sued him. I have already said that I didn't want Johnson's money. What I wanted was to clear my name, and I think the verdict has done that."

VICTORY FOR THE DOG.

Not a Public Nuisance If He Lies In Apartment House Corridor.

The right of a dweller in an apartment house to own a dog and to allow it to lie in the corridor was sustained yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The court dismissed the suit of Helen McCluskey for $6,000 damages for tripping over a dog in the corridor of 1,786 Madison Avenue. Mrs. McCluskey sued on the contention that the dog was a public nuisance.

"It has not yet been held," said the court, "that one who either suffers or permits a dog to lie in a private hallway even though used in common by several tenants, is guilty of creating a nuisance. Permitting a dog to lie in the hallway of an apartment does not amount to more than negligence, if it amounts to that."

Public Health Demands a Clean Bakeshop

After an investigation of the bakeries of New York City, Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick made a report to Mayor Gaynor as to their Sanitary Condition. In this report the Commissioner used the following words:

"In some cases food stuffs were found under leaking skylights of areaways or in sidewalk vaults under leaking coal holes. Open barrels and tubs containing unbaked material were frequently discovered in close proximity to coal, ashes, rubbish and old rags."

There are no "leaking coal holes" and no "coal and ashes" to make the bakeshop filthy and the bread and cake unhealthful if gas ovens are used for baking. The baker who burns gas fuel not only bakes cleaner and better bread but, by avoiding the handling of coal, wood and ashes and the building of fires, makes his work easier, his profits larger and his life happier.

Small portable ovens, baking 48 large loaves of bread an hour and using little gas, rent for $12 a year. Large rotary ovens, baking 224 loaves in 30 minutes with slight cost for gas, can be bought at reasonable prices and on easy terms.
